Docking Device Key to Apollo Moon Landing

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 14 crew, using a flashlight and radioed do-it-yourself instructions, tried unsuccessfully today to pinpoint the cause of a malfunction that threatens to wipe out their long-sought landing on the forbidding moonscape of Fra Mauro.

Alan B. Shepard Jr., the patriarch of American spacemen, and rookies Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa deliberately tried for more than an hour to make a linking mechanism fail to work—as it had when they attempted to dock their command ship with the lunar lander earlier.

"It works," Roosa said finally. "Just real fine."

The apparatus must be able to work for its next use, when Shepard and Mitchell would return from the lunar surface to link again with the command ship piloted by Roosa.

"We will have to convince ourselves . . . that the thing is indeed satisfactory for docking," said Sigurd Sjoberg, director of flight operations.

Asked whether the astronauts will go through with Friday's landing attempt on the moon's craggy highlands, Sjoberg said, "I'd like not to speculate on that right now."

The astronauts worked the latches by hand on instructions from Houston without a single failure.

"In other words, what you are trying to tell me is you still haven't come up with anything that would be a problem," Mission Control said.

"That's basically it," said Roosa.

Trouble Shooting

"You've exhausted our imagination for right now on trouble-shooting the probe," said Mission Control. "We'll worry about it some more overnight and be back with you in the morning."

Awake 19 Hours

There was no argument from the astronauts, who had been awake for more than 19 hours by that time and in the spacecraft for 10 of those.

Mission Control reported all three retired by 7:50 a.m. EST for their first night en route to the moon. They roused for less than a minute of chitchat but were reported sacked in and apparently willing to stay 20 minutes later.

At that point Apollo 14 was 90,037 miles from earth and streaking toward their target at 4,366 miles per hour.

They could sleep with the knowledge that no threat to their safety was involved in the docking difficulty.

Experts who had watched their efforts via television studied the problem during the crew's 10 hours sleep time.

Unlike Apollo 13, which was endangered by an explosion, this was a little—but frustrating—problem. Sjoberg said if the landing could not be made, the astronauts would attempt an alternate mission of orbiting the moon.

After Launch

The trouble confronted the astronauts three hours after launch Sunday when they turned their command ship for docking.

On previous flights the maneuver was routine. The mother ship would edge forward from its stack, turn around, and hook onto the lunar lander nose-to-nose. Then the command ship can pull the moonship out of the spent third stage of the Saturn 5 rocket.

This time, three small latches on the docking mechanism—shorter than a cigarette and not much wider—failed to lock into position in five move-up, back-out tries. On the sixth, using an unorthodox procedure, the ships mated.

More Mechanism

Once past that hurdle, the astronauts were able to pull the troublesome mechanism inside. They found some small scratches on the polished face of the cone-shaped docking probe. They were made, Shepard said, by the capture latches.

"It has scratched the surface to a depth of three or four thousandths inches," Shepard said. "It's very difficult to describe it. Feels rough to the touch."

The group radioed tests and the mechanism passed each one flawlessly. It was something like a toothache that disappears in the dentist chair.

Shepard crawled into the tunnel formed by the joining of the two ships.

"I looked in here with a flashlight and I didn't see anything out of the ordinary," he said.

A Delicate Maneuver

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — Pouring water into a narrow-necked bottle without a funnel is tricky, but not impossible.

Astronaut Stuart A. Roosa performed a similar task Sunday night when he docked the Apollo 14 command ship and the lunar module without, in effect, a funnel.

The "funnel" is a bowl-shaped depression on the lunar module, Antares. This depression is called a drogue.

The Apollo 14 command ship, Kitty Hawk, has a cone-shaped probe which is tipped with three latches. These latches are designed to penetrate a hole in the bottom of the drogue and hook over the lip of the hole.

When this happens, the astronauts call it "capture."

After capture is achieved, the probe retracts, pulling the two spacecraft together.

As this happens, 12 larger latches located in a ring back of the probe hook on to a docking collar on the lunar module.

This is what the astronauts call hard dock. The spacecraft

Nixon Promises Prosperity With Neither War nor Inflation

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sent Congress today a pledge of more jobs and better business in 1971, plus a promise to use "all the effective and legitimate powers of government" to strengthen anti-inflation forces.

His goal: "Full prosperity without war, full prosperity without inflation."

But Nixon rejected—perhaps more emphatically than ever before—any use of price-wage controls or voluntary guideposts. He called the latter "an elaborate facade that seems to be wage and price control but is not."

His annual economic report to Congress fixed no specific goals or deadlines for recovery. But in the accompanying 300-page report of his Council of Economic Advisers, these targets were posted and presumably approved by him:

—Unemployment—now at 6 per cent—would decline to 4½ per cent by the middle of 1972. The official definition of "full employment" is around 4 per cent.

—The inflation rate, which was 5.25 per cent across the whole economy last year, should be approaching 3 per cent by mid-1972. This is measured by the Gross National Product.

—National output should total $1.065 trillion in 1971, requiring a record rise of $88 billion—so great some economists fear it might rekindle inflation.

Nixon's report, third and last of the major presidential messages to each new session of Congress, noted "prices have begun to rise less rapidly" and added "There are the first faint signs of a retardation in wage increases in some sectors.

Rapid Expansion

"Our first task now must be to assure more rapid expansion and so to reduce the unemployment rate," the message said.

"Nothing would contribute more to the new expansion than confidence that the threat of inflation is fading . . . I propose to justify that confidence."

Nixon said his $229.2-billion "full employment budget," sent to Congress on Friday, would provide a solid stimulus to expansion. Its outlays will rise $16.5 billion from this year's spending level, causing an estimated $11.6-billion deficit.

The President hinted at some lack of confidence in the estimate of the deficit. "How big the actual deficit will be," he said, "will depend on economic conditions."

Full Employment

But Nixon stressed anew his belief in the "full employment budget" theory, under which federal spending is considered stimulative but not inflationary when it does not exceed the revenues that the tax system would yield if the economy were operating at full employment. Larger spending would be inflationary and must be avoided "except in emergencies," Nixon said.

Some expansive forces are now at work, Nixon pointed out. They include a 40-per cent rise in the rate of new housing starts from a year ago, strongly increased state and local government spending, sharply reduced interest rates, rising after-tax incomes, and the catching-up of the auto industry from the General Motors strike.

Neither the President nor the council, however, offered an estimate of the anticipated gain in real output or a forecast of the 1971 rate of price advance. The projected rise of $88 billion in gross national product would be a 9-per cent gain: some government experts have suggested it might be about 4½ per cent real increase, 4½ per cent inflation.

Some of the 1971 forecasts

Americans Killed in Attack

U.S. Positions Hammered by Mortars

SAIGON (AP) — Communist-led forces slammed about 100 rounds of rockets and mortars into six U.S. positions today and followed up one attack with a ground assault, killing six Americans and wounding 26 in all.

The most devastating attack was a 50-round mortar barrage and a ground assault on a reconnaissance team from the 198th Brigade that had set up an ambush position four miles west of Chu Lai, headquarters of the U.S. Americal Division 50 miles south of Da Nang.

The U.S. Command, in a revised casualty report, said five Americans were killed and eight wounded in the attack near Chu Lai. A command communique earlier reported seven U.S. troops killed and seven wounded. Five enemy also were reported killed in the 50-minute fight.

The enemy forces apparently had traced the movements of the team from the 198th Brigade.

The other five American positions attacked were hit by rockets and mortars. They included the air bases at Da Nang and Cam Ranh Bay, a military adviser's compound at the Tuy Hoa air base, a helicopter unit seven miles northwest of Cam Ranh Bay and an artillery base 32 miles south of Pleiku City.

The U.S. Command said one American was killed and 18 wounded.

The attack at Da Nang touched off a huge fire that destroyed thousands of gallons of fuel and damaged some aircraft. No casualties were reported.

Bombing Campaigns

Meanwhile, the most sustained bombing campaign of the war stretched into its 115th day today with more U.S. raids on the Ho Chi Minh trail through southern Laos.

Informed sources said some 30 B52 bombers, each carrying up to 30 tons of bombs, and about 200 smaller fighter-bombers and gunships pounded the 200-mile-long trail network in the latest round of attacks.

The aim is to slow the flow of North Vietnamese arms and troops into Cambodia and South Vietnam so that the withdrawal of American forces can continue, sources said.

The U.S. Command announced the first major American unit to be phased out of Vietnam as part of President Nixon's sixth round of troop cutbacks that will reduce U.S. strength to less than 284,000 men by May 1. It is the 1st Squadron of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, now working on local security with South Vietnamese militiamen in the Saigon region. Its departure will cut U.S. strength by 1,140 men.

The entire 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment of 5,000 men will be phased out by May 1, along with 15,000 other combat troops in the Saigon region. But the U.S. Command's weekly strength summary today reported 335,800 American troops in Vietnam last Thursday, the same figure as the previous week.

4 Children Die In Oostburg Fire

OOSTBURG, WIS. (AP) — Four children died early today in a fire which destroyed their home near this Sheboygan County village.

Victims were Daniel Rahe, 16, his brother Gustave III, 8, and sisters, Lisa, 4, and Tammy 2.

Their father, Gustave Rahe, and two other children, Henry, 6, and Debra, 5, escaped.

Mrs. Rahe was working at a plant in Sheboygan Falls at the time the fire was reported around 3 a.m.

Units of the Oostburg and Cedar Grove fire departments responded.

Cause of the fire was not available.

Treasury Secretary Nominee

Connally Dealings Revealed

NEW YOK (AP) — John B. Connally Jr. was paid at least $225,000 while he was governor of Texas by the Sid W. Richardson Foundation, the New York Times said today.

Connally has been nominated by President Nixon to be secretary of the Treasury.

A report by Martin Waldron from Fort Worth, Tex., quotes the Texas constitution as saying a governor is prohibited from receiving any "salary, reward or compensation of the promise thereof from any person or corporation for any service rendered or performed during the time he is governor."

Perry R. Bass, a director of the foundation, said the money was in payment for work Connally had done as an executor of the $105 million estate of Sid Richardson, an oil millionaire, after Richardson's death in 1959.

Bass said today in Fort Worth that the executor fees due Connally were spread out over several years to put Connally in a better tax position.

"I don't know when the foundation paid to Connally the executor fees that Connally had coming to him by virtue of being an executor, which he was," Bass said.

"The foundation," Bass said, "inherited from the estate all assets and liabilities which went with the estate. There were executor fees due and the foundation then paid to Connally over a period of time. I think it was $75,000 a year that Connally had coming. The foundation inherited the agreement to pay him these fees."

In response to some reports that records were sketchy for a time and then became more complete, Bass said the rules regarding foundations were changed, requiring more complete records.

Records filed by the foundation with the International Revenue Service, and which are open to public inspection, disclosed a debt to Connally of $225,000 in 1966, which the foundation was paying at a rate of $75,000 a year, the Times said.

Ended in 1969

According to the records, the newspaper said, the payments had ended by 1969 when Connally left the governorship and joined a Houston law firm.

Bass, a former business partner of Connally, a nephew of Richardson and himself a coexecutor of the Richardson estate, said the payments to Connally "were executors' fees," and added: "That was a helluva long time ago." Connally could not be reached for comment.

Brownies learn how physical therapy can help patients.

Brownies Learn Hospitals Can be Friendly Places

They smell funny, they're full of people dressed in white and they're scary because they're where you have to stay all by yourself when you're so sick Mom can't make you feel better.

That's what lots of little boys and girls grow up thinking about hospitals. And when they get big and have to visit one for one reason or another — maybe to cheer a friend or have a baby or become a proud dad — they still get those same old butterflies. Even if the lady behind the desk is their neighbor and the first nurse they see sat next to them in school.

But there's a good chance the girls who belong to Brownie Troop 160 won't be so frightened when they go to the hospital in years to come.

Friday afternoon, they learned a hospital is a friendly place when they toured Appleton Memorial Hospital. Clutching boxes that contained the 42 hand puppets they made for patients in the children's ward, the Brownies visited the kitchen, the emergency room and the physical therapy department.

They saw that no one is alone in a hospital where doctors and nurses are people caring for other people. A hospital, they now know, is for getting well and learning to laugh with joy at feeling good.

Laughter fills the physical therapy department as John Hah, a guest of the Brownies, tries the parallel bars.

BY MIKE COCHRAN

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) —"Oooooh grand!" exclaimed Joan Roosa. "I knew Stu would do it. He's good at fixing things."

The dark-haired wife of the Apollo 14 pilot flew home to Texas from Cape Kennedy Sunday night, aware that the crew was having difficulty with a tricky docking maneuver.

"How are they doing?" she asked a reporter as she and her four sleepy children piled off the jet at a Houston airport.

"They docked on the sixth try," she was told. She broke into a super grin, commended her husband and the crew and said:

"Oh, I didn't know that. It's been kind of tense. But I had a good feeling about this mission. I hope they go down to the moon now and find a big rock that's four and a half billion years old."

Louise Mitchell, wife of the moon lander pilot, was the first of the three wives to return home, arriving half an hour earlier. Louise Shepard remained in Florida overnight and was due back today.

Mrs. Mitchell said the plane's pilot informed her that the command ship had successfully linked up with the lunar module after five futile attempts.

"Great!" she responded.

Mrs. Shepard admitted it was a little tense for awhile "but I thought it was a very beautiful launch. It reminded me of the Fourth of July."

Asked how she spent the tense moments when the mission appeared in jeopardy, she said, "I was eating an omelette, because at the time it was the thing to do."

She said she and her two daughters, Julie, 19, and Mrs. Laura Snyder, 23, would leave the Cape today.

Little John Roosa, 10, appeared unconcerned about the whole matter. He was the first off the plane, sound asleep in the arms of a family friend, Andy Phillips of Tyler, Tex.

"I want to get my kids home," Mrs. Roosa said. "They're just worn out."

The other Roosa children—Christopher, 11, Stuart Jr., 8, and Rosemary, 7—moved off the plane on their own power looking not unlike three kids who had spent a long day at Disneyland.

The Mitchell girls—Karlyn, 17, and Elizabeth, 11 carried school books off the plane, but admitted they got very little studying done.

Karlyn's companions said she had a test today at school and was "very worried about it ... It's a heck of a note—her daddy's going to the moon and she's gotta take a test."

Mrs. Mitchell, looking tired and tense, said she was relieved when the delicate docking maneuver was completed.

"I just so wanted everything to be all right," she said and added with a sigh: "It's looking much better now."

They'll Be Watching and praying. The wives of the astronauts sit together Sunday several hours before their husbands were scheduled to blast off from the Cape Kennedy, Fla., space complex on their moon mission. Save Money By Avoiding Service Calls

NEW YORK (AP) — With the economy still in the grip of inflation, there's a way housewives can save money, says the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York—and that's by avoiding unnecessary service calls.

The Bureau issued this checklist for appliance owners to use before calling a repairman:

1. Check the cord. Simple as it may seem, an unplugged cord frequently is the culprit in a malfunctioning appliance. Same goes for the power source. Check it to see it's functioning properly.

2. Check the fuses.

3. Check to see the controls are set properly. The dials should be turned in the proper direction.

4. Is the appliance clean? A clogged filter frequently is responsible for a malfunctioning air conditioner. Washers have lint screens that must be cleaned. Refrigerator and freezer coils should also be cleaned periodically.

5. If the appliance needs water, make sure the water is flowing into it. Check faucets and hoses.

6. Some appliances do not operate unless the doors and latches are securely shut. Check them.

The first thing a new appliance owner should do, the Bureau recommends, is read the instructor's manual thoroughly. It may answer future questions and eliminate a visit from the repairman.

Promises Exchanged

DALE — St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church was the setting Saturday, when Miss Connie Lu Rieckmann and Richard Carl Prasher Jr. exchanged wedding vows in a candlelight ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Orvin Rieckmann, route 1, Fremont, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Prasher, 1025 W. Harris St., Appleton.

Miss Donna Dorschner attended as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Prasher and Miss Barbara Rieckmann. Miss Sara Rieckmann served as flower girl.

Best man was Lee Witter, Appleton. Jerold Rieckmann and John Prasher served as groomsmen. Dennis Thiel and John Karwieck seated guests, whom the couple later greeted at a reception at the VFW Club, New London.

The newlyweds will reside in Fremont.

Women Request UW to Establish Watchdog Offices

MADISON (AP) — The University of Wisconsin should establish a permanent Office for Women on each of its campuses, the Association of Faculty Women said Friday.

The group noted that a U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare study and the university's own management surveys have shown patterns of discrimination against women.

"The Association of Faculty Women of the Madison campus therefore calls on you to provide immediately for the establishment of a Committee on the Status of Women on each campus of the university system to advise the respective chancellors and initiate such action as may be necessary to advance status of women," the organization said in a letter to school officials.

Winter Weather Brings Car Battery Troubles

Cold Wisconsin winters frustrate many women drivers. In cold days ahead, hope you won't be hiking down the road because your battery is dead.

Check your car battery whenever your car is serviced. The ability of the battery to turn over the engine is only 40 per cent as much at zero degrees as it would be on an 80 degree day in summer, says Orrin Berge, agricultural engineering specialist at the University of Wisconsin. When it's cold the battery loses a great deal of its starting power.

Annoying Problem

It's annoying not to get the car started. Often you just grind away on the ignition until the battery is completely exhausted. A battery will freeze at minus-16 degrees when it is only half charged. When the battery is totally discharged it will freeze at plus-19 degrees. Freezing causes the battery to crack. If you have tried to start the car and failed to do so, don't leave it. As soon as possible, get the battery charged.

Most cars have warning lights which indicate when the generator or alternator is working. If the light stays on after the engine has started, go immediately to a service station before the battery goes down all the way. Some cars have an ammeter gauge which tells if the generator is charging or discharging.

You may need to start a car from another automobile with booster cables, which should be connected to the correct terminals on the battery. Start the car which will be doing the boosting. Attach the cables to the battery. Usually the cables of both cars and the battery terminals are marked. Red color is the positive terminal. Black color indicates the negative terminal. Connect like colors.

Attach one cable to the booster and to the stalled car. Try to start the engine while some one touches the other cable to remaining terminal in the stalled car. This minimizes the draw on the boosting car. Connecting all cables to the terminals then starting both cars takes excess current from the starting car. Driving a reasonable length of time will charge up the battery.

Have the water in the battery checked frequently. If you must add water during winter let the car engine run about 10 minutes so that the water and sulfuric acid in the battery mix. If not mixed thoroughly, the water would quickly freeze in the battery. Don't add too much water. If the acid and water bubble over it could corrode other parts of the engine.

Judy Agnew and Friends No Fans of Women's Lib

NEW YORK (AP) — The women's liberation movement got the cold shoulder Saturday from Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew, who concluded "some of the things they do are silly."

"I'm fine, I don't think I need to be liberated," said the wife of the vice president, whose sentiment was echoed by other highranking administration women here to attend the 50th annual luncheon of the Women's National Republican Club.

Asked what she didn't like about women's lib, Mrs. Agnew replied, "I don't like to go into it."

Helen Bentley, chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, said "this bra-burning is nonsense."

"They are rather unseemly and unladylike," she said. "I don't endorse the activities of the women's liberation movement."

'Missing the Point'

Dorothy Andrews Elston treasurer of the United States, added: "Throwing away a garment you are wearing only proves that you are careless. Women's lib is not feminine but forceful. They are missing the point."

All three women said they agreed with the drive for equal pay for women, and Miss Elston said she could see a female president in the foreseeable future.

A woman vice president is more likely initially, she added, because of the votes that would attract to the national ticket.

Fat Caricatures of Spiro upset Mrs. Agnew. That's what the vice president's wife told newsmen Saturday at a press conference before the annual luncheon of the Woman's National Republican Club in New York. She said she has gotten used to verbal and written attacks on her husband, but maintains he is "tall and slim," not "big and fat" as in caricatures. Above, while expressing her views, she is flanked by U.S. Treasurer Dorothy Kabis and Helen Delich Bently, federal maritime commission chairman. (AP Wirephoto)

Notes on Being a House Guest

You wangled an important weekend invitation and you're on Cloud 9. Now you've only one problem: How to be the perfect guest and make an indelible impression on your host. Follow these 10 "do's and don'ts of guesting" and you're sure to be high up on future invitation lists.

1. Get the date straight and make certain the invitation is for the weekend. You'd feel ridiculous arriving with a suitcase to find out it's a sit-down dinner, or that your host is away on a safari.

2. Do not bring your pet; don't even ask if you can. Have a friend or neighbor care for Tootsie; so you'll owe a favor.

3. If Mrs. Host has no cook or maid, offer to help in some way. She'll probably say no, but your offer adds "points" for you as a guest.

4. Make your bed daily, put clothes away neatly and be extra-careful with the furnishings in your room. Do not smoke in bed.

5. The bathroom may be your severest "guest test." Don't spend hours there; don't leave hair on sink; don't leave toothpaste uncapped; don't leave soiled tissues around. Do clean up the sink after you're done; do fold your towel; do tidy up the floor if there's an overflow from shower or bath; do take your paraphernalia back to your room with you.

6. About beauty and grooming items: To avoid bothering your hostess for personal care items—for which you'll lose guest "points" — don't forget to pack toothbrush, cosmetics, hair care items, some mini-pads or other deodorants for feminine protection; a travel-iron; small tissue packs, breath mints.

7. About clothes to bring: Take only what you'll absolutely wear and be certain you know what kind of activities are scheduled and what the weather is like. The most marvelous weekend can be ruined if your clothes make you stand out like a sore thumb.

8. Be your natural self with your host and other guests. Don't arrive with 20 bad jokes memorized, or try to sound like an expert on every topic. Listen more, talk less, particularly about yourself, your achievements.

9. Bring a house gift. It needn't be elaborate — something you made yourself, like a cake — or a useful knick-knack, or gifts for the host's children. When in doubt about bringing a gift or not, bring one — it's safer.

10. On leaving, thank your host for a delightful time, even if the visit was something less than you anticipated. After you get home, always pen a little note of appreciation.

French Press Blasts St. Laurent Collection

PARIS (AP) — Yves Saint-Laurent, once the man who could do no wrong of French fashion, was criticized today for his new collection, called a sad reminder of the Nazi occupation.

Saint-Laurent dressed his models Friday in jackets with shoulder pads and high heeled platform shoes.

"Saint-Laurent took a particularly trying step backwards," the newspaper Paris Jour wrote. "This fashion doesn't have a good reputation for elegance. We thought at first these were the designer's usual gags, but the evidence was otherwise: these excesses were deliberate, sad and demoralizing."

Criticism Unusual

The attack on Saint-Laurent was all the more unusual because French fashion writers generally just tell what they see and avoid extensive criticism of designers, considered a virtual part of the French patrimony.

The fashion expert of Le Figaro asked Saint-Laurent why he chose as a theme "the years that preceded the war and those of the occupation" which she said produced styles that made women ugly instead of beautiful. ("It's a mistake," Le Figaro concluded.

Le Monde guessed Saint-Laurent may have fallen victim to a string of 1940s movies shown endlessly on French television.

"Dangerous Game"

"He has lost all sense of proportion, indeed good taste, and if he's followed by the ready-to-wear industry, which has been following him for years, women will only be disgusted by a fashion which makes fun of them. It's an extremely dangerous game," said Le Monde.

France-Soir, the country's biggest circulating newspaper, was less harsh with Saint-Laurent, but also asked if he were joking.

There was at least a marginal explanation from the designer.

"I'm bored with gimmicks," Saint-Laurent told France-Soir. "There had to be a clean break."

A Sad Reminder of Nazi occupation — that's what some French fashion writers called St. Laurent's spring collection reminiscent of the Forties. Among the new fashions unveiled Friday by the designer was this tailored suit consisting of a sleeveless jacket of red gabardine with padded shoulders. It is worn over a red and white crepe de chine dress. High-heeled platform shoes complete the ensemble. (AP Wirephoto)

Your Problems

She Recalls How She, Too, Was Ignored

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was hit hard by that letter about the little seven-year-old girl who climbs on men's laps and behaves in an aggressively affectionate manner. I was that little girl 20 years ago. To this day I can hear my mother say, "Isn't that cute the way Sherry goes for the men?" She doesn't care for women at all!"

You were right in your answer, Ann. The reason the little girl craves male affection is because her own father ignored her. I know, because my dad was like that. He never once let me sit on his lap. I cannot recall that he ever kissed me.

Do you know what happens to little girls with cold fathers who reject them? They see "daddy" in every male who pays them the slightest attention. As teen-agers they are pushovers for heels, swingers and lecherous old men who like young flesh.

I lived through it all but I was luckier than most. I met a wonderful man who understood my problem and helped me get well. (Yes, it is a sickness.) We have a wonderful marriage now and I consider myself extremely fortunate. I hope the little girl in the letter is as lucky as I was. I will pray for her. — Sherry of Boise

Dear Sherry: Thank you for a touching letter. I hope the unaffectionate fathers out there who have little girls, will read it and do some soul-searching.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If I am wallowing in self pity please kick me in the bloomers. If I have a right to complain, say so.

I have been married 15 years to a man who works hard, pays the bills on time, is a good father and has never been known to lose his temper. He tells me I am a fine wife and a wonderful person.

Landers

Should I be satisfied? Well — here's the rest of it.

From the day we married I have been alone on Thanksgiving, New Year's, my birthday, his birthday, the children's birthdays, Mother's Day, our anniversary, and every holiday that gives a man a day off from work. The reason I am alone so much is because my husband is a fisherman, a hunter, a bowler, a swimmer, a surfer, a skater and a card player. In other words he's interested in everything but staying home with his family.

Do I have the right to say something? — A Married Widow in Saginaw

Dear Sag: Of course you do, but I have a hunch it won't do any good at this late date. The time to have "said something" was 15 years ago.

You don't mention whether you enjoy any of these activities. I see in your list many things the family could do together. Is this possible? Explore the prospects and it might produce a partial solution.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 20. My fiance is 21. We are planning to be married soon and I need an answer to a question. J and I had a talk last week and he confessed he has always wanted to be married in a purple sequin jacket. I told him I'd have to think it over. The next day I discussed it with my mother. She said it was all right with her, if the minister didn't object. So I asked the minister. He said he didn't see any reason why my fiance couldn't get married in a purple sequin jacket if he wanted to, since grooms are wearing all sorts of off-beat outfits these days. (Brides, too.)

When I told J he replied, "I've changed my mind. It would take the attention away from you." This was very sweet but now I feel guilty — knowing how much it meant to him. Should I insist? — Ontario Bride

Dear On: No. Let it be. If there's anything a bride doesn't need it's a groom in a purple sequin jacket.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

World Champions

by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

Should everyone buy insurance? There is no general answer. It depends upon individual circumstances. Should everyone make safety plays in bridge? There is a general answer.

All winning players place a higher premium on the contract than on the overtrick. They are more than willing to pay for a little insurance in the form of a safety plan.

Today's game hand concerns a basic form of safety play necessary to bring home the contract.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of spades.

South's opening bid of two no-trump was standard — 22 to 24 high-card points, one or more stoppers in all suits. North's raise to three no-trump was automatic.

Many players, elated over their fortunate possession of so many high cards, would win the opening lead of the spade seven and rush to cash tricks. "Quick, on to the next deal before my luck changes," is the general attitude.

Unfortunately for them, after the play of the club ace and another club to dummy's queen, the hand could no longer be made. Declarer could take only two spades, one heart, two diamonds and three clubs. Down one.

When the hand was played by Major Paul E. Lewis, San Antonio bridge teacher, declarer had learned about insurance and safety plays.

Instead of rushing to take tricks as quickly as possible, declarer took a little time for counting. Since he needed only four tricks in the club suit to make his contract, he decided to give himself the best chance to win four tricks rather than trying for all five.

Declarer won the spade lead with his king and cashed the ace of clubs. He followed this with a low club, and when West played the nine, declarer let him hold the trick, playing low from dummy.

West continued with spades, declarer winning the ace. A club to dummy produced three more club tricks and the contract.

Declarer had executed a safety play. He was willing to sacrifice the probable overtrick (five club tricks would be available over 68 per cent of the time when holding this combination) to assure four club tricks and his contract. In terms of points, he was willing to pay 30 points (value of the overtrick) to insure collection of 600 points.

Isn't that what insurance is all about?

Leg Watchers Get Eyefull of Pizazz

Attention Leg Watchers! Stockings and pantyhose for the coming season appear in a variety of colors and textures. In the first picture an Apache pattern is shown in a brown and yellow Aztec print. The high slits on the dress are superlative leg showoffs.

Galaxies of butterflies co-star in the second picture, creating a romantic fashion mood. The pantyhose has butterflies just around the ankle and the scalloped skirt accentuates leg interest.

Pizazz for the gaucho is provided in the third picture by Shin-Shams, a new concept in stretch leg fashions. The stretch nylon feet fit inside red leather pumps to give the effect of a bi-colored leather boot. Shin-Shams are made of crinkled, leather-like stretch material.

The fourth picture shows Roman Key, another new pattern, which comes in a kumquat shade to provide drama with the long slink dress.

The fifth picture gives another version of Shin-Shams, this time in white, with navy and white shoes and navy pantyhose for a coordinated look. Another new concept debuts in picture six, with knee-highs to be worn with contrasting pantyhose. The look is especially appropriate with the new short pants. All pantyhose and stockings are by Burlington, the creator of Shin-Shams.

How to Take the Trauma Out of Shopping With Tots

By MARY LU ZUBER
Houston Chronicle Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — How do you take your children grocery shopping with you and still keep your cool?

That's a question many parents, particularly mothers, have asked, usually in a tone of disgust, after a "bad trip."

It takes a wise and patient mother to avert disaster on a shopping trip But the key lies in teaching a child the proper behavior when he's out in public.

Two women who deal daily with mothers and children offer some advice on shopping Mrs Edith Herbst runs the Oaks Pre-School and Mrs Edith Crouse is director of the University of Houston laboratory nursery school and assistant professor of child development and family life in the College of Arts and Science.

Three Rules Offered

The first thing both said was to avoid taking young children shopping Let Daddy or a neighbor baby-sit. But in the case of a working mother, they admitted it's often impossible to shop alone.

Mrs. Herbst offers three general rules:

1 Talk to your child before going shopping, telling him the purpose of the trip.

2. Give the child a part in the trip by asking him to choose certain items.

3 Don't let yourself get upset by a child's naturally buoyant behavior.

Mrs. Crouse has six pointers

1 Limit the time of an excursion The longer you're out the more trouble you're asking for. "Mothers abuse their own children. They'll keep a child out a long time, it's hot, the baby's diapers need changing and he gets hungry. No wonder the child starts fussing," she added.

2 Pick a good time for you and the child to shop Take the child when he's alert, eager and inquisitive Mothers often go when they want and don't stop to think about the trip from a child's viewpoint, she notes.

Limit Activities

3. Don't plan too many activities, such as dress shopping, grocery shopping and a trip to the zoo all in one day. "Adults know this and just don't practice it. An adult gets emotionally, physically and mentally involved and then takes it out on the child," she says.

4 A mother might consider two or three short trips to the grocery store in a week instead of one long trip.

5. Talk to the children during the shopping. Make the outing educational If a child is old enough to help, he can be given certain items to find. If mother doesn't talk with the child, he may find the only way to get attention is to cause trouble.

6 Prepare yourself emotionally and socially for troubles that might arise. Be patient. Children, just like adults, are going to have their bad days. Also be prepared for accidents. Even an adult can accidentally tip over a catsup bottle.

Renewable Woods

Wood is a "flow" resource that's renewable. Other building materials are "stock" resources; no new mountain replaces the one that yielded its metals.

Guidelines for Clothing Purchases

At this time of year many stores are offering excellent buys for the shopper's pocketbook, says Shirley Watson, extension home economist for Winnebago County. However, some of the gains that could come from wise planning of your family's wardrobe can easily be lost through careless stopping in the stores.

Getting your money's worth depends upon intelligent shopping at the price you not only expect to pay but can also afford to pay.

There are seven basic shopping principles which can help you save money and receive lasting satisfaction from purchases that are not only necessary to clothe your family but actually to keep family members more contented with their wardrobe throughout the year.

Compare Values Clothing stores vary in price even on similar items and some stores change some of their prices daily and weekly The higher-priced suit, for example, is not always the best buy in terms of value and style No two stores have identical operating costs; therefore, their margins of profit are different. The more efficient stores often sell goods of equal quality and style at lower prices Experienced professional comparative shoppers say that it is necessary to shop at least five stores before purchasing expensive clothing items, such as a coat, suit, or good-quality dress

Select Basic or Classic Styles Classic styles almost always mean simple styling, which can mean better-quality fabric and finish Many stores now feature such styles with the suggestion that they do not become dated In addition, their appearance can be changed by different accessories. Simple lines also mean lower cleaning costs. One manufacturer of women's clothing puts a date on his labels so that purchasers could see how long a particular line remained in fashion

Buying Clothes That Fit Your Needs. Do not develop a case of "bargainitis." Do not buy an article merely because you like the color or because the price has been reduced. It is difficult to resist a bargain, but no garment is a bargain unless it fits your needs The color that you found irresistible in the store will soon cease to delight you if it does not harmonize with your wardrobe.

Purchase Middle Price Items Most stores have several price ranges for all types of clothing. Salespersons, especially those on commission, may attempt to "trade up" customers to the highest priced group, but this group may not have enough additional value and style to offset its high price The lowest priced goods usually cut costs by using cheaper quality raw materials, resulting in unsatisfactory wear The middle price lines are usualy safest to buy because good quality materials may be used and costs saved by eliminating nonessentials which do not affect good styling and wear

Shop Store Brands It is possible to save up to 25 per cent on many clothing items of the same quality and style as the nationally advertised brands Some manufacturers make identical clothes that are sold under several brand names at different price levels Large retailers, such as department stores and mail order houses, have their own store brands. They can often sell clothes more cheaply than smaller competitors who handle nationally known brands, because costs of a wholesaler and of national advertising are eliminated. Store brands exist because prices for nationally advertised clothing are seldom reduced after the items have won public acceptance Money saving stores and private brands have made considerable headway, especially in the staple clothing, hosiery and shoe lines.

Shop Regular Store Sales When you know your clothing needs in advance and plan for cash purchases at reliable sales, it is possible to save up to 50 per cent on some clothing purchases. Get acquainted with the months for such sales in your locality

Pay Cash You get more for your money at stores that have strictly cash terms, unless the customer buys on the installment plan and pays a reasonable interest rate Installment buying is expensive and should be avoided if possible Some credit stores mark up clothing prices considerably to pay for the cost of credit and, in some cases, for their delivery costs Some cash clothing stores can sell an identical dress, for example, for 2 per cent less than a competitor who offers credit

if a covered child is hospitalized (See All-Family and One-Parent Family plans below)

PAYS $350 A WEEK EXTRA
if you and your wife are both injured and hospitalized (See All-Family and Husband-Wife plans below)

PLUS INCREASED EXTRA CASH FOR CANCER, HEART ATTACK OR STROKE

REGARDLESS OF YOUR AGE OR THE SIZE OF YOUR FAMILY, YOU CAN ENROLL FOR ONLY $1.00
Then, after the first month, continue this "extra cash" coverage at Physicians' low rates.

During this Limited Enrollment Period, you can enroll yourself and all eligible members of your family simply by mailing the Enrollment Form below with $1. There's nothing else to do – but you must mail your Enrollment no later than Midnight, March 7, 1971!

Think of it. Now, with a stroke of your pen, you can have tax-free, expense-free extra cash paid direct to you when a sudden accident or unexpected illness hospitalizes you or a covered member of your family! And you may enroll during this Limited Enrollment Period without having to see a company representative and without any red tape whatsoever. All you need do is mail the Enrollment Form below together with just $1 before the expiration date. It's that easy!

Why You Need Extra Cash In Addition To Ordinary Hospital Insurance

Anyone who has been in the hospital recently knows ordinary hospital insurance—even Medicare—simply will not cover everything. You have to pay many "extras" out of your own pocket—and it can add up to hundreds of dollars in a frighteningly short time.

But even if your ordinary hospital insurance covers most of your medical and hospital bills, what about the bills that keep piling up at home?

If you, as husband, father and breadwinner are suddenly hospitalized, your income stops, your expenses go up. Even if you have some kind of "salary insurance" it probably won't come close to replacing your full-time pay.

If your wife is suddenly hospitalized, who will look after the family, do the laundry, the marketing, the cleaning? You may have to take time off from your job—or hire full-time domestic help—to take care of things at home.

If one of your children is suddenly hospitalized, you will certainly spare no expense. You wouldn't even think of the cost.

If you're over 65 and are suddenly hospitalized, Medicare, fine as it is, won't pay all of your hospital expenses or any household expenses. Most senior citizens won't want to use up savings it may have taken a lifetime to accumulate ... they want to retain their independence and not become a "burden" to their children or community.

Without "extra cash" protection, a hospital emergency may leave you with savings gone, debts you can't pay, peace of mind shattered—even your recovery can be seriously delayed by money worries!

How The Plan Protects You And Your Family

Now, with the unique "extra cash" protection of The Doctors Hospital Plan you can avoid these worries because you can be assured of extra cash income when you or any covered member of your family goes to the hospital. No matter how large your family, no matter what your age or occupation and without any qualifications whatsoever, you can choose any of the four low-cost plans shown at right to meet your family's special needs.

In addition to the "extra cash" hospital benefits, you get all these valuable "extra" features:

Your "Health-Bank Account" Grows Each Month

Here's a wonderful benefit, no matter which plan you choose—almost like having an extra "Bank Account." When your policy is issued, your insurance provides up to $10,000, $7,500, or $5,000—depending upon the plan you choose. This is your "Health-Bank Account."

Then, every month your policy is in force, a sum equal to your regular monthly premium (including your first month) is actually added to your maximum! When you have claims, your benefits are subtracted from your "account." It's much like putting money in and taking it out of a bank account.

Enjoy Life-Long Security

For as long as you live and continue to pay your premiums, we will never cancel or refuse to renew your policy for health reasons—and we guarantee that we will never cancel, modify or terminate your policy unless we decline renewal or modify all policies of this type in your entire state or until the maximum (Aggregate of Benefits) of your policy has been paid.

You May Actually Come Out "Money Ahead"

Because The Doctors Hospital Plan pays you in addition to any other company's health insurance you carry—individual, group or even Medicare—and because all your extra cash benefits are tax-free, you may leave the hospital many dollars ahead ... money you don't have to account for to anyone. Of course, you may have only one like policy with Physicians Mutual.

Enroll For Only $1

Regardless of your age, the size of your family, or the plan you select, you get your first month for only $1.00. If you choose the All-Family Plan—all your eligible children (including future additions) are included at no extra cost. (See box at right for low rates.)

Extra Cash Protection At Surprisingly Low Cost

How can a hospital plan offer so much for so little? The answer is simple: We have lower total sales costs. The Doctors Hospital Plan is a mass enrollment plan. All business is conducted between you and the company by mail. No salesmen will call. It all adds up to real savings we share with you by giving you high quality protection at low cost.

Offered By Physicians Mutual "The Doctors Company"!

Your policy is backed by the resources, integrity and reputation of the Physicians Mutual Insurance Company, "the doctors company," specializing in health and accident protection for physicians, surgeons and dentists for more than 68 years. Dunne's Insurance Reports, one of the leading insurance industry authorities in the nation, gives Physicians Mutual its highest policyholders' rating of "A Plus (Excellent)." Serving hundreds of thousands of policyholders throughout the United States direct by mail, Physicians Mutual has its headquarters in Omaha, Nebraska, and is licensed and incorporated in that state. Its Board of Directors is composed entirely of respected members of the medical and insurance professions.

Easy to Enroll! No Salesman Will Call!

During this limited enrollment period there are no other qualifications other than to complete and mail the Enrollment Form below. We will issue your Doctors Hospital Policy (Form P322 Series) immediately—the same day we receive your form. This automatically puts your policy in force. Along with your policy you will receive a simple, easy-to-use Claim Form. When you need your benefits, you can be sure that your claim will be handled promptly.

Protect Your Family — Enroll Now. If Not Satisfied Your $1 Will Be Refunded

Take a moment now to fill out your Enrollment Form and mail it with only $1.00 for your first month.

When you receive your policy, you'll see that it is honest and easy to understand. But if for any reason whatsoever you change your mind you may return your policy within 10 days and we will promptly refund your dollar.

IMPORTANT: We can only accept your enrollment if it is postmarked on or before the date shown below. But please don't wait until the last moment. The sooner we receive your form, the sooner The Doctors Hospital Plan will cover you. You risk nothing by acting promptly. You may lose hundreds of dollars in "extra cash" benefits through needless delays. Mail your enrollment form today!

CHOOSE THE PLAN THAT SUITS YOU BEST

INDIVIDUAL PLAN $5,000 MAXIMUM

PAYS YOU: $100 weekly ($14.28 daily) extra cash when you are hospitalized.

If you are living by yourself, or if you wish to cover only yourself or one family member, choose the Individual Plan.

HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN $7,500 MAXIMUM

PAYS YOU: $100 weekly ($14.28 daily) extra cash when you are hospitalized. $75 weekly ($10.71 daily) when your wife is hospitalized.

ONE-PARENT FAMILY PLAN $7,500 MAXIMUM

PAYS YOU: $100 weekly ($14.28 daily) extra cash when you are hospitalized. $50 weekly ($7.14 daily) for each eligible child hospitalized.

If you are the only parent living with your children, we suggest the One-Parent Family Plan. This plan has been tailored to help meet your particular needs. It covers you and all unmarried children living at home between 3 months of age and under 21.

You pay only $5.95 a month and you get your first month for only $1.00!

On all plans, your "extra cash" benefits are paid from the very first day you enter the hospital, for as long—and for as many times—as you are hospitalized, right up to the maximum (Aggregate of Benefits) of the plan you select.

Naturally The Doctors Hospital Plan will cover any new accident or sickness. New accidents are covered immediately. After your policy is 30 days old, you are covered for new sicknesses which begin thereafter. There are only these minimum necessary exceptions: pregnancy or any consequence thereof (unless you have the All-Family Plan or the Husband-Wife Plan, each of which covers maternity after the policy is in force for 10 months), war, military service, mental disorder, alcoholism or drug addiction, or conditions covered by Workmen's Compensation or Employers Liability Laws.

You are free to go to any lawfully operated hospital of your own choice, with these exceptions only: nursing homes; convalescent, extended-care, or self-care units of hospitals; or Federal hospitals.

SPECIAL EXTRA BENEFITS!

Whichever plan you choose, you get:

50% INCREASE IN YOUR CASH BENEFITS ... if you or any member of your family is hospitalized for cancer (including Leukemia and Hodgkin's Disease), heart attack (acute myocardial infarction, coronary thrombosis and coronary occlusion), or stroke (apoplexy).

If you choose the All-Family Plan or the Husband-Wife Plan, you get in addition:

DOUBLE CASH BENEFITS if both you and your wife are injured and hospitalized at the same time: You get twice the amount—$350 A WEEK!

Important: Here is another real "plus"—if you have been told that anyone in your family is "uninsurable"! Even if one of your covered family members has suffered from chronic ailments in the past—ailments that come back again and again, or are likely to recur—you will be covered for these pre-existing conditions after your policy has been in force for one year!

IF YOU ARE OVER 65

Even though Medicare will pay most of your hospital expenses it will not cover all of your needs. During this limited enrollment, you can get the extra cash protection needed during the high-risk senior years without any qualifications just by using the form below!

It's a fact that people over 65 go to hospitals more often and have larger hospital bills. That's exactly why they need extra cash protection! And that's why some hospital plans won't accept them or charge rates beyond their means. But The Doctors Hospital Plan not only accepts you regardless of age, it gives you easy-to-carry protection that is within your means. If you are over 65 now, or when you become 65, the following modest monthly additional rate applies:

Female on All-Family or Husband-Wife Plan	$2.50
Female on One-Parent Family or Individual Plan	3.50
Male on any Plan	3.50

19 Important Questions Answered
ABOUT THE NEW DOCTORS HOSPITAL PLAN

1. What is The Doctors Hospital Plan?
The Doctors Hospital Plan is a brand-new, low-cost health protection plan—that pays extra cash direct to you when a covered accident or illness hospitalizes you or a covered member of your family.

2. Why do I need The Doctors Hospital Plan in addition to my regular insurance?
Probably your present hospital insurance won't cover all your hospital expenses, but even if it does, you will still need help to cover all your household expenses when you are hospitalized.

3. Can I collect even if I carry other health insurance?
Yes, The Doctors Hospital Plan pays you in addition to any health insurance you carry, whether individual or group—even in addition to Medicare! And all your benefits are tax-free! Of course, you may have only one like policy with Physicians Mutual.

4. Is there a lot of red tape to qualify?
None at all. Your only qualification is to complete and mail your Enrollment Form by the deadline date shown.

5. Which plan should I choose?
You may choose any of four low-cost plans -you can actually select the exact plan that suits you best!

If you live by yourself, or wish to cover only one family member, choose the INDIVIDUAL PLAN.

If you have no children as yet, or if you have children who are grown and no longer dependent on you, you will want the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN.

If yours is a young, growing family, we recommend the ALL-FAMILY PLAN. You and your wife are covered at once for accidents, for new sicknesses after 30 days, and for maternity benefits after 10 months. All your children (and future additions) between 3 months and under 21 are included, at no extra cost, as long as they are unmarried and live at home.

If you are the only parent living with your children, we suggest the ONE-PARENT FAMILY PLAN. This covers you and all unmarried children living at home between 3 months of age and under 21.

6. If I become hospitalized, when do my benefits begin?
On all plans, your cash benefits are paid from the very first day of covered hospital confinement, for as long—and for as many times as you are hospitalized, up to the maximum (Aggregate of Benefits) of the plan you choose.

7. How much can I be paid?
Each plan has its own "Aggregate of Benefits," what we call the maximum.

For example, under the INDIVIDUAL PLAN, the maximum is $5,000—$100 weekly ($14.28 daily) when you are hospitalized.

Under the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN, the maximum is $7,500—$100 weekly ($14.28 daily) when you are hospitalized; $75 weekly ($10.71 daily) when your wife is hospitalized.

Under the ALL-FAMILY PLAN, the maximum is $10,000 – $100 weekly ($14.28 daily) when you are hospitalized, $75 weekly ($10.71 daily) when your wife is hospitalized; $50 weekly ($7.14 daily) for each eligible child hospitalized.

Under the ONE-PARENT FAMILY PLAN, the maximum is $7,500 – $100 weekly ($14.28 daily) when you are hospitalized; $50 weekly ($7.14 daily) for each eligible child hospitalized.

8. Are any additional benefits included in The Doctors Hospital Plan?
Yes. You receive a 50% increase in cash benefits if you or any covered family member is hospitalized for cancer (including Leukemia and Hodgkin's Disease), heart attack (acute myocardial infarction, coronary thrombosis and coronary occlusion), or stroke (apoplexy).

9. What are the "double" cash benefits?
If you and your wife are both injured and hospitalized at the same time and are covered by the ALL-FAMILY PLAN or the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN, you get double cash benefits. You get twice the amount—$350 A WEEK!

10. Does this plan pay in any hospital?
You will be covered in any lawfully operated hospital except nursing homes; convalescent, extended-care, or self-care units of hospitals; or Federal hospitals.

11. When does my policy go into force?
It becomes effective the very same day we receive your Enrollment Form. New accidents are covered on that date. After your policy is 30 days old, new sicknesses which begin thereafter are covered. Under the ALL-FAMILY PLAN and the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN, childbirth or pregnancy or any consequence thereof is covered after your policy is in force for 10 months.

12. What if someone in my family has had a health problem that may occur again?
Even if one of your covered family members has suffered from chronic ailments in the past, pre-existing conditions are covered after the policy has been in force for one year.

13. What conditions aren't covered?
Only these minimum necessary exceptions: pregnancy or any consequence thereof (unless you have the ALL-FAMILY PLAN or the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN), war, military service, mental disorder, alcoholism or drug addiction, or if something happens "on the job" and is covered by Workmen's Compensation or Employers Liability Laws.

14. Can I drop out any time? Can you drop me?
We will never cancel or refuse to renew your policy for health reasons—for as long as you live and continue to pay your premiums. We guarantee that we will never cancel, modify or terminate your policy or change your rates unless we do so on all policies of this type in your entire state or until the maximum (Aggregate of Benefits) of your policy has been paid. You, of course, can drop your policy on any renewal date.

15. Why is The Doctors Hospital Plan almost like having an extra "bank account"?
When your policy is issued, your insurance provides up to $10,000, $7,500 or $5,000—depending upon the plan you choose. This is your "Health-Bank Account." Then, every month your policy is in force, a sum equal to your regular monthly premium (including your first month) is actually added to your maximum. When you have claims, benefits are subtracted from your "account"!

16. Will my claims be handled promptly?
Yes. With your policy, you will receive a simple, easy-to-use Claim Form. Your claims will be processed quickly and your checks sent directly to you.

17. Why are the premiums so low?
With the Doctors Hospital Plan, you actually get all these benefits at such a low cost—because this is a mass enrollment plan—and no salesman will call. Our volume is higher and our total sales costs are lower.

18. How much does my first month cost?
Only $1.00, regardless of your age, the size of your family or the plan you select. After the first month, if you are under 65, you pay: only $3.95 a month for the INDIVIDUAL PLAN; only $6.45 a month for the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN; only $7.95 a month for the ALL-FAMILY PLAN; only $5.95 a month for the ONE-PARENT FAMILY PLAN. (When you are over 65, premiums increase. See modest increase in box above.)

19. Why should I enroll right now?
Because an unexpected sickness or accident could strike without warning—and you will not be covered until your policy is in force. Remember, if for any reason you change your mind, you may return your policy within 10 days and your $1.00 will be refunded immediately.

A Sluggish Fox River continues to flow despite arctic temperatures.

Mercury to Stay Way Below Zero

Minus 18 Forecast for Tonight

Icy 15 m.p.h. winds and a temperature reading of -15 degrees this morning combined to greet breadwinners, students and harried mothers with a biting -51 degrees in wind chill as they set out on their appointed rounds.

Not everyone could "set out," however, as taxicab and towing firms could well testify.

Yellow Cab reported running up to an hour behind schedule early this morning because so many cars refused to start. Fox Valley Cab has been "going strong" since 6 a.m. when businessmen and factory personnel began to get moving.

The three wreckers at Peotter Towing Service, Inc., have been "going full time" the whole weekend, according to a spokesman, providing tows and starts, pulling cars out of ditches and repairing truck breakdowns.

Femal's Service reported having all the towing business "we can handle, and more."

The weather bureau at Green Bay said today that below zero temperatures had covered the state throught the weekend, with lows ranging from -46 at Phillips to -4 at Burlington this morning.

Temperatures in the Fox Cities Sunday ranged from -5 to -15.

The forecast calls for continued cold tonight and Tuesday with temperatures getting down to around -18 to -20 tonight.

Temperatures Tuesday should climb to five above zero, the first time since Saturday.

The weather bureau also reported that last month was the coldest January since 1929, and that the most snow since 1943 had fallen in that month.

Wednesday should be a little warmer as the frigid air mass that has gripped Wisconsin is pushed south and east by warm air from the west.

Some 20.4 inches of snow fell on the Fox Cities last month, 9.8 inches above the average, according to Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.

The State Division of Highways reported today that main traveled roads north of a line from Red Wing, Minn., to Oconto have slippery spots and slippery stretches. Roads south of that line were in good winter driving condition.

All Interstate routes were described as clear and dry.

Lesser traveled highways in the northeast had slippery conditions.

As bitter cold continued to grip Wisconsin today, the Sun Prairie groundhog was resting fitfully in preparation for his annual task of weather prognostication.

The groundhog, named Jimmy, will be on duty at sunrise Tuesday morning. If he sees his shadow, tradition has it, there'll be six more weeks of winter. If not, the state can anticipate an early spring. In any event, Jimmy's reaction will be the same —he'll be back in hibernation by noon.

Actually, two groundhogs were roused from their sound sleep on the Eric Lenz farm near Sun Prairie during the weekend. Jimmy himself, and Jimmy Jr., who's being groomed to follow in his father's footsteps.

Mrs. Lenz said that the two groundhogs don't like the exceptionally cold weather any better than other Wisconsin residents. "They were really sleeping this year, more so than last year," she said.

Temperatures were rarely above zero in Wisconsin during the weekend.

The only area to break the barrier Sunday was Beloit, where the mercury made it to 1 above. Other highs ranged between -3 at Madison and Lone Rock and -9 at Superior.

There were a few scattered snow flurries in the far north Sunday, with some snow falling again today in the Hurley and Eau Claire areas.

Lows in the state early today ranged down to -26 at Eagle River. The coldest reading, -31, was recorded at Roseau, Minn.

Beloit was the warmest with -5.

Highest reading in the nation Sunday was 93 at Brownsville and McAllen, Tex.

Martin Lists Bylaws For Valley Plans Unit

Proposed articles of organization for the expected new regional planning agency to serve the metropolitan mid-Fox Valley and possibly outlying regions have been proposed by David O. Martin, chairman of the ad hoc committee studying planning jurisdictional overlap and duplication.

Martin, who was a Neenah state representative when he informed the committee last year, prepared the articles for consideration by the committee hopefully in a mid-February meeting.

"I would like to have a final meeting to make a final recommendation that would be sent to the State Department of Local Affairs and Development and the Bureau of Planning of the State Department of Administration, as well as the six-member conferees of the two planning commissions," he said.

The proposed articles embody generally what the committee indicated it preferred at its December meeting, plus the general pattern expressed in articles from the area's two agencies, the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) and Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, and the Brown County Regional Planning Commission.

Martin said he expected the committee might propose some changes but he hoped the articles could be endorsed soon.

He said that the articles would only be a recommendation to the joint committee of the planning agencies and eventually the county governments, which undoubtedly will have the most say in the new planning agency. But, he added, county board chairmen of Winnebago and Outagamie and top municipal officials are on the ad hoc committee, and if they endorse the articles, they should be considered seriously.

The articles probably will run into trouble in the joint committee because the Northeastern members have said they don't want to become entangled in other committees' activities. And Northeastern leaders have attacked Martin for continuing his committee work after he left the assembly last month.

Among the key proposals in the articles were that:

— The counties within the governor's administrative districts for state services shall be the members of the planning agency, with at least some of the eight Lake Winnebago administrative district as members and all eight if they desire.

Martin said that some ad hoc committeemen may favor bringing in counties outside the district because of desirable economic or other ties.

— Each county shall be represented on the commission, one district representative from each assembly district. The county board chairman, or county executive, shall appoint the representatives, with board approval. Representatives shall be elected officials of cities, villages towns or counties.

There shall be no more than three citizen members on the council, appointed by the council.

— For budgeting, council members shall pay their share according to the percentage of their equalized valuation for tax purposes.

The proposed articles also provide for citizen participation through advisory committees; contracting for services outside the council area, such as with the state, and withdrawal from the council membership by giving written notice before the end of the fiscal year, which would be Dec. 31.

The articles are the first definite step toward forming the basic framework for a single regional agency for this area. Whether all ad hoc committee ideas are followed, Martin said, these articles should work for any new agency.

The committeemen earlier concluded that a single new agency should be developed; the boundaries should follow county lines, definitely including Outagamie and Winnebago and probably Calumet, and representation should be mainly by elected officials, not citizens.

Martin said that he "tried to pull together the thoughts that were on the minds of the committee members at the earlier meetings." He sent them a letter, with the proposed articles, in which he asked for comments and ideas for changes by next week so that a mid-February meeting could be set.

Martin sent COG and Northeastern leaders a copy of the articles and said he hoped they would give them fair consideration.

Proposal Rejected Again on Opinion for COG Refund

An Appleton supervisor today failed in his second attempt to get the Outagamie County Board to seek an attorney general's opinion on the legality of an outright return of $61,000 to municipalities for their share in the county's membership in the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG.)

The county had placed the funds in the 1971 budget with the intention of picking up the membership fees of county communities in COG, the aim being to exert pressure to promote a merger of COG and the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

However, Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, in an opinion last month, stated that the county could not become a member of COG while it was a member of Northeastern. The $61,000 had already been budgeted.

In January the county board, over strong objections by Supv. G. Allen Bubolz, voted to apportion the $61,000 back to the communities on the basis of equalized valuation, the same way it was collected.

Bubolz, arguing that the only way the funds could legally be returned to the taxpayers was to hold the money in escrow and use it to reduce next year's tax levy, sought to have the board ask for an attorney general's opinion on that point. His motion lost 23-19

Bubolz repeated his arguments today before the board's finance committee of which he is chairman. Again he was unsuccessful.

Bubolz repeated his earlier question as to whether the county is authorized, as instructed by the board, to reimburse member municipalities for amounts levied them to pay for county membership in COG — a membership declared illegal by Warren.

"The reimbursement which the county contemplates amounts to tax sharing which it seems to me would require express authority by the legislature," Bubolz contended.

"I think the proper course for the county to follow would be to return the appropriation in the general fund and give the county taxpayers credit for it in the 1971 levy," he added Bubolz said his opinion was shared by attorneys he had consulted.

Lone Support

Bubolz's only support in the committee came from Supv. Charles Wussow of Appleton who said he "has seen the county board vote right down the line" on other things that have been illegal in the past

Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt accused Bubolz of making "a federal case" out of a minor point Supv Marvin Babbitt of Seymour told Bubolz he did not go along with a committee "defying a directive of the board."

Bubolz asked that the committee hold up action on returning the money to the municipalities pending an attorney general's opinion, but by a 3-2 vote, committeemen authorized signing vouchers authorizing the $61,000 disbursement immediately.

Voting for the signing were supervisors Eugene Kloes of Appleton, Babbitt and DeLaHunt. Bubolz and Wussow cast dissenting votes.

Telephone Firm Plans Building In Industrial Park

Wisconsin Telephone Co. is exercising an option taken last August on a 4.6-acre track in the Northeast Industrial Park, where the company plans to build an additional garage and office for service vehicles.

The telephone company will pay the city $19,233 for the land.

According to a company spokesman in the Milwaukee main office, the service garage is planned for construction this year.

It will be built to telephone company specifications and leased to the company by the builder. Specifications are expected to be completed in a month or two, the spokesman said, and will be submitted to bidding.

Telephone company service operations for this area are now headquartered in facilities in Neenah and in Appleton on Ballard Road

The new structure will provide additional space and allow for some redistribution of vehicles closer to their regular work areas.

State's Legislature Ranks No. 5 in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Citizens Conference on State Legislatures has ranked Wisconsin fifth in an evaluation of capability among the 50 state lawmaking bodies.

California was rated at the top of the list. New York second, Illinois third, Florida fourth, Iowa sixth, Hawaii seventh, Michigan eighth, Nebraska ninth and Minnesota tenth.

Results of the study by the non-profit, non-partisan organization were announced today. The rating, it said, was based on how well the operations of the legislatures reflected minimum standards of democracy and efficiency.

Each legislature's operating ability was judged on the basis of evidence showing the degree to which it is functional, accountable, informed, independent and representative.

Wisconsin was ranked seventh on "functional," 21st on "accountable," third on "informed," fourth on "independent," and 10th on "representative."

The report praises Wisconsin's Legislature for its openness and accessibility; its control over its use of time, made possible by the unlimited nature of legislative sessions; its informational resources made possible by the variety of professional staff services available, the opportunity afforded to individual legislators for effective legislative action.

The study report said the Wisconsin Senate had improved steadily in recent years but the Assembly has lagged "mainly because of a lack of continuity brought about by frequent changes in party control."

Proposals for strengthening the Wisconsin Legislature recommended by the study group included:

—Reducing the number of Assembly committees from 25 to 13.

—Publishing uniform rules of procedure in the Assembly.

—Speedy printing of bill amendments.

—Improved press facilities.

Also recommended were increasing legislative salaries to the $15,000-$20,000 range from the present $8,900, and the provision of staff assistance to leaders and individual members of both parties.

With reference to opportunities afforded individual members to initiate legislation, the report noted that most of the lawmakers had invidiual office space that legislators are elected from single member districts and that a pre-session orientation conference is provided It also noted approvingly that legislators are prohibited from having an interest in any firm doing business with the state

Professor to Discuss Butterfly Reproduction

Assist. Prof. Allen M. Young, who before joining the Lawrence biology faculty last September was a researcher for the Organization for Tropical Studies, will speak at Lawrence University's Science Colloquium on Thursday.

The coloquium, open to the public, will be at 4:30 p.m. in room 161, Youngchild Hall.

Young's topic will be "Strategies of Reproduction in Tropical Rain Forest Butterflies."

Sanitation Division Asks Help

If the Appleton Sanitation Division isn't allowed to hire two men, Public Works Director Robert Miller says it could mean a cut in services equivalent to stopping refuse collection for 1,000 of the city's homes.

Miller last year transferred two men from the sanitation crew to the city's landfill at Mackville. Since then, refuse collections have been made with the help of part-time employes and regular workers serving overtime.

In a letter to the streets and sanitation committee of the City Council, Miller is asking for funds to hire two additional full-time men

"The alternative to this action," he wrote, "would be to provide additional money for overtime or to reduce the collection service by approximately 6 per cent," which is the percentage of manpower lost by the transfer of the two employes.

Miller explained that a 6 per cent cut in service "could be best illustrated by saying that 50 homes in each ward would no longer receive garbage and refuse collection service."

The city has 20 wards

He added he assumes "that such a reduction in service would not be tolerated."

The works director said he favors hiring full-time men rather than paying overtime because it would be less costly Adding part-time employes, he explained, would cost more than the department budget contains for part-time labor, and also is limited by the city's labor contract which restricts the number of hours part-time employes may work.

The two men were needed at the landfill in order to operate it in compliance with state natural resources regulations The disposal site switched from dump to landfil last summer

Emphasis on Area Water Utility Due

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The area-wide public water utility will probably be more seriously considered as the urbanization of the state continues for the rest of the century, says the water supply division of the state Department of Natural Resources

Officers of the division say they hope the department will put more emphasis upon the desirability of planning for such utilities to serve broader districts with steady increases in the total numbers of consumers of potable water.

The plan was described in a report on water supply methods, problems and future needs prepared for the Council of Environmental Advisers of the parent department.

"It is very possible that the number of individual systems will decrease through consolidation into area-wide utilities," it was said. "Such problems as water quality, well interference, efficient and competent operation and others could be solved by preventing the proliferation of small supply systems and encouraging larger utilities crossing corporate boundaries to develop the best available sources of water rather than to rely on a scattering of wells in the immediate area."

There are now about 650 independent public water utilities in the state, serving about

Phone Number Prefix Sometimes Confusing

Telephone numbers with the prefix 731 don't ring a bell with many Appleton residents and businessmen, and for about 45 customers this could be pretty frustrating

The new prefix has been assigned to new telephone customers since the beginning of the year. Several residents have reported to the telephone company that their callers do not believe these 731 numbers do, in fact, exist in Appleton In some cases, this misunderstanding has resulted in no telephone calls

Richard Van Sistine, local manager for Wisconsin Telephone Co., said the new prefix was necessary to provide room for new numbers in the community This amounts to a capacity of 1,800 new lines that eventually will be assigned to the 731 prefix.

"The 731 prefix numbers do exist in the Appleton calling area, and the public should be aware that these are not long distance calls, nor do they require dialing the numeral 1 to be completed," Van Sistine said

In addition to the 731 prefix, Appleton is served with 733, 734 and 739 prefix codes

Menasha Fire Department Cost Study Awaits Election

MENASHA — Mayor James Adams will delay the first meeting of a committee that will study proposals to lower fire department costs until after the April 6 election.

But he still says he would like the committee to report early enough so the city, if it wants to, can implement changes in time for inclusion in a 1972 budget.

Adams announced appointment of the eight-man committee back on Nov 4, 1970 He said at that time that he would like it to come in with a report and general recommendations by Feb. 15 The committee hasn't met yet, however

Sewer User Fee

Adams said the pressing business of a sewer user fee, and the fact that one of the members appointed to the committee will not seek re-election on April 6 (First Ward Ald Andrew DeLeeuw) prompted him to move back to the due date for the report. But he still wants something implemented by Jan., 1972, which was part of his original proposal also

The committee was asked to study the following proposals

—An all-volunteer fire department.

—A combined, full-time, part-time department.

—A combined police and fire department, creating a public safety force.

—Consolidation with the Neenah fire department.

A combination of any of the above

Firemen Costs

Near the end of 1970, Adams came out with statistics which he felt indicated too much money was being spent on personnel for the fire department

Adams said today that the city should have a sewer user fee "ready for action" by April, the elections will be over and negotiations with fire department personnel will be completed so that the committee can begin meeting then.

Right now, Adams is more worried about a sewer user fee, which will get another lengthy airing at the committee-of-the-whole meeting on Feb. 15.

He said he was sending out letters to industry today, asking them for suggestions and questions on the user fee that can be taken into consideration before passage o fan ordinance that Adams would like to see implemented by July 1.

He said he is also offering to meet personally with industrial representatives on the sewer user proposal.

A redrafted ordinance will be submitted on Feb. 15, he said, but it is not expected to be greatly different from the one brought in recently by City Atty. Richard Steffens.

Adams hopes a public hearing on a user fee ordinance can be held on March 1.

Ramada Inn To Open In Neenah

NEENAH — The dining rooms and cocktail lounge at the new Ramada Inn will open officially on Feb. 12, less than two weeks away.

The announcement came in a news release from Brian Heidel, general manager, who said that a preview is planned for Feb 11, with the official opening the next day.

Although the Little Corporal Coffee Shop, the Valley Inn dining room and cocktail lounge will be opening for business this month, the 110 over night facilities won't be ready for another two or three months

Workmen started late last week moving in bar, dining room and restaurant equipment.

The Little Corporal will be open every day at 7 a.m. offering full breakfasts. It will also feature light meals for luncheons plus cocktails.

The Valley Inn Room, named after the new hotel's predecessor, will be open for luncheons and noon buffets from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. and during the 5:30 to 10:30 p.m. dinner hours The noon buffet will be offered every day except Saturday.

Sunday brunches and Friday night fish fries are also planned, according to Heidel.

The banquet facilities will seat up to 200 persons or can be divided up into four smaller meeting and conference rooms.

State, County Clear Way for Little Lake Bridge

MENASHA — A standoff between Winnebago County and the state highway commission seems to have been solved and an official order for the bridge is expected to be issued sometime next week.

The standoff resulted from the state highway commission being reluctant to issue its finding and ordering the bridge construction until it had a commitment to finance all of the $5,850,000 project.

The county board was holding off on commiting the funds until it received the order for construction from the state highway commission outlining in some detail the construction timetable and financing.

According to Robert Graf, Winnebago County Highway Commissioner, "The (state highway) commission will be putting together the scheduling, financing and dates and then the (county board's) Little Lake Butte des Morts Bridge Committee will meet."

The tentative plan at this time calls for a recommendation from the committee that the county finance a $900,000 additional cost factor.

William Redmond, state highway commission chairman, said last week that the finding and order, the first step toward bridge construction, is completed and ready to be signed.

But the signing won't come until the financial commitment is received from the county.

All the problems started after the construction plans were sent to the commission from its District 3 headquarters in Green Bay. The original cost estimate was $4.5 million, but with a four-lane span, plus grade separation at Tayco Street added to rising construction costs, the cost rose to the $5,850,000 level, meaning that another $900,000 would have to be found.

Under terms of the state's long bridge act and Bridge Bonding program, the state pays a third of the cost, with local municipalities paying the other two thirds.

In this case, the local municipalities include the City and Town of Menasha and Winnebago County. City and Town voters overwhelmingly endorsed their municipality's spending $700,000 and $500,000 respectively for the bridge. The county board has already set aside $1.8 million for its share, putting the total local funds at $3 million.

But with the increase in costs, the local commitment grew by $900,000, so it is expected that the county board will be asked to furnish the money.

The state highway commission two and a half weeks ago went into the project in some detail and came up with the proposal which will be presented to the Little Lake Bridge Committee.

Soviet Tightens Hold On Egyptian Leaders

Russian Naval Base in Mediterranean Seen If UN Peace Efforts Are Failure

BY ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The dangerous prospect that the Soviet Union may soon have a Soviet-controlled naval base on the Mediterranean coast of Egypt is now being taken here with utmost seriousness.

Equally foreboding, pro-Western Arab leaders themselves are now saying privately that if Israel does not soon agree to withdraw from the Egyptian Sinai Peninsula — a key objective of UN Ambassador Gunnar Jarring's Arab-Israeli peace

mission — the Egyptian government may come under the eventual political control of Moscow as the price for continued Soviet aid

Although the fears of pro-Western Egyptian politicians about growing Soviet political control inside Egypt are couched in carefully restrained language, the danger of such a calamitous political development cannot be overstated. It could mean, as a starter, a Soviet-flag naval base on the Mediterranean, a far cry from the present arrangement under which the Egyptians give the Russians supply and loading facilities at Egyptians give the Russians supply and loading facilities at Egyptian ports

Beyond that, it could mean gradual Soviet political control over the government of President Anwar Sadat — or a new, far more pro-Soviet government put in power by Soviet pressure.

Balanced Government

This prospect may seem ridiculous to many American politicians who hold the mistaken view that the Soviet Union already wields something close to total control over Egypt

In fact, however, the new government of President Sadat, who succeeded Gamal Abdel Nasser, was carefully structured to balance off pro-Soviet and pro-American politicians For example, the new prime minister, Mohammed Fawzi, has long been regarded as Western-oriented Aly Sabri, the leading radical politician with strong pro-Soviet sympathies, was made a deputy prime minister.

The failure of the United Nations' new peace effort to break any new ground — at least thus far — is tipping this internal political balance sharply in Moscow's direction every day the deadlock continues. With the U. S., as Israel's No. 1 ally damned by the Egyptian intelligensia, the army, and ruling politicians, Washington is held responsible for Israel's continued occupation of the Sinai. Accordingly, the built-in political dynamic in Egypt works progressively against the United States.

This, in turn, is reducing the influence of pro-Western members of Sadat's government and increasing the political power of the pro-Soviet clique now jockeying for supreme power inside the government.

Consolidate Influence

The Russians are naturally taking full advantage of this political dynamic. In exchange for the vast military aid going to Egypt, they are demanding ever higher political rewards. Thus, consolidation of Soviet influence inside Cairo now grows at an alarming pace

Moreover, even the most staunch pro-Western Arab statesmen say flatly that if they are presented the choice of "surrender" to Israel on the Sinai question or "surrender" to Moscow by ceding more and more political power to the Russians, the white flag would go without question to the Russians.

This danger is far more apparent to top U. S. policy-makers today than a year ago, when Nasser himself privately began to warn the Nixon administration of his inability to withstand Soviet political pressures forever At that time, the Pentagon was the main source of urgent advice to President Nixon to apply pressue on Israel to evaluate the Sinai. The well-spring of that advice was the Navy, where the mere possibility of a Soviet-flag base on the Mediterranean is convulsive.

Since then, however, other prime Presidential advisers are coming to see the political-military equation in the same light that until Israel withdraws from the Sinai, an area equal to about one - tenth of Egypt, Soviet influence over Egypt's internal politics can only go higher, with an outright takeover as the ultimate reward

Until recently, those who now accept this argument tended to dismiss it as simply Egyptian sophistry - a scarecrow thrown up by Cairo in hopes of forcing Washington to pressure Israel off the Sinai Now, however, they acknowledge it as a paramount danger, the removal of which is possible only by an Israeli decision to withdraw from the Sinai as part of an overall settlement

Lucey Announces 2 Appointments

MADISON (AP)— Two more appointments were made by Gov Patrick J Lucey during the weekend as his new administration continued steps toward firmer control of state departments

Daniel C Smith was named temporary administrator of the Department of Revenue and Stratton E. Hicks was selected state highway engineer - designate.

Smith takes over for James Morgan, who resigned effective today, until a permanent replacement is found

Hicks will assume his new job while the present engineer, W J. Burmeister, performs his duties as president of the American Association of State Highway Engineers. And he will replace Burmeister permanently next year.

Terminology Is A Big Problem

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — There is no problem at the Pentagon in organizing bombing and strafing raids in Indochina. The real difficulty is what to call them.

A special section of the Defense Department has been set up to supply the secretary of defense and his spokesmen with various alternatives to describe the air war in Indochina.

Every morning promptly at

Buchwald

8 o'clock, the committee which is call BULL (Bureau for Lethal Logic) meets to discuss what the day's raids will be called.

A typical meeting goes something like this.

"We've got 20 B52s bombing Cambodia today What do we say we're doing?"

"We're interdicting enemy supply routes from the North?"

"We said that yesterday. Why don't we say the strike is a defensive measure to speed up the Vietnamization program?"

"We used that phrase three days ago to explain why our helicopters were supporting Cambodian troops."

"Why don't we say we're bombing North Vietnam to enhance the Nixon policy of speeding up the withdrawal of American boys from Vietnam?"

"That's not bad But it would be stronger if we announced the raid was made to wipe out Communist sanctuaries that were being used to build up an offensive which is expected to be launched after the rainy season"

"How would we say it?"

"We could say that our air operation in Cambodia was being conducted to limit the enemy potential before they can bring it to bear effectively against friendly forces in the area."

"That's beautiful, General. No one's ever put it that way before."

"This may sound as if it's coming from left field, gentlemen, but I thought we might blame Congress for the raid. The secretary could announce that all he was doing was following the letter of the law which was passed by Congress to support any action by the President that would bring our American boys back home."

"It's worth running up the flagpole, Colonel."

"One of the people in my office had a unique suggestion. He thought we might announce that the B52s were not bombing in Cambodia but were just making a defensive ordnance drop on fixed enemy positions."

"I like the sound of that. Let's write it down before we forget it."

"Has anyone thought about saying that we were neutralizing a free-fire area?"

"Neutralizing is a good word. It has an innocent ring to it."

"I don't want to top you, but what if we said we were neutralizing Cambodia to protect its neutrality?"

"Wow. That's got everything it it."

"I know you guys think I'm a hardliner, but I think we should stop beating around the bush and announce we're bombing the hell out of Cambodia to kill as many Dinks as we can, so the dirty Red SOBs will become true believers"

"You want the secretary of defense to say that?"

"Why not? That's what we're doing, aren't we?"

"General, wash out your mouth with soap and water."

1-Way Loop Faces Delay In Menasha

MENASHA — A proposed one-way traffic loop around the city's downtown will be discussed at tonight's committee of the whole meeting, but the chairman of the public safety committee said today that action on a resolution asking the state for a trial period for the system will probably wait for the mid-February council meeting.

First Ward Ald. Andrew (Bud) DeLeeuw wants more discussion of the resolution before action is taken.

The proposed system would route traffic one-way north from the Washington Street-Nicolet Boulevard intersection along Nicolet Ahnaip Street, over the Racine Street bridge and up Racine Street to the intersection of Racine and Third streets.

The system would then take traffic, one-way west on Third to Tayco Street, and south on Tayco and Washington streets back to the original intersection.

At least that's the way the proposal reads now. DeLeeuw wants to give other aldermen a chance to propose changes or ask questions before action is taken, however.

A joint meeting of the public safety and street and sanitation committees was held recently, when police and fire chiefs, the public works director, Mayor James Adams and others voiced opinions on the system. Nearly everyone there indicated support for a trial.

The proposed resolution would ask the state highway commission for approval of a 120-day trial period for the system (March 15 to July 15). If the city, and the state, likes what they see during that time, they can make it permanent.

Hephner Co-Author of Bill Opposing Corporate Farming

MADISON — State Rep. Hephner, D-Chilton, today announced the introduction of the 1971 version of the corporate farm bill.

Hephner, a co-author of the bill, pointed out that the bill basically would prevent large corporations from acquiring land for farming operations.

Hephner also pointed out that this version of the corporate farm bill would not require corporations presently holding farmlands to divest themselves of such holdings.

"With economic conditions as they are in Wisconsin, I would find it difficult to support legislation that may interfere with existing rural business presently operating in Wisconsin, and thereby increase unemployment."

"The problem in Wisconsin is not that corporations presently hold too much farmland, but that continued purchasing could create a problem," Hephner said.

The bill pro for a forfeiture of $1,00 any violation of its provisions and declares that each day the violation continues constitutes a separate offense and is subject to a daily forfeiture of $1,000.

"The provisions of this bill and the penalties for violation of those provisions should be tough enough to deter any corporatin from acquiring any additional farmland in Wisconsin," he said.

Corporations exempted from the provision of this bill include:

A cooperative corporation, 75 per cent of whose membership shall be actual farmers or persons who depend principally on farming for a living. This would include any farmer or farm family that decides to incorporate his farm.

Corporations engaged in forestry management or the production of forest products or holding land for forestry purposes only.

Corporations acquiring, holding or leasing land for agricultural experiments not for profit.

Commercial seed firms raising seed primarily for resale.

Corporations leasing or renting land on which to carry on farming operations.

Mothers' March To End Sunday

Due to the cold weather, the March of Dimes Mothers' March has been extended through this week in the Fox Cities.

Mothers will canvass the residential areas in an effort to raise funds for the Outagamie-Winnebago Unit. Oshkosh State University students have volunteered to take care of that city this week.

In areas where the mothers are not marching, envelopes are being circulated from home to home. The last person listed on the envelope is asked to return it to the captains. If for some reason they are not able to do so, they may deliver them to the nearest fire station.

70 per cent of the total state population.

Officers of the division said that authorization for district-wide utilities without necessary regard for corporate limits of municipalities may require additional legislation.

They said that "preparation of such plans should begin now before population pressures and increased water use necessitate independent crash programs." They should be worked out with local, county and regional planning agencies, it was said.

Water supply demands will grow, in the view of the state supervising bureau, and the waterworks of the state will be required "to deliver more water at reasonable costs." They said they hope to develop technology for better delivery of water and better treatment at lower costs.

Wisconsin now is consuming 440,000,000 gallons of water from public water utilities daily, and the demand will continue to grow for the remainder of the century.

The 520,000,000 gallon daily requirement foreseen for the year 2,000 won't be particulary dramatic, they noted, but it will represent for the most part the growth of demand and consumption in the urban areas. Some of the demands in the metropolitan communities will double, and possiby triple, according to such estimates.

Assembly Seeks Alternative To Direct Parochial Grants

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Representatives of both political parties in the Assembly are pushing for an alternative to the controversial proposal for direct state tuition grants to the parents of parochial and nonpublic elementary and high school students to recognize their cost of such instruction.

A Democratic bill which names Rep. Raymond Toblaz of Milwaukee as a principal author asks that the issue of subsidies to parents be averted by a redistribution of state school aid payments in such a way as to credit localities for eligibility according to their total school enrollments, public and private.

Higher Subsidies

Under present law school aids are based on the average enrollment totals in the public schools only.

The alternative suggested would have the effect of providing substantially higher subsidies to those localities which have considerable enrollments of their school age residents in the private schools, and thus provide an indirect concession to their parents to the extent that their public school tax liability would be adjusted downward.

That the plan may be gaining some strength among legislators who hesitate about the campaign of Citizens for Educational Freedom and others for direct money payments to parents for tuition is shown by the filing of an identical bill in the Assembly by the Republicans.

The major author of the plan in the Assembly is Rep. Donald Helgeson, Manitowoc, one of the rising leaders of the Republican majority in the lower house. A co-sponsor is Rep. Harold Froehlich of Appleton, the Republican minority leader in the house which is under Democratic party control.

Most opinions holds that if the direct tuition grant plan is permitted to come to a vote, it is likely to win quick approval in both houses. Two years ago it was sped through the State Senate with ease, but was sidetracked in the crush of adjournment business late in the year in the Legislature's lower house.

Lately legislators have found some resistance factors of undertermined weight. The Democratic state administration is deeply concerned about the outlook for a huge financial deficit. The tuition grant plan would add $26 million to the commitments of the state budget

Gov. Patrick Lucey has carefully avoided a position in the dispute about direct grants. Other legislators are reluctant to arouse the fierce fight on the floor that they feel is inevitable if the grant issue is permitted to come to a vote, as shown by the plan of Rep. Lewis Mittness of Janesville, one of the principal standing committee chairmen of the lower house, to put the grant issue to an advisory referendum vote.

The plan to count nonpublic school pupils in computing the eligibility of localities for state school aids would force up the appropriations for those aids, but it would avoid the bitter resistance of those who believe direct grants to parents in constitutionally invalid, and possibly, prevent a test of any grant legislation in the courts

Kellett Proposal Would Aid Districts

MADISON — Most area school districts would get substantially increased state aids if a major proposal of the Kellett Commission on education goes into effect.

According to the governor's commission plan, state funds would pay for 40 per cent of operating costs for districts which serve kindergarten through 12th grade pupils. The present average is 30 per cent.

The aid formula currently places an equalized guaranteed property value of $43,500 behind each student. Under the proposal, that value would increase to $59,000 in 1971-72 and $64,000 in 1972-73.

The aim of the increase would be to relieve property, not raise school spending. A requirement for each district receiving the increases would be that its budget not exceed the average increase of the last five years

Listed below are the amounts of actual aid received in area schools this year, and the estimated amount possible in the next two bienniums. The figures are based on projected enrollments, property valuations, and operational costs as estimated by the state Department of Public Instructions. All of the districts except Brillion Chilton, New Holstein, Stockbridge, and Almond, show increases in aid for both years.

Brown County: Wrightstown, $101,008; 178,000; 182,000.

Calumet County: Brillion, $51,050; 67,000; 56,000 Chilton, $265,016; 480,000, 467,000, Hilbert, $30,498; 122,000; 134,000 New Holstein, $174,820, 369,000, 301,000 Stockbridge $15,387; 24,000; 15,000.

Milwaukee Drubs Pistons, 131-104

58.3 Per Cent Shooting Enables Bucks to Triumph

MADISON (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks wasted a 22-point lead Sunday night before subduing the Detroit Pistons 131-104 in what Coach Larry Costello likened to "winning two games."

The National Basketball Association club "played hard when we had to," Costello said. "We built up a good lead, and then when they cut it down, we started playing again."

Costello did his talking after the game. Detroit coach Butch Van Breda Kolff did his chattering during the game, was awarded two technical fouls, and was ejected by referee Jack Madden.

Has 33 Technicals

He is the NBA leader with 33 technicals, has been ejected six times for tandem technicals, and has been ejected three times by Madden. Van Breda Kolff, ousted in the final quarter, wasn't talking about it.

"Talk to the refs about that," he said later.

Milwaukee converted 58.3 per cent of its shots from the field to Detroit's 41.6 per cent. Milwaukee led 51-47 in rebounds, with Lew Alcindor getting 10 and Bob Dandridge 15 for the Bucks.

Milwaukee miscues helped Detroit to a 31-29 lead after the first quarter. Then a 10-point surge helped move Milwaukee to a 47-38 lead, and two 61-49 at halftime.

The Bucks kept rolling to a 22-point, 87-65 advantage which the Pistons trimmed to eight points at 102-94. That's when the Bucks opened up again in what Costello called the second game.

Alcindor had an easy night, trying only 21 field goals and completing 12. He led the club with 28 points. Jon McGlocklin added 24, and Dandridge 23.

Dave Bing, with 26 points, was off his usual mark, hitting only eight of 21 field goal attempts for Detroit.

The Pistons were also saddled with the absence of Jim Walker, who remained home with a sore shoulder.

The game in Dane County Coliseum drew 9,035 persons. The Bucks, whose next home game is Feb. 8 against Phoenix, have two more games scheduled in Madison.

Bowls 1,668 Total

Anna Mae Burns, Of New London, Leads State Test

Anna Mae Burns, New London, racked up a 1,668 total to hold the all-events lead after the first weekend of action in the State Women's Bowling Tournament at Lakeroad Lanes and the 41 Bowl.

She cracked a 546 set in single, had 565 in the team event and rolled 557 in doubles.

She combined with Lorraine Gruetzmacher for a 1,099 doubles count, good for second place in the Class A division.

Agnes Kurth of Fond du Lac fired a 588 single to top Class A singles. Lois Groeschl, Chilton, ranks third with 581 with lines of 199, 190 and 192.

Tops Class B Singles

Mary Ann Wettstein, Fond du Lac, tops Class B singles with a 568 count, including the weekend's top game of 234.

Joanne Szydel, Manitowoc, is tops in Class C with 542. Barb Lenz, Menasha has 522 for fourth and Leanne Zimdars, Clintonville 518 (including a 221 line) for fifth.

Top team places by area teams include seconds by Schiff, Shoes, Neenah, and Tupperware, Menasha, in Class C and D, respectively.

George Archer Wins Tourney By 3 Strokes

Dave Eichelberger Second, Four Tied For Third Place

By BOB GREEN

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "You can't play well if you're not healthy," George Archer said. "It's been a long time, but I feel fine now, just fine."

Archer, plagued with a variety of health problems since winning the 1969 Masters, had just stormed in with a final-round 65 and scored his first victory in almost two years in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open golf tournament.

His 272 total was 16 under par on the oceanside Torrey Pines Golf Club course and three strokes better than second place Dave Eichelberger, who had a final 68.

Jack Nicklaus, who led the tournament at one point, had a 66 for 277 and was tied for third at that figure with Miller Barber, Paul Harney and Bob Stone. Harney had a 69 and Barber and Stone 70s.

Stomach Trouble

Archer was off the tour for a while after his Masters victory because of stomach troubles. Then last year he developed a "tennis elbow," calcium deposits in the left elbow.

"Sometimes it would get so bad I couldn't lift the club," he said. "Other times it was not that bad, but I was favoring the left side. And you just can't play good golf without a solid left arm.

"Now I'm on some pain-killing medication that seems to do the job."

He also attributed a worn red sweater, a battered golf ball and a touch of fog with help in picking up his $30,000 first-place check.

"I'll admit to being superstiti-

Ralph Mouser Named Pro at Reid Muni

Ralph E. Mouser, Jr., 28, LaGrange Park, Ill., has been hired as the new golf pro at Reid Municipal Golf Course.

Mouser's appointment was announced at a press conference in the Appleton Recreation Department office this morning. It is effective immediately. Mouser replaces Mitch Joannes, whose contract expired last Oct. 15.

Ralph Gertsch, chairman of the Appleton Park and Recreation Commission, and William Heerman, chairman of the commission's golf committee, said more than 50 applications were submitted. Gertsch, Heerman and Lloyd Koehnke, superintendent of recreation, acted as a committee to review the applications and interview the best applicants. Six of the applicants were interviewed.

Previously, the job of pro at Muni was on a 6-month contract basis. Now the job description has been changed. Mouser's prime responsibilities will be as pro and manager at Reid, but he is a year-around city employee and during the winter months will work with Koehnke as assistant recreation supervisor.

"We feel having Mr. Mouser available on a year-round basis will prove beneficial to all the people of Appleton as well as to the golfers in particular," Gertsch said. "He also can be more directly involved in year-around activities relating to golf — including budgeting, management of play, club house facilities, and long-range planning," Gertsch said.

Joe Kneice will continue as superintendent of the golf course with responsibilities for maintenance and upkeep of the grounds.

Mouser is a graduate of the PGA Business School in Chicago and has served as the assistant pro at several Chicago area courses, including the famed Medinah Country Club. While an assistant there under Jack Bell, he served with other assistants who now are head pros at the West Bend Country Club, South Hills at Fond du Lac, and North Shore, Menasha.

Mouser is married. His wife, Sandra, is a registered nurse. They have no children.

Duluth's Swor Cops Ski Test At Eau Claire

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (AP) — Greg Swor of Duluth, Minn., won the Class A title Sunday in the 28th annual Eau Claire Ski Club jumping tournament, one the trials leading to selection of a 1972 U.S. Olympic ski jump team.

Swor, with leaps of 269 and 259 feet, accumulated 233.1 points to defeat Jaakko Marmi of Finland, one of several foreign entries.

Temperatures dropped to 8 degrees below zero, and skiers were further chilled by tailwinds of 25 miles an hour.

Th 250-foot distance record on 73-meter Silver Mine Hill was eclipsed five times. The old mark had been set by Bill Bakke of Madison, Wis., 1970 national champion.

Class A—Greg Swor, Duluth, Minn., 269 and 259 feet, 233.1 points; Jaakko Marmi, Finland, 251-241, 220; Vidar Nilsgard, Norway, 243-248, 219.7; Bill Bakke, Madison, 248 241, 215.9; Jerry Martin, Minneapolis, 236-238, 207.7.

Class B—Jim Schilling, Cloquet, Minn., 231 226, 183.7; Rick Kern, Duluth, 217-215, 174.4; Joe Smith, Minneapolis, 210-233, 173.5.

Juniors—Arne Haugen, Norway, 251-254, 222.4; Inge Lungegren, Norway, 243-256, 208.2; Bill Polanka, Duluth, 238 236, 197.7.

Veterans—Keith Zuelke, Eau Claire, 190-218, 160.2; Don Hurst, Ishpeming, Mich., 221-184, 157.6; Jerry Lewis, Duluth, 190 185, 143.7.

Bullets Can't Cope With Knicks Speed In 125-95 Defeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What's faster than a speeding Bullet? Easy, a speeding New York Knickerbocker.

"They're very good against the fast break and get back so fast," said Baltimore Coach Gene Shue after the Knicks whipped the Bullets 125-95 in the National Basketball Association Sunday. "We wanted to run them all game, but couldn't do it."

It appeared that Shue wasn't quite expecting a pepped-up Knickerbocker team. And he wasn't

"I just thought the Knicks were ready to be beat," said Shue, pointing to their busy schedule of late that included Saturday night's 106-105 loss to Philadelphia. "But we didn't generate enough offense.

Coach Red Holzman of the Knicks pointed out that Baltimore's loss of Gus Johnson and Eddie Miles, both injured, didn't help the Bullets.

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Boston 132, Philadelphia 126; Atlanta 131, San Diego 120; Cleveland 117, Buffalo 108; Chicago 131, Cincinnati 99; Los Angeles 133, Portland 120 and Milwaukee 131, Detroit 104.

In the American Basketball Association, it was Carolina 125, New York 121; Floridians 95, Texas 92; Virginia 126; Pittsburgh 122; Utah 138, Kentucky 129 and Indiana 124, Denver 104.

New York held big leads mounting to 18 points in the first half, but a late surge by Baltimore whittled it to 56-47 at intermission. Then the Knicks pulled away behind Walt Frazier's 29 points.

Dave Cowens and Jo Jo White hit clutch free throws as Boston scored its last 13 points from the foul line to beat Philadelphia.

Bruins Obtain Mike Walton

Veteran Had Been Suspended by Leafs Following Dispute

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins, bent on a National Hockey League scoring record, boasted additional firepower today with the acquisition of veteran Mike Walton, a potential super star who had a falling out with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Bruins, the mightiest scoring machine in NHL history with 239 goals in just 49 games while en route to shattering their league record of 303 set in the 1968-69 season, acquired Walton Sunday night in a three-way deal with Toronto and the Philadelphia Flyers.

The 26-year-old Walton scored 73 goals the past three seasons, but ran into trouble with the Toronto brass this season. He scored just three goals and had 10 assists before he was suspended by the Leafs.

The Bruins, who own a six-point lead with one game in hand on the New York Rangers in the East Division race, started the Walton deal rolling by sending rookie Dan Schock to Philadelphia recently for "future considerations."

Then, to complete the three-way trade, the Bruins sent rookie prospect Rick McLeish to the Flyers. Philadelphia, in turn, traded goalie Bernie Parent, a former Bruin, to Toronto for goalie Bruce Gamble, a 32-year-old veteran.

In the deal, the Leafs gave up their No. 1 draft choice to Philadelphia, and the Flyers swapped their No. 2 selection to Toronto.

Muskego Driver Cops Snowmobile Race at Big Bend

BIG BEND (AP) — Allen Cozington of Muskego won the Modified Class I title Sunday in the Big Bend Winter Festival snowmobile trials, which drew an estimated 5,000 persons despite subzero weather.

Jim Helving of Franksville won Modified II, Tom Punko of Brookfield took Modified III, Russell Kapitcke won Modified IV, Mike Goffschalk won Modified V, and Howard Wolf of Milwaukee was the open class winner.

In Green Bay, Scott Forrer, 15, of Mequon beat Mike Luaters of Grafton for the junior snowmobile title of the Green Bay Winter Holiday Saturday.

Winnebago Sno-Classics

5 Fox Cities Area Drivers Capture Snowmobile Titles

SHERWOOD — Despite bone-chilling cold and sub-zero temperatures throughout the day, a large number of spectators and a total of 88 snowmobilers participated in the third annual Winnebago Sno-Classics at High Cliff State Park Sunday.

Racing was on the half-mile oval track Sunday, following the cross country event which was held Saturday under similar conditions. The races were sponsored by the Menasha Sherwood Lions Club.

Five Fox Cities area drivers took titles in the racing Sunday headed by Wally Mayo, Appleton, who won the Modified II class and placed second in Modified I while driving an Artic Cat.

Ken Konop, Brillion, won the Class C Stock race, with a Polaris; Lyal Manteufel, Neenah, won Modified III, with an Artic Cat; Earl Lankford, Fremont, took Modified IV with a Ski Doo and Al Stern, New London, was the Modified V winner with an Artic Cat.

Despite extremely fast track conditions, because of the crisp weather, only one mishap was recorded during the races. Bob Bennett, Greenville, rolled his machine over twice. Bennett was taken to a hospital by ambulance where he was examined and released.

In a special race, Sherwood village president, Clarence Zahringer sped to victory over a Menasha alderman in the competition for area disc jockeys. Oliver Hansen of WKAU Kaukauna, took first place.

Sunday's oval racing results:

Black Hawks Win

Boston Defense Halts Blues, 6-0

By DAVE O'HARA

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins are proud of their high-scoring attack, and getting a little bit fed up with uncomplimentary remarks about their defensive play.

"Sure, offense is our bread and butter, but we can play a lot of defense when we have to," Boston Coach Tom Johnson said Sunday after the Bruins overwhelmed the St. Louis Blues 6-0 in a nationally televised game, interrupted by the moon space shot.

The Bruins moved six points in front of the New York Rangers, while still holding a game in hand in the East Division race. In other action, Los Angeles tied New York 2-2, Minnesota defeated California 7-1, Buffalo whipped Vancouver 6-1, Philadelphia downed Detroit 3-1, and Chicago rapped Montreal 4-1.

"We scored six goals, but I was more impressed by our play on defense," Johnson said. "We were a lot tighter and showed that we can play defensively as well as anyone. In fact, we play better hockey when we play defense. That only helps to make more scoring chances."

Home Sterak at 17

Veteran Eddie Johnston earned his second shutout of the season kicking out 23 shots, as the Bruins dominated the Blues and fashioned their 17th straight home victory, just five under the NHL record set by Boston's 1929-30 team.

Center Phil Esposito scored his 45th goal and added two assists in boosting his league-scoring lead to 96 points in just 49 games. Esposito, who set the record of 126 points two years ago, is being chased by defenseman Bobby Orr, a talented teammate with 82 points.

Orr, hockey's Mr. Everything last season when he topped the league with 120 points, scored his 21st and 22nd goals and picked up his 60th assist.

Other Boston scorers were Wayne Cashman, rookie Reggie Leach and Derek Sanderson.

Rangers Tied

While the Bruins were manhandling the Blues, their closest challengers in the NHL's East Division, the Rangers, were settling for a 2-2 deadlock with Los Angeles, although they outshot the Kings 38-22.

Juha Widing's goal midway through the final period forged the tie and goalie Denis DeJordy checked the Rangers with some superb netminding. Mike Byers scored the Kings' first goal while Rod Gilbert and Pete Stemkowski batted home rebounds for the Rangers.

The Kings are unbeaten in six games while the Rangers have won only once in their last eight starts and trail the Bruins by six points.

The Black Hawks opened a 17-point bulge over St. Louis in the West Division as Dennis Hull scored twice and Jim Pappin and Eric Nesterenko once each against the Canadiens.

Scores Hat Trick

Newly acquired Gord Labossiere scored a three-goal hat trick in his home debut with Minnesota and picked up an assist, as well, as the North Stars walloped California and remained a point behind fourth-place Philadelphia in the West.

Labossiere was dealt from Los Angeles to Minnesota last week.

Philadelphia's Gary Dornhoefer snapped a 1-1 tie with 3:21 left in the game against Detroit and then provided an empty-net goal with one second remaining. Detroit's Guy Charron and Philly's Lew Morrison traded goals earlier in the final period.

LU Matmen Settle for 19-19 Draw

Ron Richardson's Late Pin Saves Vikes From Loss

The Lawrence University matmen, who have never been defeated by Ripon, had to settle for a 19-19 tie in Saturday afternoon's action.

The two undefeated LU grapplers both registered victories. In the 118-pound division, the Vikes' Dennis Quinlan captured his fourth win without a setback by scoring a fall over Mike Knox in 7:18.

Lawrences' Ron Richardson (4-0) pinned his combatant, Bruce Haskin, in 7:43. With only 17 seconds left in the match, and LU on the short end of a 19-14 score, Richardson, a heavyweight grappler, nailed Haskin to enable his team to escape with a tie.

Steve Shephard (2-0), was forced to forfeit his 190-pound match to Ripon's John Williams, because of a sore shoulder.

LAWRENCE 19, RIPON 19.

118—Dennis Quinlan (L) fall in 7:18 over Mike Knox.

126—Ike Henrickson (L) beat Tom Melville, 4-2.

AHS-W's Tickets for Neenah Game Are Being Put on Sale

Appleton West's supply of tickets for Saturday night's basketball game at Neenah will be sold only to parents of players, season ticket holders and students.

From 12:45 to 5 p.m. today and Tuesday, tickets will be sold to players' parents and to those season ticket holders who began subscribing to the West ticket plan in 1969-70 or earlier.

New (1970-1) season ticket holders will have access to ducats beginning at 12:45 p.m. Wednesday — for as long as the supply lasts.

Student tickets will be sold to activity plan members Tuesday and Wednesday. If any tickets remain, they will be sold on a first-come basis Thursday.

Leaders Upset in Women's Volleyball

KAUKAUNA — Corner Rexall knocked Mike's Bar No. 2 from the ranks of the undefeated in the first of three Women's Volleyball League games.

The loss gives the National League leaders an 8-1 record. Mike's Bar No. 1 (8-1) took three from Hietpas Motors to hold the American League lead. Ranch Bar won three to run its record to 7-2 in the National division.

P-C School Ends

350 Ski Students Brave Numbing Cold

BY SKIP HAMMERBERG

NEW LONDON — Some called them brave, others called them foolhardy, but whichever they were, about 350 students returned in sub-zero temperatures to complete the Post-Crescent Ski School at View Ridge, Saturday morning.

The students were served by 16 instructors.

Students Eager

Classes resumed from the point where most of the original 800 students had left off the week before. The students were taught to convert their snow-plowing techniques into the stem turn, and from the stem turn to the stem christie.

Again the hill was dotted with the groups working on advanced techniques.

Students were eager to show their instructors how much they had advanced, and how well they could stand. However with drifts on the hill, interspersed with fast-riding hard-packed snow, many again displayed their ability to fall — though they fell properly.

Due to the high winds and temperatures that never got above five below — the chill factor was almost 45 below — classes would run for about an hour, then students could go to warm up in the chalet.

In spite of the cold, instructors reported that their classes progressed well, and by the end of the morning all the students had advanced their skills.

Patches were presented to the students who participated in the program. Instructors were given a gift from the Post-Crescent for donating their services.

Badger Hockey Team Defeated By U.S. Nationals

MADISON (AP)—The University of Wisconsin hockey squad sampled international playing rules during the weekend, and received a 7-1 lesson from the U.S. Nationals.

The Badgers, 6-6 in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association, picked up its only goal on a second-period shot by Jim Young.

Earl Schmidt Slams 663 in Couples Loop

Earl Schmidt, who has a national honor count to his credit already this season, rocked a 663 series in the Candy Bar Couples League at the 41 Bowl Friday night.

Schmidt had a 234 game with the leading series, but honors in that department went to Dick Mittlestadt for his 247 singleton. Dick finished with a 601 series.

Dee Breuer came through with one of the top women's performances when she blasted a 587 series in the Comic Couples League at the 41 Bowl. The series included a 219 game.

Dick Deeg slammed a 229 game and 582 series, Robert Van Fossen had a 227 game and Clair Popp had a 211 line and 547 series.

Sunday action in the Post-Crescent Couples League at Hahn's Lanes was paced by Jerry Ellenbecker with a 621 series.

Adam Berg cracked a 237 game, Dan Schuh had a 613 series and Larry Heegemann smacked a 601 total in the Zodiac Couples League at Jerry's Lanes, Kimberly, recently. Dave Henderson had a 579 count.

In the Knights of Columbus Couples League at the 41 Bowl Sunday, Ed Flood led the way with a 613 series.

"Ham" Baldock jolted a 244 game and 608 series to sweep honors in the Football Couples League at the Super Bowl Sunday.

Terry Mulder blasted a 255 game and 575 series to lead the Fruit Couples League at the Super Bowl Friday. In the high game, Mulder had a string of eight strikes in a row.

For the women, Lee Mullins had a 210 game and Judy Holzknecht hit a 202 count.

Bill Brandt cracked a 230 game and 608 series to lead the way in the Bird Couples League at Hahn's Lanes Sunday.

tious," the 6-foot-6 former ranch hand said. "This is the same sweater I wore when I won the Masters. And I played the same ball for the last 12 holes. I felt I had it going with that ball and just didn't want to change."

Most pros change balls every third or fourth hole, but Archer started a string of four consecutive birdies on the ninth that propelled him to his seventh tour victory.

That string pushed him in front of Nicklaus, who was playing several holes ahead of him and had held the lead.

"I was the tournament leader when I was on the 13th hole," Nicklaus said. "I thought I could win from there, but every time I looked up, Archer was making a birdie."

Amherst Gets No. 50

Little Chute Matmen Win Title at Kohler

Little Chute won its third straight title at the Kohler Invitational Saturday, while Amherst finally got win 50 in a row in wrestling action.

The wrestling tournament evolved into a dual contest between the host school and Little Chute. Kohler placed eight wrestlers in the final and the Mustangs nine. Kohler won six and Little Chute five individual crowns.

Team standings were Little Chute, 88; Kohler, 85; Elkhart Lake 42; and Stockbridge, 39.

Amherst, twice-delayed in a bid for its 50th straight dual victory, took it out on Iola-Scandinavia, 35-11. Amherst coach Fran Bremmer wasn't entirely pleased with the performance.

"We were stale," he said. "We didn't move well. It's just being out of action that long, I guess." The Falcons were scheduled to meet Pittsville two weeks ago, but after travelling to the site were informed the bout hadn't been scheduled. Last week the official failed t show at Iola, delaying the bout until Saturday.

Docking Device Key to Lunar Landing Decision

And later: "Right here in the very tip of the probe, it's clean I don't see anything fishy about that."

No Clue

Then he found the scratches. Mission Control had no clue on their cause

No word from space indicated disappointment by the Apollo 14 crewmen who went aloft with the knowledge that the future of the space program might hinge on their success

At one point Shepard suggested going outside the spacecraft to make repairs But Mission Control said to try docking again

"I got a hard dock," said Roosa one hour and 44 minutes after the first docking attempt It indicated the immediate problem was solved. His words were as important to this apollo 14 mission as Shepard's "Everything is A-O K !" on America's first space flight nearly 10 years ago

The launch seen by a half million people at Cape Kennedy, Fla , and millions on television, was 40 minutes late because of clouds that were layered 4 000 to 10,000 feet above the Saturn 5 rocket

More Confident

"At least it's more comfortable than in the old spacecraft," astronaut boss Donald K. "Deke" Slayton radioed Shepard during the hold

"Oh my, yes!" replied the 47-year-old Shepard, whose 15-minute suborbital flight on Freedom 7 propelled America on its course to the moon

A condition in his ear made Shepard ineligible for further space flights and he labored as chief of the astronaut office, watching other men go on to ever greater achievements

Secretly he had an operation Cured of his ear problem, he regained flight status and was assigned the commander's couch on Apollo 14—the 24th U S ship to carry men into space

If Antares lands, Shepard and Mitchell will become the fifth and sixth humans to disturb the ancient dust of the moon

Unfinished Mission

Their challenge is to complete the mission Apollo 13 left unfinished—to bring back rocks formed 4 6 billion years ago at the birth of that world and ours

Apollo 13 was 205,000 miles from earth and a day away from the moon last April 13 when an oxygen tank exploded That wiped out any hope of landing and the astronauts used their nose-to-nose lunar module to pump electricity and oxygen to the command craft for their voyage back home

President Nixon watched the Apollo 14 lift-off on television in his beachside retreat at Cruz Bay in the Virgin Islands

"That's great," the President said as the rocket left the pad "It looks perfect—there they go!"

He wished Shepard God speed and a safe return.

"The courage and determination you have displayed in coming back against great odds to fly again have earned our unanimous admiration at home and abroad " Nixon said. "That this important mission should be entrusted in our nation's first man in space makes us especially proud and confident in its success "

Docking Is Delicate Matter

are firmly joined together and held rigid by the 12 latches

The probe and drogue can then be withdrawn from the docking mechanism and brought inside the command ship This opens a tunnel into the lunar module, allowing the astronauts to move back and forth

But Sunday night something happened to the funnel

For some reason, the capture latches were not hooking the lip of the drogue

Roosa tried five times, and each time the capture latches slipped

"We better back out of here and think about this one," Roosa said after an early try

Later he commented, "Okay, Houston, it held for four seconds and it didn't stay "

If the capture latches won't work, Mission Control reasoned, why not retract the probe to allow the docking latches behind the probe to engage?

Inched Forward

Roosa, following instructions, retracted the probe Then he inched forward, farther into the tunnel than before He continued to fire small thrusters to keep the command ship's point drilling ever tighter against the drogue. Then, suddenly, the docking latches slammed into place on the docking collar.

"I got hard dock," Roosa shouted And cheers drifting down from space joined those in Mission Control

The problem had been bypassed by some sharp flying by Roosa But the cause of the problem was still unknown

To learn this, the astronauts will have to pull the probe and drogue inside the command ship. They will examine the capture latches and the edge of the drogue. Perhaps they can solve the problem.

If the astronauts descend to the moon, they will need to have the latching mechanism work for a successful linkup with the command ship when they return from their moon mission is complete

McGovern Asks Investigation of Firing by Hoover

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen George McGovern has asked the Senate to investigate the case of an FBI agent who lost his job after writing a letter which included criticism of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover

The South Dakota Democrat, in a statement to the Senate today, accused Hoover of intolerable vindictiveness toward the agent, John F Shaw

Shaw wrote a letter outlining his views on Hoover and the administration of the FBI after a professor at John Jay College of Criminal Justice in New York criticized the FBI director

The agent later resigned from the agency and Hoover accepted the resignation "with prejudice," saying Shaw displayed "atrocious judgment" in making the comments

McGovern said "any reasonable man reading Shaw's letter will regard it for what it is—a well-intentioned attempt by a loyal agent of the FBI to engage in constructive criticism "

McGovern, a candidate for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, earlier asked Atty Gen John N. Mitchell to investigate the case.

OAS Fishing Rights Efforts Go Nowhere

WASHINGTON (AP) — A solution to the U S-Ecuador fishing rights conflict appeared as distant as ever today despite Organization of American States efforts to bring the two sides together

A special weekend meeting of OAS foreign ministers passed a mildly worded resolution which refrained from passing judgment

The resolution called on the two nations to negotiate their differences, avoid aggravating the dispute and rigorously observe the principles of the OAS charter

American officials expressed satisfaction that their biggest pre-conference worry—a direct hemispheric censure of American policy—was avoided

"Complete Victory"

Ecuadorian Foreign Minister Jose Maria Ponce Yepes declared the conference was "a complete victory" for his side. He said the OAS call for adherence to charter principles carried with it an implicit denunciation of what he has described as American coercion.

The use of economic or political coercion against a member state is prohibited by the charter Ponce Yepes said the United States was guilty of coercion in suspending military sales to Ecuador two weeks ago following a series of seizures of American fishing vessels off that nation's coast

He also said Ecuador would not agree to negotiate the issue with the United States as long as the suspension remains in effect and warned that his nation would continued to seize American vessels operating without proper documentation within the 200-mile limit Ecuador claims as its territorial waters

For its part the United States held firm to its allegation that international law specifies that all waters beyond 12 miles from any coastline are international territory It has repeatedly said the solution to the problem lies in independent mediation or through the four-nation talks begun in 1969 involving the United States, Ecuador, Peru and Chile

Weekend Accident Kill Two Men in Wisconsin

Nixon Promises Prosperity Without War or Inflation

missing from the presidential message were supplied orally by Chairman Paul W McCracken at a briefing after the text was distributed

These were the figures:

Real national output may rise 4 5 to 5 per cent, compared with a decline of four-tenths of 1 per cent in 1970.

Unemployment will average slightly above 5 per cent for the full year, but will dip below 5 per cent by the year-end

The rise in consumer prices, which was 5 5 per cent during 1970 may be around 4 5 per cent in 1971.

"We are going to continue to slow down the rate of inflation in the middle of an orderly expansion," Nixon promised. "And we are going to do it by relying upon free markets and strengthening them, not suppressing them

New Problems

"I do not intend to impose wage and price controls which would substitute new, growing and more vexatious problems for the problems of inflation.

"Neither do I intend to rely upon an elaborate facade that seems to be wage and price control but is not Instead, I intend to use all the effective and legitimate powers of government to unleash and strengthen those forces of the free market that hold prices down "

Business and labor must learn a behavior pattern different from the one learned during inflation, Nixon said, explaining

"Labor contracts and price lists cannot embody the expectation that prices will continue rising at the peak rates of recent years Businesses cannot expect to pass all cost increases along in higher prices "

Consumer Resistance

Consumer resistance already has begun to teach these lessons to management and labor, Nixon said, and the government will take further actions—typified by those initiated in the oil, lumber and construction industries—whenever necessary "to correct the conditions which give rise to excessive price and wage increases

"With the cooperation of the private sector," Nixon said, "an expansionary public economic policy will achieve a goal we have not seen in the American economy in many years full prosperity without war, full prosperity without inflation."

The report of the Council of Economic Advisers—Chairman McCracken, Herbert Stein and Hendrik S. Houthakker — emphasized the business recovery would have been visible last fall except for the General Motors strike

Price Inflation

Real national output—gross national product corrected to squeeze out price inflation—would have risen slightly for 1970 as a whole instead of declining by four-tenths of 1 per cent, the council said The fourth quarter would have shown a rise of 2 to 3 per cent instead of a decline of 3 3 per cent

The unemployment rate also was worsened by other than general economic factors, the council said Reduced Defense Department spending, including reduction of forces, civilian employe layoffs and the lower rate of contract outlays resulted in loss of about 1 1 million jobs

The government's persent dilemma is that curbing inflation can create unemployment, and curing unemployment can cause inflation "We cannot do as much as would be possible in one direction without injurious results in the other," the council said

Move Slowly

"This is not to say it is impossible to make progress in both directions at the same time It is possible, but only if we do not move too fast in either direction "

The twin goals of reducing unemployment to 4½ per cent and slowing the inflation rate to the neighborhood of 3 per cent, represent a "feasible path between the extremes," the council said.

"Widespread public support for direct price and wage controls clearly reveals public frustration with inflation even if the full consequences that these controls would have in distortions and blackmarkets are not perceived.

"Developments which persistently force costs and prices upward will simply prolong unemployment and the sluggish spending inclination of consumers," the council said

"And growing confidence in prospects for a reasonably stable price level would make a major contribution to invigorated consumer spending and improved economic conditions generally "

The council acknowledged "a considerable body of opinion" among economists considers the $1 065-trillion target for gross national product in 1971 too high; most economists expect the rise to reach between $1.045 trillion and $1,050 trillion. If they prove to be right, the recovery would be slower than anticipated

Chicano Protest Turns to Violence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One person was shot to death, more than 25 were injured and 70 businesses were damaged or burned when violence exploded after a weekend demonstration against the police in a mainly Mexican-American district.

It was the third major outbreak of violence in six months in East Los Angeles, home to more than 600,000 Mexican-Americans. A sheriff's spokesman estimated property damage at $200,000.

Twice, officers fired shotguns as more than 1,500 mainly young persons rampaged through the four-square-mile area. Rioters threw rocks and bricks at officers, attacked them with boards, and threw firebombs into businesses Officers used tear gas and fought hand-to-hand Firemen answering alarms were stoned.

68 Arrests

At least 68 persons were arrested, mostly for investigation for assault.

Eleven of the injured were sheriff's deputies.

Many of the injured civilians were hospitalized for shotgun wounds.

The outbursts Sunday began after 5,000 persons chanted anti-police slogans such as "Death to the pigs" at a park rally Part of the crowd marched to a nearby sheriff's station and threw rocks at the building and patrol cars

The crowd moved on to the district's business section and surrounded a patrol car. Officers said the car's occupants fled on foot, and deputies arriving at the scene fired at demonstrators with shotguns when they charged the officers.

August Rally

Similar rallies called to protest alleged police mistreatment in Mexican-American areas ended in violence last August, when three persons were killed, and September.

Demonstrators said looting occurred because the storekeepers are "ratones" and "ladrones"—Spanish for rats and rogues—charging high prices for cheaply made goods.

A sheriff's spokesman said the dead man's neck and throat were ripped out by a shotgun blast. He was identified only as a Mexican-American between 20 and 25 years old.

A curfew to dawn was ordered at about 8 p.m. for the disturbed area.

5 Children, 2 Adults Die in Alabama Fire

DEMOPOLIS, Ala. (AP) — Five small children, their father and grandfather were killed early today when their small home in the nearby community of Jefferson was destroyed by fire.

The children's mother, Dorothy Jean Simmons, suffered severe burns and was taken to University Hospital in Birmingham.

The ages of the children were not available, but state troopers said the eldest child was seven.

Youths' Concern For Safe Driving Noted in Study

MENOMONIE (AP) — Young people are concerned with those aspects of driving which have direct consequences to themselves, a study involving more than 1,000 students at 38 Wisconsin high schools shows

That's the interpretation August Schulz, co-ordinator of safety studies at Stout State University, gives to the answers he received.

The boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 18 said the reasons which most influenced them to want to be a safe driver were to stay alive and to save money on insurance.

They said the top reasons which cause students to drive cars in an unsafe manner were being a "showoff" and using alcohol.

Last Quintuplet Dies in France

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — The last of the Riondet quintuplets died Sunday night.

Three boys and two girls were born to Mrs. Michele Riondet, a 29-year-old schoolteacher, last Thursday. The babies apparently died of respiratory trouble.

Small Sturgeon Bay Firm Starts 4-Day Week After Canvass

STURGEON BAY (AP) — The 55 employes of a small metal stamping and wire forming plant will work a four-day, 40-hour week beginning today.

About 40 women employes, most of whom are married and have children, and the other workers at the Dorco Manufacturing Co. were more than 2 to 1 in favor of the switch in a surey by the firm's owners.

"They'll save the expenses of one day's travel each week to the plant," said Don Baudhuin, who heads the firm with his brother Richard. "Those who need baby sitters while they work will have to pay babysitters only four days a week instead of five."

The idea of the four day workweek has been discussed by industry for some time, but few companies across the nation have yet adopted it.

UWM Urged To Help Out In Milwaukee

Lucey Says School Should be Forum for Urban Involvement

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee should develop as a forum for urban involvement, much as the University of Wisconsin has done for agriculture, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said Sunday.

"The time is ripe for such an alliance of common interest," the governor told 800 UWM graduates at midyear commencement exercises.

Just as the Madison campus cultivated the support of the frontier agriculture community by making a vital contribution to its development, so must the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee demonstrate a comparable usefulness to the Milwaukee urban area," he said.

Underprivileged persons are too often "skeptical of the value of higher education," and UWM can "demonstrate the advantages of higher education" by extending financial assistance to students from disadvantaged families, Lucey said.

Other fields in which UWM could benefit the urban area, Lucey said, include consumer affairs, installment payment pitfalls, and counseling on housing programs.

"Carry university know-how to the doorstep of city dwellings," he said.

He urged UWM to "respond directly to urban needs" in areas of urban health, recreation, transportation, public safety and the environment.

"The problems of urban Wisconsin are no less urgent today than were the problems of a frontier agriculture a century ago," he said.

Rube Marquard Enshrined

Hall of Fame Doors Opened To Weiss, Six Old Timers

By HAL BOCK

NEW YORK (AP) — The doors of Baseball's Hall of Fame swung open today for seven old timers elected by a veterans' committee after the regular ballot of the Baseball Writers Association of America had failed last month to name any moderns to the shrine.

Legendary pitcher Rube Marquard, who shares the record of 19 consecutive victories in a single season, and George M Weiss, the executive genius who built the New York Yankees into an awesome powerhouse from the late 1940s until the 1960s, led the advance of the oldtimers.

Also named were outfielders Harry Hooper, Joe Kelley and Chuck Hafey, first baseman Jake Beckley and shortstop Dave Bancroft.

Marquard, who won 201 games pitching mostly for the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodge rs, from 1908-25, Hooper, who hit .281 in 16 American League seasons and Kelley and Beckley, both pre-1900 stars, were named as "real oldtimers," whose careers ended by 1925.

Eligible 40 Years

"I was surprised," said Hooper, now 83 "I've been eligible for this honor for 40 years. Naturally, most all the people who ever saw me play are dead, so it's pretty hard to get in."

Hafey and Bancroft both starred in the 1929-30 era when the others players named Sunday were winding up their careers

"That was great news," said Hafey, 67, who batted .317 in 13 seasons with St Louis and Cincinnati and led the National League with a .349 mark in 1931. "I've been out so darned long—'37 was my last year—I didn't think I was ever going to get in there."

Bancroft, a switch-hitting, fancy fielder, had a career 279 average in 16 NL seasons.

Weiss was the unanimous selection of the 12-man committee in the executive category He served first as farm director and later as general manager of Yankee teams which won 19 American League pennants and 15 World Series.

Yankee Monarch

Weiss ruled the Yankee front office as GM from 1947-60 and over that period the Yankees won 11 pennants. After he was let out by the Yankees, he moved across town to become the first president of the expansion New York Mets in 1962 He retired in 1966 after 47 years in baseball.

The oldtimers committee that eelcte' the seven men Sunday includes Hall of Famers Joe Cronin, Charley Gehringer, Frank Frisch, Waite Hoyt and Bill Terry. It used the option given for this year only, to name four players in the "real oldtimers" category covering players whose careers ended by 1925. Previously only two players and one executive could be picked each year.

Out 20 Years

To be eligible for election by the veteran's committee, oldtimers must be out of baseball for 20 years and no longer eligible for election by the Baseball Writers Association.

The Hall of Fame announcement came Sunday afternoon, a few hours before the New York chapter of the BBWAA held its 48th annual dinner.

The New York Writers honored Cincinnati Catcher Johnny Bench as 1970's top player and also presented key awards to Fritz Peterson, of the New York Yankees, and Donald Davidson, traveling secretary of the Atlanta Braves, Baltimore third baseman Brooks Robinson and Pie Traynor, legendary third baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bench won the Sid Mercer Award as player of the year, Peterson took the Ben Epstein Good Guy Award for his cooperation with the press, Davidson received the William Slocum Award for long and meritorious service to baseball, Robinson won the Babe Ruth Award as the outstanding performer of the World Series and Traynor took the Retroactive Award

Services Held For Cager Mike Keck

Oregon State Reserve Undergoes Knee Operation

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP) — Funeral services will be held today for Mike Keck, starting guard for the Oregon State University basketball team, who was killed early Saturday in an automobile accident near Susanville, Calif.

Keck, 21, Klamath Falls, was in an auto which left U S 395 and rolled over several times.

Keck, who was Oregon's prep athlete of the year in 1967, was Oregon State's second leading scorer with a 14 1 per game average.

At Klamath Falls High School, where Keck was graduated, establishment of a memorial athletic scholarship was announced.

At the University of Oregon in Eugene Saturday night, a crowd of about 8,000 at the Oregon - Denver basketball game stood for a minute of silent tribute to an athlete whose cluten play gave OSU the Far West Classic championship over Oregon in December.

Two other occupants of the car remained hospitalized Sunday.

Larry Webber, 20, Sacramento, Calif., a reserve forward-center for OSU, underwent knee surgery at Washoe Medical Center in Reno, Nev.

Donald Williams, 23, Oregon City, a student at Oregon State, was in fair condition at Lassen Memorial Hospital in Susanville.

Xavier Frosh '5' Triumphs, 45-32

The Xavier High School freshman basketball team boosted its record to 8-5 with a recent 45-32 victory over Fond du Lac St. Mary Springs.

Xavier, which led, only 18-17, at the half, pulled away in the final two periods. Rich Kewley led the balanced attack for Xavier, with 11 points. Craig Martin added 10

The Place Leads

The Place (31 5) takes its 4 game lead in the Appleton Recreation department-sponsored Women's Volleyball League tonight against AAL (2 31)

FVL Matmen Whip Wayland

Fox Valley Lutheran hiked its dual season record to 5-4 by defeating Wayland Academy, 31-18 in a bout Saturday.

FVL benefitted from pins by Tom Plamann at 119 pounds and Shawn Woods at 155 pounds and forfeits to Paul Schuette at 105 pounds and Bill Plamann at 185

The Foxes won 8 of 12 bouts A big loser was heavyweight Bob Lenharnow 7-2

In another bout, Wittenberg edged Marion, 24-22. Marion forfeits at 155 and 167 pounds were decisive factors in the outcome

Marion's Terry Kitzman posted his 15th victory of the year and saw his career record jump to 67-11 with a 6-4 decision over Ken Schmidt.

Julius Boros Wins Seniors Title for PGA

Outlasts Bolt, Sammy Snead for $4,000 1st Prize

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — When Julius Boros, of North Miami, eagled the par five first hole on the PGA National Golf Club east course in his first competitive round as a senior professional, he had a very comfortable feeling he would like senior competition.

On his second and third round he birdied the same hole and on his fourth round of the PGA Mercury Seniors championship Sunday he missed a birdie by one inch.

"I felt like I would want to play all the rest of my tournaments on that first hole or possibly put a down payment on it," he said. The first hole is a 523-yard double dog leg which played to about 490 yards Sunday.

Prize Money

Boros went on for a closing 72 and a 285 total that won him $4,000 out of $40,000 prize money in the PGA Seniors Golf championship. And in doing that he outlasted Tommy Bolt of St Petersburg who led at the end of two rounds by five shots and three rounds by one. Bolt finished with a 76 and second place worth $3 000. Sammy Snead, the defending champion, was third at 289 for $2,000.

Bolt complained of a back strain at the end of 54 holes and said he might not finish. But he did Boros said he also has had some back strain from time to time, "ever since I bent over to pick a bal lout of the cup in one hole of the U.S. Open tournament years ago."

Snead finished with a par 72 to cut into the five-shot lead Bolt held over him at the end of 54 holes and finished one stroke behind at 289. Overnight Sammy had some putting instructions and went back to the orthodox style of putting, forgetting his side-saddle stance except on very short putts.

Pete Cefalu 3rd In 72nd Speed Skating Tourney

ST. PAUL, Minn (AP)—Wisconsin entries brought home a share of the titles Sunday from the 72nd national outdoor speed skating trials, although Pete Cefalu of West Allis, Wis., fell short of a fourth consecutive crown

Cefalu, the defending titlist in the senior men's division, was one point out of the lead after Saturday's trials, and finished third Sunday behind Jack Walters of Massachusetts and Rich Wurster, a New Yorker competing out of West Allis.

Kay Lunda of Madison, Wis., won the juvenile girls title. Lori Mink of Madison took the junior girls championship, and Les Barczewski of West Allis was the juvenile boys titlist.

Brengel Sets Lawrence U. Swim Mark

Lawrence University's swimming team was dealt a pair of defeats during the weekend in dual meets at Grinnell and Cornell.

Grinnell defeated the Vikings, 63-36 on Friday and Cornell defeated LU, 73-31, Saturday.

Friday, Bill Denis, Chris Perleberg, Terry Nilles and Dave Barclay teamed to win the 400-yard medley relay in 4:32.6. Doug Brengel won the 200-yard back stroke in 2:21 and Denis was second. Nilles, Greg Schrage, John Stroemer and Brengel teamed for the 400-yard free style relay title in 3:45. Seconds were taken by Rick Saltzstein, diving; Nilles, 100-yard free style, and Perleberg, 200-yard breast stroke.

Saturday, Brengel cut three-seconds off the university record as he covered the 200-yard back stroke in 2:18.2. Brengel also claimed a first in the 200-yard individual medley in 2:17.2. Seconds were taken by Stroemer, 50-yard free style; Perleberg, 200-yard breast stroke and Saltzstein, diving. Nilles covered 100-yards in :55.5 for a free style first place finish

Vikings' Alwin Disappointed, Not Discouraged by Not Being Drafted

BY RON WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Lance Alwin spent a lot of time next to the telephone Friday, but the call he anticipated never came

Alwin, the Lawrence University star running back, had hoped to be chosen by a pro team in the draft of college football players, but despite the fact he was contacted several occasions during the season, no word came at the appropriate time

"I expected something yesterday," he related in a phone conversation Saturday afternoon, "especially after the number of people I talked to previously"

According to the Viking standout, more than 10 pro clubs had expressed an interest in him during the past season Then recently at a coaches convention in Houston, Tex., Lawrence coach Ron Roberts was also approached.

"Mr Roberts seemed to think things were pretty good when he got back," Lance explained, "but apparently they didn't go that way."

Roberts said too, that he was 'surprised' Alwin was not among the chosen players especially since the day before the draft he (Roberts) received a phone call from the San Diego Chargers 'They were asking if Lance would sign if he were drafted" the LU mentor informed, "and the indication seemed to be if they had the opportunity they would be drafting him"

Although Alwin admits he's "pretty disappointed" not being drafted, he isn't going to let the setback dissuade him from trying to catch on with a pro team

"I've talked to (scout) Lisle Blackbourn since the draft was over," Lance reported "He held a pretty good view of me, and he said I should sit tight and go through the free agent deal"

Further Ahead

The present plan is for Alwin to investigate the various pro squads and attempt to discover where he might have the best chance of making the final roster

Roberts believes that Alwin is actually farther ahead as a free agent than he would be drafted by some team where he had limited opportunity

"This might sound funny" Roberts remarked, "but I think him not being drafted gives him a pretty good chance to get with a team He's got just as good a chance as anyone coming in as a rookie as long as there aren't a lot of veterans in the running back spots"

Roberts indicated that the world champion Baltimore Colts might be interested in beefing up their running attack

If it should happen Alwin is not able to gain a spot on one of the NFL teams, he would still be willing to take another route — Canadian football

"That seems even like a better shot," Lance stated "I've talked to quite a few people in the Canadian League up there, and depending on what kind of deal I have, I'd like at least to look into the aspects of it

"As far as I'm concerned, I think I have something to offer a pro team," he said confidently "I know my coach does, too, and so does Mr. Blackbourn."

Porsche Survives Transmission Problems

Rodriquez Blase After Daytona Win

By BLOYS BRITT

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla (AP) — Pedro Rodriguez is a wiry little man, toughened by 17 of his 31 years at the wheel of a fast racing car. He no longer enjoys the emotional bath that comes with victory.

Such was the case Sunday after he and England's Jackie Oliver paired to drive a German Porsche to the closest victory ever in the Daytona 24-hour race.

Rodriguez had done it before —in 1970 when he teamed with Finland's Lee Kinnunen in another Porsche. The only smile he flashed after Sunday's triumph, his fourth at Daytona, was when he said he finds it easier to communicate with Oliver than with Kinnunen, who speaks no English.

Not Surprised

Yet he and Oliver had performed a near miracle in winning 'his latest edition of the longest and most demanding race in the Western world. And he should have been floating on cloud nine, as Oliver was.

"They get harder every year," said Mexico City's No. 1 citizen. "But I'm not at all surprised that we won. That's what we came here to do."

Rodriguez flashed past a Ferrari driven by Ronnie Bucknum for Porsche's second straight 24-hour victory here. It put the German factory in command again in the 1971 drive for the world championship of makes—a circuit it dominated last year by winning all but one of the 10 events.

Rodriguez and Oliver, dividing the driving chores about equally, had built up a lead of 213 miles at one point in the race. But trouble struck with about three hours left when the car's transmission failed as Oliver was motoring around with not a care in the world.

Two Ferraris—the one driven alternately by Bucknum and Tony Adamowicz of Wilton, Conn., and another under command of two-time U S. road racing champion Mark Donohue and David Gobbs of England—had survived the long night but were out of it as long as the Porsche held together.

5?-Minute Wait

Oliver brought the powder-blue car in o the pit and he and Rodriguez spent an agonizing 93 minutes watching their lead wiped out as crewmen feverishly made repairs.

Bucknum gained the lead 70 minutes from the end and Donohue pulled into striking distance before crew chief John Wyer could get the Porsche rolling again. Rodriguez bolted back to the course a half mile behind Bucknum, whose Ferrari was spitting fire and having trouble getting through the turns.

The Mexican hotshot needed less than two laps around the 3 81-mile layout to catch Bucknum and he never was in serious trouble again.

Donohue and Hobbs drove brilliantly to a third-place finish despite more than an hour in the pits at one point to repair body damage suffered in a wreck.

Fourth place went to a seven-liter Corvette driven by Tony DeLorenzo, Don Yenko and Jack Mahler. Fifth was a three-liter Ferrari manned by Luigi Chinetti Jr. of Greenwich, Conn., and young Nestor Garcia Veiga of Argentina.

Trio of Wrecks

Three other potent Porsches were eliminated in wrecks. One, driven by Vic Elford of England, was involved in the smashup that almost put Donohue out. Another, handled by Jo Siffert of Switzerland, broke down early in the race, while Dr. Helmut Marke of Austria was at the wheel when his car smashed into the east turn guard rail after 15 hours of the race.

Docking Device Key to Apollo Moon Landing

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 14 crew, using a flashlight and radioed do-it-yourself instructions, tried unsuccessfully today to pinpoint the cause of a malfunction that threatens to wipe out their long-sought landing on the forbidding moonscape of Fra Mauro.

Alan B Shepard Jr., the patriarch of American spacemen, and rookies Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa deliberately tried for more than an hour to make a linking mechanism fail to work—as it had when they attempted to dock their command ship with the lunar lander earlier.

"It works," Roosa said finally. "Just real fine."

The apparatus must be able to work for its next use, when Shepard and Mitchell would return from the lunar surface to link again with the command ship piloted by Roosa.

"We will have to convince ourselves . . . that the thing is indeed satisfactory for docking," said Sigurd Sjoberg, director of flight operations.

Asked whether the astronauts will go through with Friday's landing attempt on the moon's craggy highlands, Sjoberg said, "I'd like not to speculate on that right now."

The astronauts worked the latches by hand on instructions from Houston without a single failure.

"In other words, what you are trying to tell me is you still haven't come up with anything that would be a problem," Mission Control said.

"That's basically it," said Roosa.

Trouble Shooting

"You've exhausted our imagination for right now on trouble-shooting the probe," said Mission Control. "We'll worry about it some more overnight and be back with you in the morning."

Awake 19 Hours

There was no argument from the astronauts, who had been awake for more than 19 hours by that time and in the spacecraft for 10 of those.

Mission Control reported all three retired by 7:50 a.m. EST for their first night en route to the moon. They roused for less than a minute of chitchat but were reported sacked in and apparently willing to stay 20 minutes later.

At that point Apollo 14 was 90,037 miles from earth and streaking toward their target at 4,366 miles per hour.

They could sleep with the knowledge that no threat to their safety was involved in the docking difficulty.

Experts who had watched their efforts via television studied the problem during the crew's 10 hours sleep time.

Unlike Apollo 13, which was endangered by an explosion, this was a little—but frustrating—problem, Sjoberg said if the landing could not be made, the astronauts would attempt an alternate mission of orbiting the moon.

After Launch

The trouble confronted the astronauts three hours after launch Sunday when they turned their command ship for docking.

On previous flights the maneuver was routine. The mother ship would edge forward from its stack, turn around, and hook onto the lunar lander nose-to-nose. Then the command ship can pull the moonship out of the spent third stage of the Saturn 5 rocket

This time, three small latches on the docking mechanism—shorter than a cigarette and not much wider—failed to lock into position in five move-up, back-out tries. On the sixth, using an unorthodox procedure, the ships mated

More Mechanism

Once past that hurdle, the astronauts were able to pull the troublesome mechanism inside. They found some small scratches on the polished face of the cone-shaped docking probe They were made, Shepard said, by the capture latches.

"It has scratched the surface to a depth of three or four thousandths inches," Shepard said "It's very difficult to describe it Feels rough to the touch."

The group radioed tests and the mechanism passed each one flawlessly. It was something like a toothache that disappears in the dentist chair.

Shepard crawled into the tunnel formed by the joining of the two ships.

A Delicate Maneuver

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — Pouring water into a narrow-necked bottle without a funnel is tricky, but not impossible.

Astronaut Stuart A. Roosa performed a similar task Sunday night when he docked the Apollo 14 command ship and the lunar module without, in effect, a funnel.

The "funnel" is a bowl-shaped depression on the lunar module, Antares. This depression is called a drogue.

The Apollo 14 command ship, Kitty Hawk, has a cone-shaped probe which is tipped with three latches. These latches are designed to penetrate a hole in the bottom of the drogue and hook over the lip of the hole.

When this happens, the astronauts call it "capture."

After capture is achieved, the probe retracts, pulling the two spacecraft together.

As this happens, 12 larger latches located in a ring back of the probe hook on to a docking collar on the lunar module.

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sent Congress today a pledge of more jobs and better business in 1971, plus a promise to use "all the effective and legitimate powers of government" to strengthen anti-inflation forces.

His goal: "Full prosperity without war, full prosperity without inflation."

But Nixon rejected—perhaps more emphatically than ever before—any use of price-wage controls or voluntary guideposts He called the latter "an elaborate facade that seems to be wage and price control but is not"

His annual economic report to Congress fixed no specific goals or deadlines for recovery. But in the accompanying 300-page report of his Council of Economic Advisers, these targets were posted and presumably approved by him:

—Unemployment—now at 6 per cent—would decline to 4½ per cent by the middle of 1972 The official definition of "full employment" is around 4 per cent.

—The inflation rate, which was 5.25 per cent across the whole economy last year, should be approaching 3 per cent by mid-1972. This is measured by the Gross National Product

—National output should total $1 065 trillion in 1971, requiring a record rise of $88 billion—so great some economists fear it might rekindle inflation.

Nixon's report, third and last of the major presidential messages to each new session of Congress, noted "prices have begun to rise less rapidly" and added "There are the first faint signs of a retardation in wage increases in some sectors

Rapid Expansion

"Our first task now must be to assure more rapid expansion and so to reduce the unemployment rate " the message said.

"Nothing would contribute more to the new expansion than confidence that the threat of inflation is fading . . I propose to justify that confidence."

Nixon said his $229 2-billion "full employment budget," sent to Congress on Friday, would provide a solid stimulus to expansion Its outlays will rise $16 5 billion from this year's spending level, causing an estimated $11 6-billion deficit.

The President hinted at some lack of confidence in the estimate of the deficit "How big the actual deficit will be " he said, "will depend on economic conditions "

Full Employment

But Nixon stressed anew his belief in the "full employment budget" theory, under which federal spending is considered stimulative but not inflationary when it does not exceed the revenues that the tax system would yield if the economy were operating at full employment. Larger spending would be inflationary and must be avoided "except in emergencies," Nixon said.

Some expansive forces are now at work, Nixon pointed out. They include a 40-per cent rise in the rate of new housing starts from a year ago, strongly increased state and local government spending, sharply reduced interest rates, rising after-tax incomes, and the catching-up of the auto industry from the General Motors strike.

Neither the President nor the council, however, offered an estimate of the anticipated gain in real output or a forecast of the 1971 rate of price advance. The projected rise of $88 billion in gross national product would be a 9-per cent gain; some government experts have suggested it might be about 4½ per cent real increase, 4½ per cent inflation.

Some of the 1971 forecasts

Five Killed in Attack

U.S. Positions Hammered by Mortars

SAIGON (AP) — Communist-led forces slammed about 100 rounds of rockets and mortars into six U.S. positions today and followed up one attack with a ground assault, killing six Americans and wounding 26 in all.

The most devastating attack was a 50-round mortar barrage and a ground assault on a reconnaissance team from the 198th Brigade that had set up an ambush position four miles west of Chu Lai, headquarters of the U S Americal Division 50 miles south of Da Nang.

The U.S. Command, in a revised casualty report, said five Americans were killed and eight wounded in the attack near Chu Lai. A command communique earlier reported seven U.S. troops killed and seven wounded Five enemy also were reported killed in the 50 minute fight.

The enemy forces apparently had traced the movements of the team from the 198th Brigade.

The other five American positions attacked were hit by rockets and mortars They included the air bases at Da Nang and Cam Ranh Bay, a military adviser's compound at the Tuy Hoa air base, a helicopter unit seven miles northwest of Cam Ranh Bay and an artillery base 32 miles south of Pleiku City.

The U.S. Command said one American was killed and 18 wounded.

The attack at Da Nang touched off a huge fire that destroyed thousands of gallons of fuel and damaged some aircraft. No casualties were reported

Bombing Campaigns

Meanwhile, the most sustained bombing campaign of the war stretched into its 115th day today with more U.S raids on the Ho Chi Minh trail through southern Laos.

Informed sources said some 30 B52 bombers each carrying up to 30 tons of bombs, and about 200 smaller fighter-bombers and gunships pounded the 200-mile-long trail network in the latest round of attacks

The aim is to slow the flow of North Vietnamese arms and troops into Cambodia and South Vietnam so that the withdrawal of American forces can continue sources said.

The U.S. Command announced the first major American unit to be phased out of Vietnam as part of President Nixon's sixth round of troop cutbacks that will reduce U S strength to less than 284,000 men by May 1. It is the 1st Squadron of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, now working on local security with South Vietnamese militiamen in the Saigon region. Its departure will cut U S. Strength by 1,140 men.

The entire 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment of 5,000 men will be phased out by May 1, along with 15,000 other combat troops in the Saigon region But the U.S. Command's weekly strength summary today reported 335 300 American troops in Vietnam last Thursday, the same figure as the previous week.

4 Children Die In Oostburg Fire

OOSTBURG, WIS. (AP) — Four children died early today in a fire which destroyed their home near this Sheboygan County village

Victims were Daniel Rahe, 16, his brother Gustave III, 8, and sisters, Lisa, 4, and Tammy 2.

Their father, Gustave Rahe and two other children, Henry, 6 and Debra, 5, escaped.

Mrs. Rahe was working at a plant in Sheboygan Falls at the time the fire was reported, around 3 a.m

Units of the Oostburg and Cedar Grove fire departments responded.

Cause of the fire was not available.

Treasury Secretary Nominee

Connally Dealings Revealed

NEW YOK (AP) — John B Connally Jr was paid at least $225 000 while he was governor of Texas by the Sid W Richardson Foundation, the New York Times said today

Connally has been nominated by President Nixon to be secretary of the Treasury

A report by Martin Waldron from Fort Worth, Tex., quotes the Texas constitution as saying a governor is prohibited from receiving any "salary, reward or compensation of the promise thereof from any person or corporation for any service rendered or performed during the time he is governor "

Perry R Bass, a director of the foundation, said the money was in payment for work Connally had done as an executor of the $105 million estate of Sid Richardson an oil millionaire after Richardson's death in 1959

Bass said today in Fort Worth that the executor fees due Connally were spread out over several years to put Connally in a better tax position.

"I don't know when the foundation paid to Connally the executor fees that Connally had coming to him by virtue of being an executor, which he was," Bass said.

"The foundation," Bass said, "inherited from the estate all assets and liabilities which went with the estate There were executor fees due and the foundation then paid to Connally over a period of time I think it was $75 000 a year that Connally had coming The foundation inherited the agreement to pay him these fees."

In response to some reports that records were sketchy for a time and then became more complete, Bass said the rules regarding foundations were changed, requiring more complete records

Records filed by the foundation with the International Revenue Service, and which are open to public inspection, disclosed a debt to Connally of $225,000 in 1966, which the foundation was paying at a rate of $75,000 a year, the Times said.

Ended in 1969

According to the records, the newspaper said, the payments had ended by 1969 when Connally left the governorship and joined a Houston law firm.

Bass a former business partner of Connally, a nephew of Richardson and himself a coexecutor of the Richardson estate, said the payments to Connally "were executors' fees," and added: "That was a helluva long time ago " Connally could not be reached for comment.

Brownies Learn Hospitals Can be Friendly Places

They smell funny, they're full of people dressed in white and they're scary because they're where you have to stay all by yourself when you're so sick Mom can't make you feel better.

That's what lots of little boys and girls grow up thinking about hospitals. And when they get bik and have to visit one for one reason or another — maybe to cheer a friend or have a baby or become a proud dad — they still get those same old butterflies. Even if the lady behind the desk is their neighbor and the first nurse they see sat next to them in school.

But there's a good chance the girls who belong to Brownie Troop 160 won't be so frightened when they go to the hospital in years to come.

Friday afternoon, they learned a hospital is a friendly place when they toured Appleton Memorial Hospital. Clutching boxes that contained the 42 hand puppets they made for patients in the children's ward, the Brownies visited the kitchen, the emergency room and the physical therapy department.

They saw that no one is alone in a hospital where doctors and nurses are people caring for other people. A hospital, they now know, is for getting well and learning to laugh with joy at feeling good.

Laughter fills the physical therapy department as John Hah, a guest of the Brownies, tries the parallel bars.

BY MIKE COCHRAN

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — "Ooooah grand!" exclaimed Joan Roosa. "I knew Stu would do it. He's good at living things."

The dark-haired wife of the Apollo 14 pilot flew home to Texas from Cape Kennedy Sunday night, aware that the crew was having difficulty with a tricky docking maneuver.

"How are they doing?" she asked a reporter as she and her four sleepy children piled off the jet at a Houston airport.

"They docked on the sixth try," she was told. She broke into a super grin, commended her husband and the crew and said,

"Oh, I didn't know that. It's been kind of tense. But I had a good feeling about this mission. I hope they're down to the moon now and feel a big rock that's four and a half billion years old."

Louise Mitchell, wife of the moon lander pilot, was the first of the three wives to return home, arriving half an hour earlier. Louise Shepard remained in Florida overnight and was due back today.

Mrs. Mitchell said the plane's pilot informed her that the command ship had successfully locked up with the lunar module after five futile attempts.

"Great!" he responded.

Mrs. Shepard admitted it was a little tense for awhile. "But I thought it was a very heartfelt launch. It reminded me of the Fourth of July."

Asked how she spent the tense moments when the mission appeared in jeopardy, she said, "I was eating an orange before because at the time it was the thing to do."

She and the and her two daughters, Julie, 13, and Mrs. Laura Snyder, 23, would leave the Cape today.

Little John Roosa, 10, appeared unconcerned about the whole matter. He was the first off the plane, sound asleep in the arms of a family friend, Andy Phillips of Tyler, Tex.

"I want to get my kids home," Mrs. Roosa said. "They're just worn out."

The other Roosa children — Christopher, 11, Stuart Jr., 8, and Rosemary, 7 — moved off the plane on their own power looking not unlike three kids who had spent a long day at Disneyland.

The Mitchell girls, Karlyn, 17, and Elizabeth, 11, carried school books off the plane, but admitted they got very little studying done.

Karlyn's companions said she had a test today at school and was "very worried about it ... It's a heck of a note—her daddy's going to the moon and she's gotta take a test."

Mrs. Mitchell, looking tired and tense, said she was relieved when the delicate docking maneuver was completed.

"I just so wanted everything to be all right," she said and added with a sigh: "It's looking much better now."

Mrs. Jay Lindstrom, R. N., shows the girls how doctors study X-rays.

They'll Be Watching and praying. The wives of the astronauts sat together Sunday several hours before their husbands were scheduled to blast off from the Cape Kennedy, Fla., space complex on their moon mission. Promises Exchanged

DALE — St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church was the setting Saturday, when Miss Connie Lu Rieckmann and Richard Carl Prasher Jr. exchanged wedding vows in a candlelight ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Orvin Rieckmann, route 1, Fremont, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Prasher, 1025 W. Harris St., Appleton.

Miss Donna Dorschner attended as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Prasher and Miss Barbara Rieckmann. Miss Sara Rieckmann served as flower girl.

Best man was Lee Witter, Appleton. Jerold Rieckmann and John Prasher served as groomsmen. Dennis Thiel and John Karwieck seated guests, whom the couple later greeted at a reception at the VFW Club, New Londen.

The newlyweds will reside in Fremont.

Save Money By Avoiding Service Calls

NEW YORK (AP) — With the economy still in the grip of inflation, there's a way housewives can save money, says the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York—and that's by avoiding unnecessary service calls.

The Bureau issued this checklist for appliance owners to use before calling a repairman:

1. Check the cord. Simple as it may seem, an unplugged cord frequently is the culprit in a malfunctioning appliance. Same goes for the power source. Check it to see it's functioning properly.

2. Check the fuses.

3. Check to see the controls are set properly. The dials should be turned in the proper direction.

4. Is the appliance clean? A clogged filter frequently is responsible for a malfunctioning air conditioner. Washers have lint screens that must be cleaned. Refrigerator and freezer coils should also be cleaned periodically.

5. If the appliance needs water, make sure the water is flowing into it. Check faucets and hoses.

6. Some appliances do not operate unless the doors and latches are securely shut. Check them.

The first thing a new appliance owner should do, the Bureau recommends, is read the instructor's manual thoroughly. It may answer future questions and eliminate a visit from the repairman.

Women Request UW to Establish Watchdog Offices

MADISON (AP) — The University of Wisconsin should establish a permanent Office for Women on each of its campuses, the Association of Faculty Women said Friday.

The group noted that a U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare study and the university's own management surveys have shown patterns of discrimination against women.

"The Association of Faculty Women of the Madison campus therefore calls on you to provide immediately for the establishment of a Committee on the Status of Women on each campus of the university system to advise the respective chancellors and initiate such action as may be necessary to advance status of women," the organization said in a letter to school officials.

Winter Weather Brings Car Battery Troubles

Cold Wisconsin winters frustrate many women drivers. In cold days ahead, hope you won't be hiking down the road because your battery is dead.

Check your car battery whenever your car is serviced. The ability of the battery to turn over the engine is only 40 per cent as much at zero degrees as it would be on an 80 degree day in summer, says Orrin Berge, agricultural engineering specialist at the University of Wisconsin. When it's cold the battery loses a great deal of its starting power.

Annoying Problem

It's annoying not to get the car started. Often you just grind away on the ignition until the battery is completely exhausted. A battery will freeze at minus-16 degrees when it is only half charged. When the battery is totally discharged it will freeze at plus-19 degrees. Freezing causes the battery to crack. If you have tried to start the car and failed to do so, don't leave it. As soon as possible, get the battery charged.

Most cars have warning lights which indicate when the generator or alternator is working. If the light stays on after the engine has started, go immediately to a service station before the battery goes down all the way. Some cars have an ammeter gauge which tells if the generator is charging or discharging.

You may need to start a car from another automobile with booster cables, which should be connected to the correct terminals on the battery. Start the car which will be doing the boosting. Attach the cables to the battery. Usually the cables of both cars and the battery terminals are marked. Red color is the positive terminal. Black color indicates the negative terminal. Connect like colors.

Attach one cable to the booster and to the stalled car. Try to start the engine while some one touches the other cable to remaining terminal in the stalled car. This minimizes the draw on the boosting car. Connecting all cables to the terminals then starting both cars takes excess current from the starting car. Driving a reasonable length of time will charge up the battery.

Have the water in the battery checked frequently. If you must add water during winter let the car engine run about 10 minutes so that the water and sulfuric acid in the battery mix. If not mixed thoroughly, the water would quickly freeze in the battery. Don't add too much water. If the acid and water bubble over it could corrode other parts of the engine.

Chilton Facility

Care Center Funds Reach $37,740 Mark

CHILTON — Funds for the New Hope Center for the mentally retarded have reached $37,740, according to the Rev. Quentin Moeschberger, fund chairman.

A meeting of solicitors Thursday evening at St. Batholomew Lutheran Church, Brillion, named several solicitors as quota busters. They included the Rev. James Vennix, Mr. and Mrs. Clem Kolbe, Mrs. Arno Sohrweide, Mrs. Joseph Wettstein, Mrs. Harold Hoffmann; Mrs. Donald Steege, Chilton; Mrs. Robert Luck and Paul Hernke, Hilbert, and Donald Duchow, Potter. Quota busters have collected over $300.

The first memorial brick for the New Hope Center will be placed in the name of Pam Reichwald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reichwald. The girl died this week and was buried Friday.

Other memorial bricks can be placed in the name of loved ones, according to Moeschberger. Persons pledging $210 also will be named on a brick.

Also reported at the dinner meeting, was an annonymous donation of $500.00.

Construction for the New Hope Center will begin as soon as weather permits, with completion sought this fall. The building will be a one story frame and will cover approximately 8200 square feet. It will be at the end of Manhattan Street, adjacent to Calumet Memorial Hospital.

Presently the children are attending St. Martins School, Charlestown, however there is not a work activities program there, because of inadequate facilities.

The next report meeting will be Feb. 11 at the United Church of Christ and will be held in conjunction with a spaghetti supper. Proceeds will go to the New Hope Center.

Vehicles Crash Near Shawano

Bonduel Couple Is Hospitalized With Severe Lacerations

SHAWANO — A three-vehicle accident about 11 a.m. Friday sent three people to the Shawano Community Hospital and caused extensive damage.

The accident occurred on State 29 at the intersection of County Trunk E, just east of Shawano. A car driven by Robert Daskam, route 2, Bonduel, going east on 29 was making a left turn onto E. Another car involved was driven by Duane Falk, route 2, Bonduel, who also was going east on 29. The third vehicle, a truck, was a tractor unit owned by Mantin Brothers, Clintonville, and driven by Bernard Eberhardy, Jr., 92 Sixth St., Clintonville, who was traveling west on 29.

State and Shawano County Sheriff's patrolmen checked the accident, and reported that it was snowing and blowing at the time.

The front of the tractor was damaged and the trailer, which was loaded with 10 tons of soft coal, tipped over as the unit jack-knifed, spilling coal along the roadway. Eberhardy received a bump on the head.

Hospitalized with severe lacerations of the head and face, were Daskam and Mrs. Dascam. Falk complained of chest pains.

Total damages were estimated at $5,000.

13 File Papers In Black Creek

BLACK CREEK — Some 13 persons have filed nomination papers for village offices.

They are: President — William LeCaptaine; trustees — Elfrieda Levin, Ronald Sievert and Leo Stephoni, all incumbents, and Robert Denow, Edward Rawling, Aaron Riehl and Joe Weyers; clerk — Martin Johnson, incumbent; treasurer — Sharon Kettner, incumbent, and Mrs. Beverly Stingle; assessor — Loren Otto, incumbent; and corstable — Wilbert Zocholl, incumbent.

Curtis Reed, present village president, is not running for re-election.

No nomination papers have been filed for the position of municipal justice, created last year and currently vacant.

The spring election will be held April 6.

AFS Chapter to Meet Tonight at Marion

MARION — The Marion American Field Service chapter will meet at 7 p.m. today in the high school cafeteria.

The chapter is still seeking a family for next year's AFS student. Further information may be obtained from the high school.

When The Temperature drops so low that it "doesn't matter anymore," and the wind makes the unbearable cold impossible to stand for more than a few moments even when well-bundled, there is still a beauty in the frozen stillness of a country field and the plants poking through an icy crust offer proof that the lush warmth of a new season must eventually return. Martin Lists Bylaws For Valley Plans Unit

Committee to Consider Proposals

Proposed articles of organization for the expected new regional planning agency to serve the metropolitan mid-Fox Valley and possibly outlying regions have been proposed by David O. Martin, chairman of the ad hoc committee studying planning jurisdictional overlap and duplication.

Martin, who was a Neenah state representative when he informed the committee last year, prepared the articles for consideration by the committee hopefully in a mid-February meeting.

"I would like to have a final meeting to make a final recommendation that would be sent to the State Department of Local Affairs and Development and the Bureau of Planning of the State Department of Administration, as well as the six-member conferees of the two planning commissions," he said.

The proposed articles embody generally what the committee indicated it preferred at its December meeting, plus the general pattern expressed in articles from the area's two agencies, the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) and Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, and the Brown County Regional Planning Commission.

Martin said he expected the committee might propose some changes but he hoped the articles could be endorsed soon.

He said that the articles would only be a recommendation to the joint committee of the planning agencies and eventually the county governments, which undoubtedly will have the most say in the new planning agency. But, he added, county board chairmen of Winnebago and Outagamie and top municipal officials are on the ad hoc committee, and if they endorse the articles, they should be considered seriously.

The articles probably will run into trouble in the joint committee because the Northeastern members have said they don't want to become entangled in other committees' activities. And Northeastern leaders have attacked Martin for continuing his committee work after he left the assembly last month.

Among the key proposals in the articles were that:

— The counties within the governor's administrative districts for state services shall be the members of the planning agency, with at least some of the eight Lake Winnebago administrative district as members and all eight if they desire.

Martin said that some ad hoc committeemen may favor bringing in counties outside the district because of desirable economic or other ties.

— Each county shall be represented on the commission, one district representative from each assembly district. The county board chairman, or county executive, shall appoint the representatives, with board approval. Representatives shall be elected officials of cities, villages towns or counties.

There shall be no more than three citizen members on the council, appointed by the council.

— For budgeting, council members shall pay their share according to the percentage of their equalized valuation for tax purposes.

The proposed articles also provide for citizen participation through advisory committees; contracting for services outside the council area, such as with the state, and withdrawal from the council membership by giving written notice before the end of the fiscal year, which would be Dec. 31.

The articles are the first definite step toward forming the basic framework for a single regional agency for this area. Whether all ad hoc committee ideas are followed, Martin said, these articles should work for any new agency.

The committeemen earlier concluded that a single new agency should be developed; the boundaries should follow county lines, definitely including Outagamie and Winnebago and probably Calumet, and representation should be mainly by elected officials, not citizens.

Martin said that he "tried to pull together the thoughts that were on the minds of the committee members at the earlier meetings." He sent them a letter, with the proposed articles, in which he asked for comments and ideas for changes by next week so that a mid-February meeting could be set.

Martin sent COG and Northeastern leaders a copy of the articles and said he hoped they would give them fair consideration.

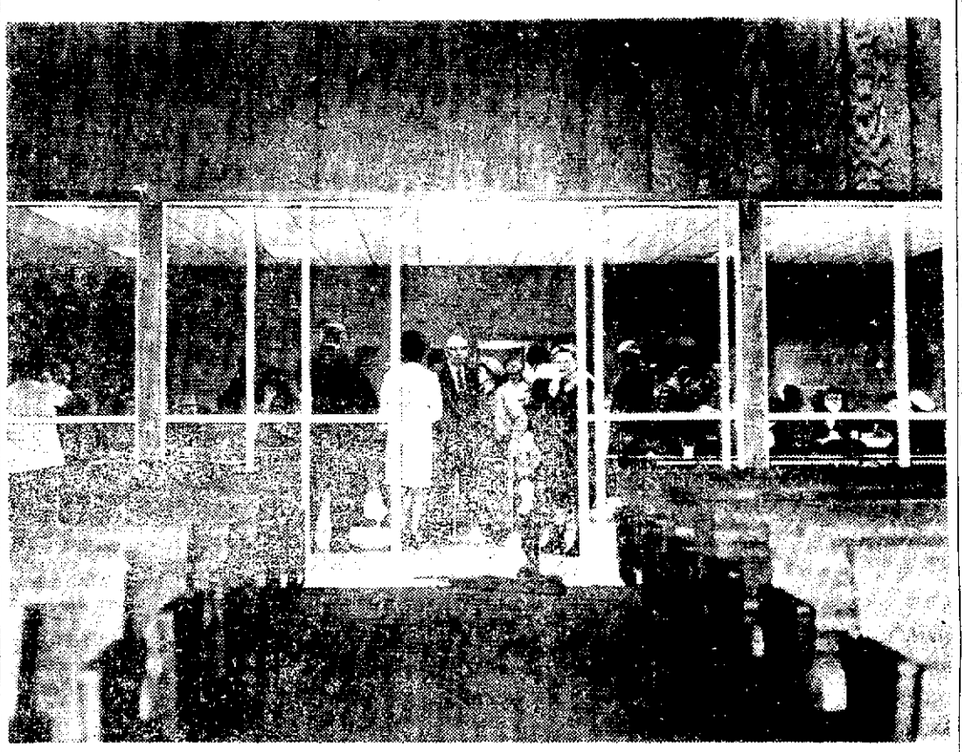
Marijuana Is Program Topic At New London

NEW LONDON — A special educational program on marijuana will be presented at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at the First Congregational United Church of Christ.

"If you are interested in learning more about marijuana, whether you are 15 or 55, attend the meeting," Pastor M. K. Staskal has said. The program is open to the entire community.

Joel Ungrodt, drug education consultant for the Cooperative Educational Service Agency No. 8, will serve as a resource person for a discussion period which will follow the movie, "MARIJUANA." The movie is designed not only to explain marijuana, but also the "turned-on" generation.

The use of marijuana in the entire area is believed to be growing. Several persons have been arrested and charged on marijuana possession charges.



Sliding Glass Doors separate the multi-purpose room from the sanctuary in the new church building of New London's United Methodist Church. The congregation began using its new building and held open house there Sunday.

Merger Discussion To Continue Today

The special merger committees of the two Fox Cities-based regional planning agencies will hold their second joint discussion today, but it's unlikely that much progress will be made.

Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission will stick to what it feels is the best solution — a total merger of the two agencies and their staffs, with divisions to serve the urban and metropolitan areas.

The Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) apparently will withhold any specific position because its members differ on what they feel might be the optimum arrangement for future regional planning in this area.

Secondly, Kaukauna Mayor Gilbert Anderson, COG chairman, said that he felt it was essential to bring in county leaders in talks because the counties hold the key to the future agency and county officials probably won't accept a recommendation unless they're intimately involved in formulating it.

Henry Alhiser, Northeastern commissioner and head of its joint committee delegation, said he felt the total merger was the best and most economical approach and would be accepted eventually.

Meanwhile the June deadline for a decision grows closer. The federal government has said only one agency can represent any jurisdiction, and when the Fox Cities-Oshkosh region becomes an officially-recognized metropolitan area soon, it will have to have only one agency which can receive federal funding.

The agencies must come to some conclusion by summer so the transition to the new agency arrangement can be made by 1972. Northeastern represents nine counties, including Outagamie and Winnebago, and COG represents 14 municipalities in those two counties and Calumet County.

Anderson said today that he favored more talks with Northeastern but felt that the county leaders should be involved immediately "because they are the ones who will have to be involved in the final analysis.

"They're the ones who are going to have to sell this to each county," he added.

Anderson said Friday that he delegates feel that at least the three mid-valley counties should be in the new agency while others, including Oshkosh Common Council President Byron Murken apparently feel that the eight counties of the governor's administrative districts should be planning boundary lines.

Either arrangement would mean a change from the existing boundaries of both Northeastern and COG. Northeastern's members reach north to Lake Superior while the administrative districts are around Lake Winnebago and west.

House is 'Quiet' After 28 Children

CHILTON — There was an odd quietness at the Leander Schierl home in rural Chilton Sunday.

It was that strange quietness that envelops a home when the last of its children has gone . . . the "last" of the Schierl's children departed Sunday.

The baby was the 28th that the Schierls had cared for during 12 years as foster parents with the Manitowoc Apostulate.

It may have been a little sad for the Schierls to give up what they knew was their last foster child. But whatever sadness there may have been was tempered by the knowledge that the child was getting a good permanent home.

"Caring for the foster children has been a familyl affair," said Mrs. Schierl. "We first got started as foster parents when my daughter was going to St. Gregory's at St. Nazianz. She felt that there was such a need for foster parents, she asked if we could care for these children."

"The foster children became as much of our lives as our own family did, said Mrs. Schierl. Now that my youngest daughter is 16, and I have 13 grandchildren who are visiting grampa and grandma, we are going to call it quits.

"It will seem strange, though, not having a little one around. One becomes very attached to the children. However, after you see that they are placed in a good home, you are happy for the baby's sake and that kind of takes the place of your own personal emptiness," says Mrs. Schierl.

The Schierls, have six children of their own ranging in age from 16 to 33.

Spring vacation to be Shaved to Make Up for 'Snow School Days'

CLINTONVILLE — The three school days canceled due to snow will be made up during the public schools' spring vacation, according to Supt. V. J. Wadleigh.

The start of the spring vacation has been moved from April 5 to April 8, leaving two school days and a weekend of vacation.

"We're trying to be as conservative as possible about closing school," Wadleigh said. "We can't go beyond four closed days because that's all we can take off the spring vacation."

He said that making up the missed days during the spring vacation seemed the only solution because "tagging on days at the end of the year is just a waste of time and making up time on Saturdays is often difficult for students, parents and teachers."

Emphasis on Area-Wide Water Utility Growing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The area-wide public water utility will probably be more seriously considered as the urbanization of the state continues for the rest of the century, says the water supply division of the state Department of Natural Resources.

Officers of the division say they hope the department will put more emphasis upon the desirability of planning for such utilities to serve broader districts with steady increases in the total numbers of consumers of potable water.

The plan was described in a report on water supply methods, problems and future needs prepared for the Council of Environmental Advisers of the parent department.

"It is very possible that the number of individual systems will decrease through consolidation into area-wide utilities," it was said. "Such problems as water quality, well interference, efficient and competent operation and others could be solved by preventing the proliferation of small supply systems and encouraging larger utilities crossing corporate boundaries to develop the best available sources of water rather than to rely on a scattering of wells in the immediate area."

There are now about 650 independent public water utilities in the state, serving about 70 per cent of the total state population.

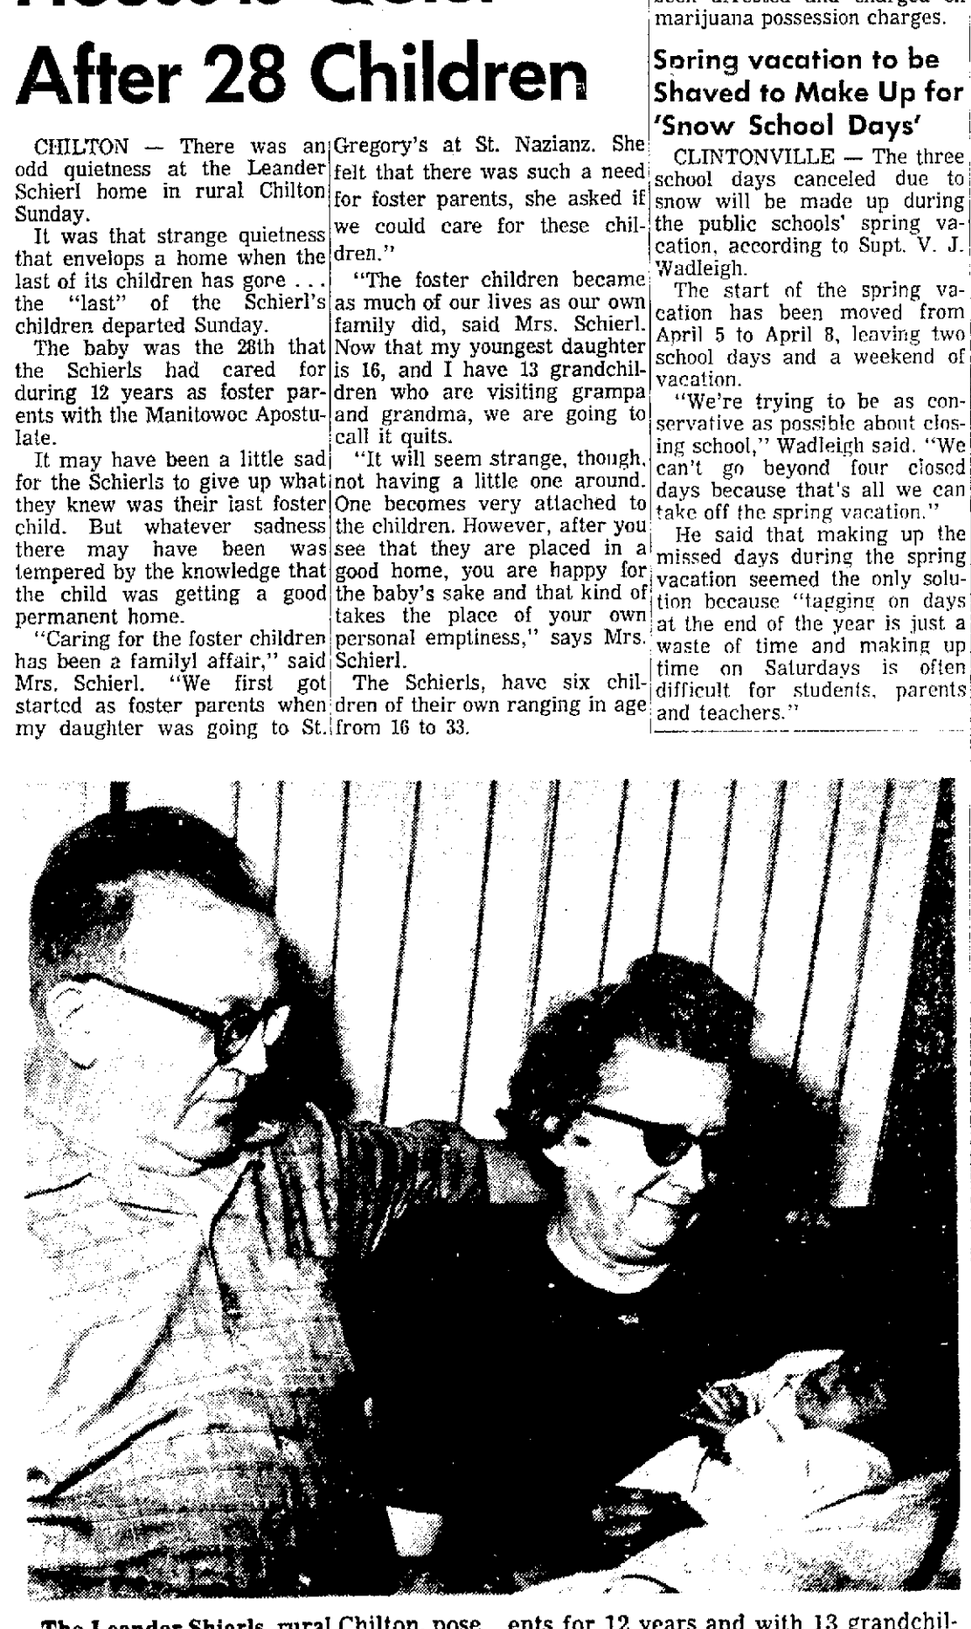
Officers of the division said that authorization for district-wide utilities without necessary regard for corporate limits of municipalities may require additional legislation.

They said that "preparation of such plans should begin now before population pressures and increased water use necessitate independent crash programs." They should be worked out with local, county and regional planning agencies, it was said.

Water supply demands will grow, in the view of the state supervising bureau, and the waterworks of the state will be required "to deliver more water at reasonable costs." They said they hope to develop technology for better delivery of water and better treatment at lower costs.

Wisconsin now is consuming 440,000,000 gallons of water from public water utilities daily, and the demand will continue to grow for the remainder of the century, the state specialists assert.

The 520,000,000 gallon daily requirement foreseen for the year 2,000 won't be particulary dramatic, they noted, but it will represent for the most part the growth of demand and consumption in the urban areas. Some of the demands in the metropolitan communities will double, and possiby triple, according to such estimates.



The Leander Shierls, rural Chilton, pose with their 28th foster child before it left Sunday for its new permanent home. The Shierls have been foster parents for 12 years and with 13 grandchildren of their own now have decided to "call it quits." (Post-Crescent Photo)

Fate of Trust to be Determined

Menominees to Vote April 3

Post-Crescent News Service

OCONTO — Menominee Indians will vote April 3 to determine the fate of the Menominee Common Stock and Voting Trust, nearly four months after they were enjoined from voting on the matter by Circuit Court Judge James Martineau.

Martineau, who issued an injunction Dec. 11 forbidding any balloting at the annual Menominee Enterprises, Inc., shareholders meeting Dec. 12, also signed the order setting a new date.

Charge Mismanagement

The action came near the end of a daylong pretrial conference here Friday, between Enterprises attorneys and those for Wisconsin Judicare and the American Civil Liberties Union. Judicare and ACLU attorneys represent a group called DRUMS (Determination for Rights and Unity of Menominee Shareholders), an activist group of Menominees opposing certain actions and philosophies of Enterprises, the Indian-owned corporation which administers the lands and properties of the Menominee Indian tribe in Menominee County.

DRUMS, since its formation in midsummer of 1970, has repeatedly charged mismanagement of Menominee business affairs by Enterprises. Of particular interest to DRUMS, and the subject of numerous protest marches and demonstrations, has been the lakes of the Menominees project near Keshena, where several small natural lakes have been dredged out to create three large lakes.

Enterprises says the lakes project, a joint venture of enterprises and N. E. Isaacson and Associates of Reedsburg, a lake developer, is to broaden the Menominee County tax base through the sale of lake lots, more than double the tax base to $45 million.

DRUMS charges the project is illegally selling and despoiling Indian lands. They have focused their attack on the voting trust seeking for rank and file shareholders a more direct voice in company affairs.

Under the aMssachusetts Voting Trust principle which was adopted in 1961 when Menominee Enterprises, Inc., was created to administer tribal properties after termination of federal control, shareholders do not vote directly for company directors. They vote instead for members of the common stock and voting trust who, in turn, elect the directors.

At the end of each 10-year period, shareholders have the option to eliminate the voting trust by majority ballot. The first such period will end in May, and if the stockholders do not expressly vote discontinuance of the trust it will continue until 1981.

At Friday's pretrial conference in Oconto, attorneys for Enterprises and DRUMS attempted to determine which issues will be tried in court before the April 3 election. Five major issues have been outlined and may be further condensed at a second pretrial conference slated Feb. 18 at 11 a.m. at Oconto.

Several Issues

Issues to be decided before the corporation's election April 3 include:

— Whether the First Wisconsin Trust Corp. of Milwaukee, which votes by proxy for all Menominee minors and incompetents, is entitled to vote the certificates of the 18 to 21-year-olds who have not been judicially declared incompetent.

— The form of notice and the manner in which notice is to be given to shareholders announcing the adjourned annual meeting.

— What certificates must be counted or excluded in the election. Separate decisions must be made regarding deceased beneficiaries for whom no personal representative nas been appointed, and, certificates the owners of which neither the plaintiffs, DRUMS, nor the defendants, Enterprises, have been able to locate.

— Whether the directors of the corporation should conduct the election meeting, or the court require them to hire an accountant for that purpose.

— Finally, a determination must be reached on whether an action enlarging the number of trustees of the voting trust, from 7 to 11, is valid. If this is declared valid, stockholders also will elect five members to the voting trust April 3 — provided they first vote continuance of the trust.

Terminology Is A Big Problem

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — There is no problem at the Pentagon in organizing bombing and strafing raids in Indochina. The real difficulty is what to call them.

A special section of the Defense Department has been set up to supply the secretary of defense and his spokesmen with various alternatives to describe the air war in Indochina.

Every morning promptly at

Buchwald

8 o'clock, the committee which is call BULL (Bureau for Lethal Logic) meets to discuss what the day's raids will be called.

A typical meeting goes something like this

"We've got 20 B52s bombing Cambodia today What do we say we're doing?"

"We're interdicting enemy supply routes from the North?"

"We said that yesterday Why don't we say the strike is a defensive measure to speed up the Vietnamization program?"

"We used that phrase three days ago to explain why our helicopters were supporting Cambodian troops."

"Why don't we say we're bombing North Vietnam to enhance the Nixon policy of speeding up the withdrawal of American boys from Vietnam?"

"That's not bad But it would be stronger if we announced the raid was made to wipe out Communist sanctuaries that were being used to build up an offensive which is expected to be launched after the rainy season"

"How would we say it?"

"We could say that our air operation in Cambodia was being conducted to limit the enemy potential before they can bring it to bear effectively against friendly forces in the area."

"That's beautiful, General. No one's ever put it that way before."

"This may sound as if it's coming from left field, gentlemen, but I thought we might blame Congress for the raid The secretary could announce that all he was doing was following the letter of the law which was passed by Congress to support any action by the President that would bring our American boys back home"

"It's worth running up the flagpole, Colonel"

"One of the people in my office had a unique suggestion. He thought we might announce that the B52s were not bombing in Cambodia but were just making a defensive ordnance drop on fixed enemy positions"

"I like the sound of that Let's write it down before we forget it"

"Has anyone thought about saying that we were neutralizing a free-fire area?""

"Neutralizing is a good word It has an innocent ring to it"

"I don't want to top you, but what if we said we were neutralizing Cambodia to protect its neutrality?"

"Wow That's get everything it it"

"I know you guys think I'm a hardliner, but I think we should stop beating around the bush and announce we're bombing the hell out of Cambodia to kill as many Dinks as we can, so the dirty Red SOBs will become true believers"

"You want the secretary of defense to ...ay that?""

Why not? That's what we're doing, aren't we?""

Soviet Tightens Hold On Egyptian Leaders

Russian Naval Base in Mediterranean Seen If UN Peace Efforts Are Failure

BY ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The dangerous prospect that the Soviet Union may soon have a Soviet-controlled naval base on the Mediterranean coast of Egypt is now being taken here with utmost seriousness.

Equally foreboding, pro-Western Arab leaders themselves are now saying privately that if Israel does not soon agree to withdraw from the Egyptian Sinai Peninsula — a key objective of UN Ambassador Gunnar Jarring's Arab-Israeli peace mission — the Egyptian government may come under the eventual political control of Moscow as the price for continued Soviet aid.

Although the fears of pro-Western Egyptian politicians about growing Soviet political control inside Egypt are couched in carefully restrained language, the danger of such a calamitous political development cannot be overstated. It could mean, as a starter, a Soviet-flag naval base on the Mediterranean, a far cry from the present arrangement under which the Egyptians give the Russians supply and loading facilities at Egyptians give the Russians supply and loading facilities at Egyptian ports.

Beyond that, it could mean gradual Soviet political control over the government of President Anwar Sadat — or a new, far more pro-Soviet government put in power by Soviet pressure.

Balanced Government

This prospect may seem ridiculous to many American politicians who hold the mistaken view that the Soviet Union already wields something close to total control over Egypt.

In fact, however, the new government of President Sadat, who succeeded Gamal Abdel Nasser, was carefully structured to balance off pro-Soviet and pro-American politicians. For example, the new prime minister, Mohammed Fawzi, has long been regarded as Western-oriented. Aly Sabri, the leading radical politician with strong pro-Soviet sympathies, was made a deputy prime minister.

The failure of the United Nations' new peace effort to break any new ground — at least thus far — is tipping this internal political balance sharply in Moscow's direction every day the deadlock continues. With the U. S., as Israel's No. 1 ally damned by the Egyptian intelligensia, the army, and ruling politicians, Washington is held responsible for Israel's continued occupation of the Sinai. Accordingly, the built-in political dynamic in Egypt works progressively against the United States.

This, in turn, is reducing the influence of pro-Western members of Sadat's government and increasing the political power of the pro-Soviet clique now jockeying for supreme power inside the government.

Consolidate Influence

The Russians are naturally taking full advantage of this political dynamic. In exchange for the vast military aid going to Egypt, they are demanding ever higher political rewards. Thus, consolidation of Soviet influence inside Cairo now grows at an alarming pace.

Moreover, even the most staunch pro-Western Arab statesmen say flatly that if they are presented the choice of "surrender" to Israel on the Sinai question or "surrender" to Moscow by ceding more and more political power to the Russians, the white flag would go without question to the Russians.

This danger is far more apparent to top U. S. policymakers today than a year ago, when Nasser himself privately began to warn the Nixon administration of his inability to withstand Soviet political pressures forever. At that time, the Pentagon was the main source of urgent advice to President Nixon to apply pressue on Israel to evaluate the Sinai. The well-spring of that advice was the Navy, where the mere possibility of a Soviet-flag base on the Mediterranean is convulsive.

Since then, however, other prime Presidential advisers are coming to see the political-military equation in the same light: that until Israel withdraws from the Sinai, an area equal to about one - tenth of Egypt, Soviet influence over Egypt's internal politics can only go higher, with an outright takeover as the ultimate reward.

Until recently, those who now accept this argument tended to dismiss it as simply Egyptian sophistry — a scarecrow thrown up by Cairo in hopes of forcing Washington to pressure Israel off the Sinai. Now, however, they acknowledge it as a paramount danger, the removal of which is possible only by an Isareli decision to withdraw from the Sinai as part of an overall settlement.

Lucey Announces 2 Appointments

MADISON (AP)— Two more appointments were made by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey during the weekend as his new administration continued steps toward firmer control of state departments.

Daniel C. Smith was named temporary administrator of the Department of Revenue and Stratton E. Hicks was selected state highway engineer - designate.

Smith takes over for James Morgan, who resigned effective today, until a permanent replacement is found.

Hicks will assume his new job while the present engineer, W. J. Burmeister, performs his duties as president of the American Association of State Highway Engineers. And he will replace Burmeister permanently next year.

Clintonville Store Enacts Service Award for Employes

CLINTONVILLE — The Schultz Brothers Co. Store has recently enacted an Employe Service Award in order to thank employes for years of continued good service.

The award consists of a brooch for women and a combination tie-tack, lapel pin for men.

Local employes recognized were Ada Fritz for 43 years of service. Maizie Smith for 33 years, Dorothy Laux for 23 years, and Howard Cross and Roger Mech for 16 years.

Lois Glocke and Lila Krueger received brooches for 11 years of service. Brooches were given to Delores Mehlberg for nine years, Elaine Paroubek for eight years, Marie Ewald for six years, and Dorothy Zeuske for four years' service.

Hephner Co-Author of Bill Opposing Corporate Farming

MADISON — State Rep Hephner, D-Chilton, today announced the introduction of the 1971 version of the corporate farm bill

Hephner, a co-author of the bill, pointed out that the bill basically would prevent large corporations from acquiring land for farming operations

Hephner also pointed out that this version of the corporate farm bill would not require corporations presently holding farmlands to divest themselves of such holdings

"With economic conditions as they are in Wisconsin, I would find it difficult to support legislation that may interfere with existing rural business presently operating in Wisconsin, and thereby increase unemployment."

"The problem in Wisconsin is not that corporations presently hold too much farmland, but that continued purchasing could create a problem," Hephner said.

The bill provides for a forfeiture of $1,000 for any violation of its provisions and declares that each day the violation continues constitutes a separate offense and is subject to a daily forfeiture of $1,000

"The provisions of this bill and the penalties for violation of those provisions should be tough enough to deter any corporatin from acquiring any additional farmland in Wisconsin," he said

Corporations exempted from the provision of this bill include:

A cooperative corporation, 75 per cent of whose membership shall be actual farmers or persons who depend principally on farming for a living. This would include any farmer or farm family that decides to incorporate his farm

Corporations engaged in forestry management or the production of forest products or holding land for forestry purposes only

Corporations acquiring, holding or leasing land for agricultural experiments not for profit

Commercial seed firms raising seed primarily for resale

AAL Branch 496 Plans Film Night At Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — Branch 496 of the Aid Association for Lutherans is sponsoring a film night for St. Martin Lutheran Church members at 7 p.m. Friday at the church's school gymnasium. Members of area AAL branches may attend.

Showing at 7 p.m. will be "Greta, the Misfit Greyhound;" at 8 p.m., "The Pigeon That Worked A Miracle," and at 9 p.m., a repeat of the first film.

Refreshments will be served in Fellowship Hall after the last two showings.

A free will offering will be taken, to be used for the St. Martin Lutheran Church school. Items needed include an overhead projector and final payment on the new bubbler.

Insurance, Bonding Course to be Offered At Technical Institute

Principles of casualty insurance and surety bonding will be covered in a 13-session course to be offered at the Fox Valley Technical Institute at Neenah.

The course will be from 7 to 9 p.m. on 13 consecutive Wednesdays, beginning Feb. 10. The cost is $38, including registration fee, textbook, outline and study guide.

It is part of the Insurance Institute of America's continuing educational opportunity course.

Further information and registration procedures are available from James Young, business education coordinator for FVTI or at the Neenah school.

VISTA to Interview At Lawrence

Representatives of VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) will be on the Lawrence campus Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday to conduct interviews with anyone interested in the program.

Hours will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the placement office Sampson Hall.

Interviewers currently are searching in four areas of expertise; including law, business, education and architecture. The purpose of the program is to bring people knowledgeable in these fields to the depressed rural and urban areas to help the poor.

The legal aid program, in both rural and urban areas, is new.

Vista volunteers serve one year throughout the U.S. and its territories.

Cold to Continue

Icy 15 m.p.h. winds and a temperature reading of -15 degrees this morning combined to greet breadwinners, students and harried mothers with a biting -51 degrees in wind chill as they set out on their appointed rounds.

Not everyone could "set out," however, as taxicab and towing firms could well testify.

Yellow Cab reported running up to an hour behind schedule early this morning because so many cars refused to start. Fox Valley Cab has been "going strong" since 6 a.m. when businessmen and factory personnel began to get moving.

The three wreckers at Peotter Towing Service, Inc., have been "going full time" the whole weekend, according to a spokesman, providing tows and starts, pulling cars out of ditches and repairing truck breakdowns.

Femal's Service reported having all the towing business "we can handle, and more."

The weather bureau at Green Bay said today that below zero temperatures had covered the state throught the weekend, with lows ranging from -46 at Phillips to -4 at Burlington this morning.

Temperatures in the Fox Cities Sunday ranged from -5 to -15.

The forecast calls for continued cold tonight and Tuesday with temperatures getting down to around -18 to -20 tonight.

Temperatures Tuesday should climb to five above zero, the first time since Saturday.

The weather bureau also reported that last month was the coldest January since 1929, and that the most snow since 1943 had fallen in that month.

Wednesday should be a little warmer as the frigid air mass that has gripped Wisconsin is pushed south and east by warm air from the west.

Some 20.4 inches of snow fell on the Fox Cities last month, 9.8 inches above the average, according to Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.

The State Division of Highways reported today that main traveled roads north of a line from Red Wing, Minn., to Oconto have slippery spots and slippery stretches. Roads south of that line were in good winter driving condition.

All Interstate routes were described as clear and dry.

Lesser traveled highways in the northeast had slippery conditions.

As bitter cold continued to grip Wisconsin today, the Sun Prairie groundhog was resting fitfully in preparation for his annual task of weather prognostication.

The groundhog, named Jimmy, will be on duty at sunrise Tuesday morning. If he sees his shadow, tradition has it, there'll be six more weeks of winter. If not, the state can anticipate an early spring. In any event, Jimmy's reaction will be the same —he'll be back in hibernation by noon.

Actually, two groundhogs were roused from their sound sleep on the Eric Lenz farm near Sun Prairie during the weekend. Jimmy himself, and Jimmy Jr., who's being groomed to follow in his father's footsteps.

Mrs. Lenz said that the two groundhogs don't like the exceptionally cold weather any better than other Wisconsin residents. "They were really sleeping this year, more so than last year," she said.

The only area to break the barrier Sunday was Beloit, where the mercury made it to 1 above. Other highs ranged between -3 at Madison and Lone Rock and -9 at Superior.

There were a few scattered snow flurries in the far north Sunday, with some snow falling again today in the Hurley and Eau Claire areas.

Lows in the state early today ranged down to -26 at Eagle River. The coldest reading, -31, was recorded at Roseau, Minn.

Beloit was the warmest with -5.

Highest reading in the nation Sunday was 93 at Brownsville and McAllen, Tex.

Telephone Firm Plans Building In Industrial Park

Wisconsin Telephone Co. is exercising an option taken last August on a 4.6-acre track in the Northeast Industrial Park, where the company plans to build an additional garage and office for service vehicles.

The telephone company will pay the city $19.233 for the land.

According to a company spokesman in the Milwaukee main office, the service garage is planned for construction this year.

It will be built to telephone company specifications and leased to the company by the builder. Specifications are expected to be completed in a month or two, the spokesman said, and will be submitted to bidding.

Telephone company service operations for this area are now headquartered in facilities in Neenah and in Appleton on Ballard Road.

Christus Church Women to Meet

CLINTONVILLE — The general meeting of the Christus Lutheran Church Women will be at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Parish Hall.

The guest speaker will be Paul Nyga from the Wolf River Mental Health Center, Shawano. His subject will be "Mental Health" and what is being done in that field.

The public is invited to hear his talk.

The meeting will open with devotions. A short business meeting and lunch will follow the speaker's talk.

No Opposition for Chilton Aldermen

CHILTON — There will be no opposition in the April election for Chilton aldermen according to City Clerk Arthur Pohland.

Three incumbent aldermen have filed nomination papers. They include Robert Larsen, 1st Ward, who seeks his first full term after an appointment last year; Dr. H.S. Kalinka, who seeks his third term in the 2nd Ward; Arnold Weeler, who seeks his sixth term in the 4th Ward, and Donald Parsons, who seeks his fourth term in the 3rd Ward.

Professor to Discuss Butterfly Reproduction

Assist. Prof. Allen M. Young, who before joining the Lawrence biology faculty last September was a researcher for the Organization for Tropical Studies, will speak at Lawrence University's Science Colloquium on Thursday.

The coloquium, open to the public, will be at 4:30 p.m. in room 161, Youngchild Hall of Science.

Nationwide Ranking

State Legislature No. 5

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Citizens Conference on State Legislatures has ranked Wisconsin fifth in an evaluation of capability among the 50 state lawmaking bodies.

California was rated at the top of the list, New York second, Illinois third, Florida fourth, Iowa sixth, Hawaii seventh, Michigan eighth, Nebraska ninth and Minnesota tenth.

Results of the study by the non-profit, non-partisan organization were announced today. The rating, it said, was based on how well the operations of the legislatures reflected minimum standards of democracy and efficiency.

Each legislature's operating ability was judged on the basis of evidence showing the degree to which it is functional, accountable, informed, independent and representative.

Wisconsin was ranked seventh on "functional," 21st on "accountable," third on "informed," fourth on "independent," and 10th on "representative."

The report praised Wisconsin's Legislature for its openness and accessibility; its control over its use of time, made possible by the unlimited nature of legislative sessions; its informational resources made possible by the variety of professional staff services available, the opportunity afforded to individual legislators for effective legislative action.

The study report said the Wisconsin Senate had improved steadily in recent years but the Assembly has lagged "mainly because of a lack of continuity brought about by frequent changes in party control."

Proposals for strengthening the Wisconsin Legislature recommended by the study group included:

—Reducing the number of Assembly committees from 26 to 13.

—Publishing uniform rules of procedure in the Assembly.

—Speedy printing of bill amendments.

—Improved press facilities.

Also recommended were increasing legislative salaries to the $15,000-$20,000 range from the present $6,000, and the provision of staff assistance to leaders and individual members of both parties.

With reference to opportunities afforded individual members to initiate legislation, the report noted that most of the lawmakers had invidual office space, that legislators are elected from single member districts and that a pre-session orientation conference is provided. It also noted approvingly that legislators are prohibited from having an interest in any firm doing business with the state.

'Piggy Back' Insurance Gets Limited Approval

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Across the country in recent weeks, full-page newspaper ads have been offering you special hospitalization insurance plans under which, for a small fee, you can get $100 or more a week if you are hospitalized for sickness or accident And you can get the benefits in cash until either you've used up $10,000 or you die

"No age limit No medical examination required No investigations Just tax-free cash protection for you and your loved ones," says one insurance company which advertised $100-a-week-up-to-$10,000 in New York several days ago "For people of all ages and families of all sizes," the company added quoting premiums ranging from $2 95 a month for a man between the ages of 18 and 45 to $6 50 a month for a man aged 75 or over

"Are these plans any good?" asked my editor "Must people buy them during the restricted periods advertised or can we buy the insurance wherever we want and whenever we want? How can the companies make money on such small premiums?"

Most are Good

Answers Yes, the plans are good for most of you, variations of them are sold by many companies so just ask any reputable company whether it has a plan available for you, the costs to you are so low because the plans are mainly marketed through newspaper ads direct mail and credit card billing stuffers or with very low commissions to agents — all inexpensive ways of selling and thus justifying the small premiums

"But buy these plans only as piggy-back coverage on existing Blue Cross or other basic hospitalization plans," warns Milton Schiff, president of Madison Life Insurance Co, a New York-based insurance company which has pioneered in piggy-back medical insurance

"Your Blue Cross type policies provide you with many other benefits in addition to your room and board Check these benefits

"And by all means, obey the fundamental rule of buying insurance only from a company or companies licensed in your state"

Your interest in hospitalization insurance never has been greater than today for the simple reason that the costs of hospitalization never have been so staggering

Need Supplement

As a result, the importance of piggy-back coverage never has been so crucial to millions of Americans, emphasizes Schiff "People need policies to supplement their basic hospitalization and protect them from financial disaster in case of catastrophic illness"

The simple inexpensive policies to which I referred above provide cash benefits from $10 to $50 a day, payable each day you are hospitalized, usually without time limit The money might go for such items as private rooms, private nursing care physicians' fees, convalescent costs extra home expenses The annual premiums for a man about 40 years old would be $33 to $36

But on top of this the whole area of piggy-back major medical policies is suddenly opening up One New York company, for instance, is now offering a piggy-back to current major medical insurance policies which would pay up to $100,000 in extra benefits after the holder has used up his deductible of between $6 000 and $30 000 of benefits under his existing coverage The annual premium for the entire family might be as low as $60 to $70 a year

When national health insurance — with protection against the skyrocketing costs of catastrophic illness or accident — becomes law, the need for this sort of protection will diminish or disappear

But even though bills for this sort of insurance already have been introduced into the 92nd Congress and even though President Nixon may grab the lead in urging the insurance, the timing of passage of this legislation is far from certain, and surely way off

So, if you have use for piggy-back insurance buy it — while heeding the warnings in this report

Share of National Debt Now More Than $2,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the federal debt in fiscal 1972 were divided equally among Americans it would mean each would owe more than $2,000

The estimated debt under President Nixon's proposed $229 2 billion budget sent to Congress last week totals $429 4 billion

By dividing the latest population estimate of 206 433,000 into the estimated debt in fiscal 1972 the per capita debt is $2 080

President Sends Boy Long Answer to Query

CLINTON, Mass (AP) — Last month 9-year-old Jimmy Hazel sent President Nixon a Christmas card, asking him how his family was and if he would stop the Vietnam war

Recently, he received his answer—23 pages of it

The legal-sized pages actually were a transcript of the President s recent televised press interview Along with it came a printed card thanking Jimmy for his good wishes

"I'm telling you, he hopped, skipped and jumped," Jimmy's mother said "He couldn't believe it He was absolutely amazed"

School Districts

Hilbert, Stockbridge Will Decide on Merger Question

HILBERT — Electors in the Hilbert School District will cast advisory votes tonight on whether a referendum should be conducted regarding a merge of the district with Stockbridge Voting will follow a public informational meeting set for 8 p m at the high school

Tuesday night the Stockbridge district will hold a similar meeting to decide whether it favors a referendum on the merge

Both boards of education voted unanimously at a joint meeting to seek the vote after information had been compiled in a brochure and distributed to all electors These brochures should be brought to the informational meetings

Ballots from the Hilbert meeting tonight will be sealed and will not be counted until Tuesday night Boards of education from both districts will attend the two meetings to answer questions

State Colleges To Have ROTC

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two state colleges in Wisconsin have been approved for new Reserve Officer Training Corps programs in the current school year, the Army said recently

The Army said 42 universities and colleges applied, and that 12 were selected, mostly to fill vacancies caused by decisions of other schools to cancel ROTC programs

The new schools include Stout State University and La Crosse State University.

Blind Fear of Drug's Side Effects Foolish

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr Thosteson I Your informative comments on rheumatoid arthritis and use of cortisone were the clearest I have read on the subject

One question remains After using cortisone for several years, if signs of side effects should appear, would discontinuing the cortisone reverse the damage or would it be permanent?

What of indomethacin or other drugs as to effectiveness and side effects? — M B J

There's been excessive concern about 'side effects," in my opinion, but that remark doesn't apply to today's letter So many times I've been told, 'The doctor prescribed — but I read so much about side effects that I never took any"

Today's question, however, is a reasonable one Blind fear of "side effects' is unreasonable but reasonable awareness of them is only good sense

Cortisone is useful for some cases of arthritis when a small maintenance dose brings results This often can be continued for a long time With small dosage side effects, if any, will not be either sudden or catastrophic

Thus if such signs as water retention may in time begin to appear, they will subside when the cortisone is stopped (This medication should be withdrawn gradually, not abruptly)

Therefore, there is ample time to avoid the more serious possibilities which develop with large and continued dosage — bone fragility, mental disturbance and the like It is the excessive use not the moderate use, that can lead to permanent damage

The same principle in general applies to other potent medications which are effective in combating rheumatoid arthritis Indomethacin (and even the widely-used aspirin) can in some patients cause stomach irritation and intestinal bleeding In either case taking the medication immediately after meals lessens the possibility of this trouble

It is the doctor's responsibility to watch for signs of any of the rarer side effects But for a patient to try to learn all the remote possibilities does no good and makes him usually into a worry-wart

Dear Dr Thosteson Congratulations You have at last discontinued that wretched 'Dr" and used the proper "M D" Any quack, or cult member can call himself 'doctor" I am 80 years old and have seen ignorant people die from going to some of these self-styled "doctors" and getting no care for a serious condition — E R

It's a problem I always write the M D after my name but some editors switch it to a "Dr" because it's just a shade shorter, and makes my name short enough to stay in one line of type

I d prefer that they shorten it by using just my initials G C Thosteson M D if necessary because I think readers deserve to know that I a Doctor of Medicine A fair number have written to ask me For the record I'm an M D, board-certified specialist in internal medicine, and F A C P — that last meaning fellow of the American College of Physicians

Dear Dr Thosteson I am considering taking birth control pills and was wondering what the effect would be, if any on a woman who is unknowingly pregnant when she begins the pills? — Mrs J T

Very early in pregnancy, the pill could affect the baby To be on the safe side, why not do what many women do? That is start the pills right after a period so you know you aren t pregnant then

Arthritis sufferers can be helped Dr Thosteson s booklet disusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as outlining effective treatments and medications For a copy of 'How You Can Control Arthritis' write to Dr Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope

Nixon Vetoes Florida Canal

The financing of the St. Lawrence Seaway, which must pay off its construction costs through user tolls, has always stood in contrast with pork barrel rivers and harbors projects which get through Congress with political pressures and horsetrading. One such project was the across-Florida barge canal, which President Nixon now has halted as an ecological mistake.

The canal, consisting of 107 miles of new dredging and use of 78 miles of the St. John River, would have cut 360 miles from the canal route now operating across southern Florida. The saving in distance for ships which could fit into the new canal would have been 600 miles in comparison to going around the Florida peninsula.

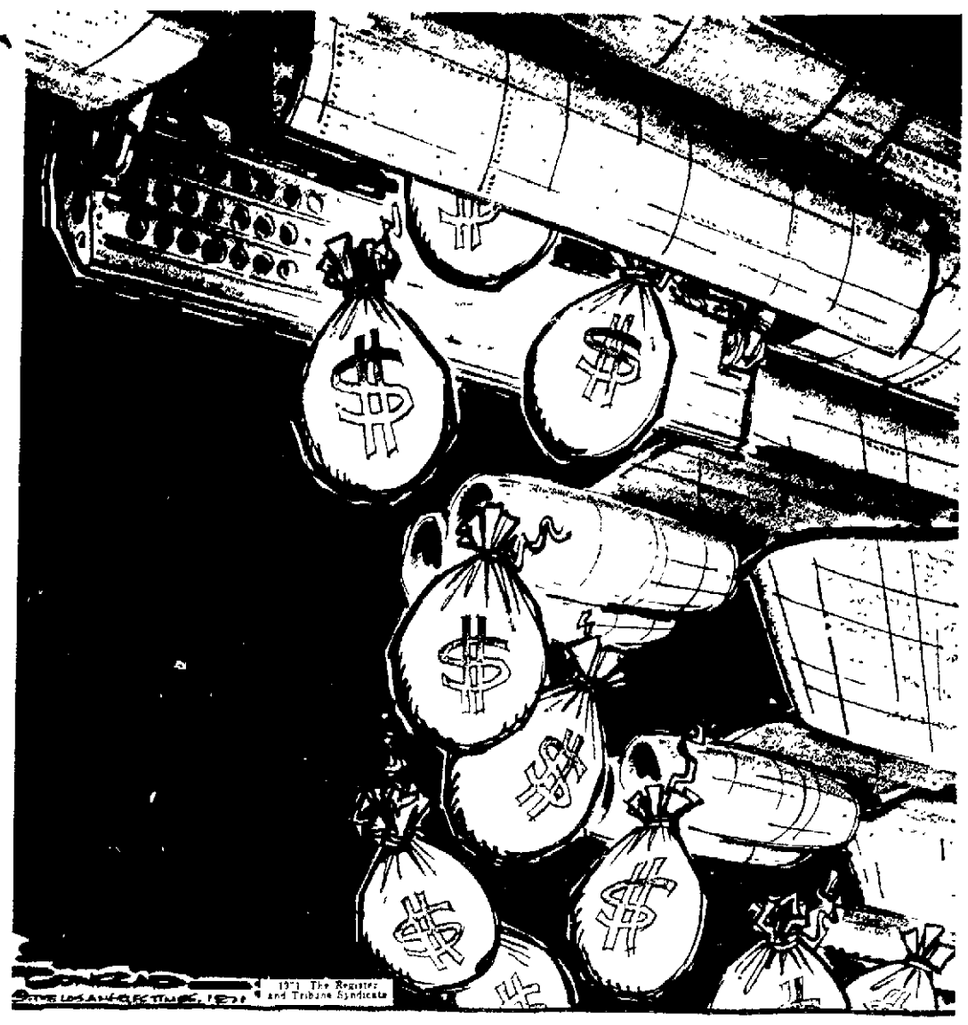
As these things are done, the U. S. Corps of Engineers came up with a report showing that commercial benefits would come out ahead of costs. But then, the corps' reports most always come out this way.

The official finding in favor of the canal did not take into account complaints of Florida conservationists, also not unusual until the public concern for the environment of the past few years. In his order, Mr. Nixon said his new Council on Environmental Quality had recommended the project be halted because it could "endanger the unique wildlife of the area and destroy this region of unusual and unique natural beauty." Halting the canal, said the President, will prevent a past mistake from causing permanent damage.

Aside from the environmental issue, the President could have mentioned the estimated $200 million federal price tag for the canal. Some $50 million already has been spent, which is quite a mistake in dollars alone.

The President's decision, with all the possible political consequences which must be acknowledged, is an encouraging recognition of what must come first in America if it really means what it is saying about environmental pollution and more intelligent use of public funds. In 1964, President Johnson set off a blast in the Florida countryside to mark the start of the project and hailed it as a "100-mile gold mine (and) a river of commerce."

Mr. Nixon's conclusion that more important things must be measured against a 360-mile canal shortcut is an indication of the rethinking which has gone on in America in the few years since Mr. Johnson spoke those familiar platitudes of "progress."



'Revenue-Sharing' In Southeast Asia

What Does Military Aid Really Cost?

Through his chairmanship of the Joint Economic Subcommittee on Economy in Government, Wisconsin Sen. William Proxmire proposes to find out exactly how much the nation is spending in military aid to foreign countries. If the senator can bring it off, it will be an accomplishment to dwarf his activities in establishing the cost overruns of the C-5A transport plane and the slowdown of federal money for the supersonic transport.

The taxpayer is entitled to think that all which should be involved is a simple search through the federal budget for the appropriate figures and some following addition. But it is not quite that way, even making allowances for the way the bureaucracy explains things.

In the federal budget, the entry for military grants and credits to other nations totals $625 million. But as the General Accounting Office already has pointed out to the subcommittee, the total really ought to be about $5 billion a year. That's quite a gap, and even that may not be the whole story.

How can this departure from fundamental accounting practices exist? There are several explanations. For example, when military aid to South Vietnam, Laos and Thailand became politically noticeable in 1967, the Pentagon pulled this spending out of the general military aid account and set up something called "free world forces aid." In the past fiscal year, this has been composed of some $2.2 billion in direct aid to the three countries, $518 million in support assistance, $1.4 billion in arms sales and the transfer of $224 million worth of American military equipment.

Since the start of post-World War II military aid agreements, recorded appropriations have been for direct grants and credits to other nations. The budget will show that actual direct grants have been reduced since the start of the program.

But this does not acknowledge what actually has been the case. The Pentagon, for example, has been using sales of arms through United States-guaranteed reduced credit arrangments. The Pentagon also, until the practice was stopped last year, could turn over equipment declared as surplus to other nations without asking for congressional approval. When other nations were not able to finance military investment to the point of joint defense agreements, the United States could provide "supporting assistance," which amounted to outright dollar grants to foreign economies, hopefully with the result that they would be able to meet the joint defense agreements.

One of the strangest items in this type of bookkeeping has been the rechanneling of "food for peace" funds into purchase of military equipment. This has totaled nearly $700 million in the past five years, $108 million of which in the past fiscal year was transferred in South Vietnam, Laos, and Thailand.

Proxmire has characterized all this as "unmanagement," in contrast to the more typical charge of mismanagement. The American arsenal of democracy, Proxmire suggests, has been turned into "a gigantic discount supermarket with no checkout counters, no cash registers, no store manager — only clerks who blithely deliver to foreign governments of practically any political persuasion whatever they happen to see and like."

Those words may be a little on the strong side, intended to illustrate the size of the task before the Proxmire subcommittee. The military assistance programs include necessity as well as waste and boondoggling. But the nation, through the subcommittee's investigation, should be told exactly how much it is spending for military assistance and why.

Doubts About Robin Hood

It's almost as bad as when Virginia wrote doubting that there was a Santa Claus.

A retired history teacher in England has been spending his time researching Robin Hood. He has come to the conclusion that there never was anyone by that name at all. There was instead Alfred de Hunterden, a noble who was driven out of his manor house and estate because he revolted against Henry II. Richard the Lion Hearted and bad old King John never came into the picture at all. Neither did Friar Tuck, Little John or Maid Marian. Alf didn't wear Lincoln green and he probably never was closer to Sherwood Forest than fifty miles. Instead of the nasty sheriff of Nottingham forever pursuing him, it was the Bishop of Lichfield who did happen to be sheriff of Staffordshire.

It does seem to be true that Alf stole from the rich but the teacher, Charles Wilkes, has found no record that he gave any of his gains to the poor.

Sometimes it seems that myths are a lot more inspiring than the hard truths. At least they are more readable.

Looking Backward

Remember Dr. Von Schultz?

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for Jan. 28, 1871.

Many of our readers will remember Dr. Von Schultz, an eccentric and unprincipled German physician who created considerable excitement about a year ago by shooting a flock of sheep near Weyauwega and afterward stealing a livery team at Fond du Lac.

He took the team to Milwaukee, sold it, eluded the vigilance of the officers, went to Detroit, thence to New York, and finally to Europe. A few weeks ago he was arrested by the French authorities near Metz as a Prussian spy. He was tried, found guilty and was sentenced to be shot and was summarily executed, although protesting his innocence and declaring he was a naturalized American citizen.

He was a man of good ability, finely educated and conversant in several languages, but a reckless adventurer.

Nixon's Achilles Heel

Conservative Republicans Key to His New Revolution

BY KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's plan to stump the country for his "New American Revolution" has an obvious design: to build up so much steam for his welfare, tax-sharing and federal reorganization programs that Congress must either enact them or hand Mr. Nixon a tremendous 1972 campaign issue.

Like most plans, however, this one has a possible flaw. What if it is not Congressional Democrats but a bipartisan bloc, including conservative Republicans, that cuts up Mr. Nixon's proposals? Then the President would not be in a position to make Democratic obstinacy a 1972 campaign issue. Nor would he have an achievement-filled record to cite.

This is no far-out possibility. It could easily happen, because the new "revolutionary" package still lacks needed detail, an overall philosophic framework and ideological coalitional direction. Without this, there is a coloration of "instant reforms," of mere leftward-shifting imagery. Many of Mr. Nixon's own conservative cohorts are dubious. The President's zigzagging domestic policy has faced such suspicion before, and the record justifies it again now.

Jerry-Built Plan

Last year's Family Assistance (welfare) Plan suffered in this way. Both conservatives and liberals saw it as jerry-built, contradictory in places and backstopped by no clear Administration philosophy. As a result, the proposal failed to mobilize either a center-left or center-right coalition. The combined liberal Democratic and conservative Republican opposition made the President look foolish and poorly advised.

Phillips

During 1971-72 liberal Democrats, prompted by both partisanship and ideology, are bound to be the principal adversaries of Mr. Nixon's proposals. They regard White House welfare and health insurance plans as inadequate while they fear the potential of revenue-sharing and governmental reorganization.

At the same time, the President's plans have aroused minimal enthusiasm among conservative Republicans. Many have only a so-so interest in revenue-sharing and reorganization (the Nixon proposals least likely to succeed); coupled with a hostility towards expansion of Federal health and welfare efforts and an increasing suspicion that conservatives are being "sold out" by the Nixon Administration.

The President cannot rely on some vague centrist voalition to pass his programs. If conservative Republicans join in hatcheting them, or even just several of the more prominent items, this could undo White House hopes of casting the Democrats as the villains. Under such circumstances, Mr. Nixon would confront an unpitying electorate in 1972.

Something like this happened to the President's hero, Woodrow Wilson, who retired from the White House in humiliation after urging upon Congress a visionary "League of Nations" for which he had not laid the necessary groundwork.

Meat For Cadres

Good generals put most of their reliance on proven troops. Therefore, Mr. Nixon must throw meat to his veteran cadres. He must flesh out the bare bones of his programmatic ambition with some sound detail and appropriate ideological and coalitional commitment. After all, he represents a center-right coalition, and he is trying to enlarge it with center-right elements of the Democratic electorate.

It shouldn't be hard for Mr. Nixon to put his proposals (in themselves pleasing to middle-of-the-roaders) into a philosophic and rhetorical framework appealing to conservatives yet not offensive to the public at large. If toughened up to meet objections about work incentives and expense, the Administration's welfare plan could become a genuine reform rather than an extravagance. Health insurance is a Middle American need that conservatives must recognize. And both revenue-sharing and government reorganization could serve as a vehicle for dismantling the boondoggling programs and bureaucracy of the Great Society.

President Nixon has a tremendous opportunity to push a "revolution" that will simulataneously win conservative acclaim, put Congressional Democrats over a barrel and secure his place in history. But if he doesn't offer conservatives enough to keep his center-right coalition solid, then the President's strategy of confrontation with Congress could backfire.

Lucey Picks Own Man Gerrard to Manage Democratic Party

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — When David Carley performed as master of ceremonies at the inauguration of the Democratic state administration, he drew upon an aphorism of a celebrated American political philosopher of another time.

Introducing Gov. Patrick Lucey after the oath of office, Carley recalled that the famed Mr. Dooley once remarked that "polytics ain't bean bag" and he added that the new governor also knew that "politics is not a game for children or a vocation for the innocent."

What Carley was saying was demonstrated when the new governor decisively asserted control of the Democratic state party organization, picked his own man to run it, and although it required a couple of hours of hard behind-the-scenes persuasion, managed to bring it off without a public record of resistance, dissent or complaint.

As his friend Carley also remarked to the party of inauguration celebrants nearly a month ago, Lucey is "one of the most sophisticated practitioners of the art (of politics) in the history of this state."

In any other jurisdiction in America, there would not have been the slightest doubt about the naturalness of the desire of the man who holds the chief state office filled on a partisan ballot to command the party machinery as well. There has never been any doubt that the president has the right to choose the chief of the national party apparatus — if it suits him to do so.

Lucey's desire is the more natural today because his party has a comparatively high deb. load from the last campaign — in terms of its own experience — and because in the exigencies of today's politics the administration must soon be preparing to put its organization house in order in anticipation of the 1972 elections that will determine the complexion of the 1973 legislature. This in turn, will have a critical effect upon the Lucey regime in the 1974 elections.

Faces Critical Decisions

The governor has more security today than his predecessors. But he confronts dangerous problems and decisions which make it vital to keep the party machine in the best condition, the demoralized state of the rival Republican apparatus notwithstanding.

All that is the essence of "polytics," as Peter Finley Dunne said through the mouth of Mr. Dooley, the imaginary character. Questions that remain relate to the method and the nature of the selection.

Bill Gerrard, the La Crosse realtor who came into the Democratic party when Lucey was running the Kennedy family ventures here, is relatively little known on his own account.

There will be reservations that his partisan pedigree is imperfect, that he waited so long to affiliate with the organization he now leads, that he was sufficiently close to a Republican governor to get a highly prized state patronage appointment (and Vernon Thomson was one of the Republican chiefs of his time who was most disliked by Democrats) and that he did not work up through the party ranks, as did most of the top organization men including one or two whose aspirations were unceremoniously pushed aside.

Behind Closed Doors

Such details will blur in a fortnight. The curious thing is that Lucey encountered any resistance whatever. One probability is that he did not act in a timely way. It is strengthened by the fact that the state committee was required to act behind closed doors. That is perfectly legitimate, but it is a revealing exception to practice, nevertheless. For years it has boasted about its open doors, in a kind of sidelong taunt of the rival Republican establishment.

For the Democrats now to show any over-resistance to Gerrard would be harmful at a delicate time in their new prosperity.

Noise Level High In Today's Society

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the grossest miscarriages of justice occurred on Christmas Day in an Idaho town, when a woman was fined in court for turning off the radio with a pistol.

The woman told the judge that her husband was playing the radio too loudly on

Harris

Christmas Eve. When he refused to turn it down, she took the family pistol and fired it, cutting the cord.

Her husband had her arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct, but it seems to me that the judge should have locked up the husband as well — for disturbance of the peace and incitement to riot.

One of the surest indications of a moronic mind and a bestial disposition is the stolid ability to endure (even to enjoy) loud noises, especially when they emanate from a radio or television set.

And each year, as a nation, we are becoming more inured to such noises — until we may eventually reach the point where we cannot dispense with them as background for our intellectual vacuity. School-children already find it difficult to "study" without a rock group blasting out in stupefying decibels.

More and more restaurants, offices, and even building elevators have installed those hideous canned-music programs; airplanes have the same, while waiting for take-off or approaching landing, as if people couldn't stand the "sound of silence" with nothing going on.

I once complained to a restaurant hostess that the canned music was blaring too loudly to conduct a quiet conversation; she stared back at me uncomprehendingly and asked, "What music?" Apparently, after a time, she scarcely heard it at all — but if it were removed, she would feel a deathly silence that might make room for her own thoughts, God forbid.

(Remember the story of the lighthouse keeper, who slept peacefully every night while the machinery hummed away? And one night there was a break in the circuit and the humming stopped; he leapt out of bed and cried "What was that?")

The ear is a precious and delicate mechanism, naturally attuned to concordant beauties and subtleties of sound. Our commercial cupidity is ruining this sensitive instrument as surely as if we poured hot lye over a magnificent pipe organ.

Acoustics has its own law of diminishing returns. Once accustomed to loudness, we require more and more volume to attract our attention. And the whisper of the mind is obliterated by the cacophony of noise.

Mobile Home Not For This Couple

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I do not agree with the letter about mobile homes which appeared recently in your editorial section.

As past owner of a mobile home we would have been much farther ahead if we would have rented for a while.

By the time monthly payments plus the cost of a lot in the mobile home park were put together it came to a pretty steep sum. This amount would have paid for a pretty nice apartment.

As for having to buy furniture, you end up purchasing it after a short while anyway. The furniture in our new mobile home was shot within two years. Some pieces went before that.

The large appliances go with the trailer when you sell, so they also have to be purchased again.

All this cost does not include what you pay for oil, gas, electricity and repairs, and there are repairs.

In the winter there's the expense of heat tapes, broken pipes, freezeups and furnace failures. This does not include leaking windows which stain the drapes and ruin the paneling, leaky roofs, sinks and tubs.

There is also a good deal of worry when high winds come up and about the best you can do is take a seasick pill and pray, or the worry of how you would ever reach the children in case of fire, since the furnace separates you. You still have these worries with a house but at least you feel you have a chance.

I guess we wouldn't feel these expenses were all in vain if the mobile home would hold its resale value, but it does not.

When we sold ours we received less than half of what we paid after only 3½ years. What would it be worth by the time it was paid for?

I'm sure we're not the only ones who have had these thoughts and regrets about being a once upon a time mobile home owner.

That is why, when asked how I liked mobile home living, I say travel trailers for camping are fine, but to live in one as a home for a period of time, no thanks.

Ambulance vs. Animal Shelter Poor Comparison

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

To read a statement such as Mr. Gresens put in the paper stating that the city of Appleton should consider a new animal shelter instead of a new rescue unit for the fire department makes one wonder what level of animal he considers himself.

He seems to think the ambulance service is fine. Well good for him. My experiences with it have not been so fine. First of all the personnel they have driving do not have the training our fine fire department has. The firemen are trained in every phase of sickness and accident and retrained. They all have Red Cross degrees in first aid. How many ambulance drivers are so qualified?

I know some of the men who have been drivers and I know they do not. Also I've seen them try and handle sick people on many occasions. Some of which I have called for that service. What an effort they make trying to move an injured person.

Granted they do their job to the best of their ability, but I do not think the taxpayers of Appleton should be neglected or robbed of the excellent training and speed to which the rescue squad car answers calls.

I believe it is the right of the people to have a choice of service and it should not be decided on by such a minority of people. It is a minority too, because when one reads the paper the calls for the rescue unit in one given day exceeds ambulance calls.

I also have been wondering why this issue keeps reoccurring. Certainly a city this size can use all the emergency equipment available. I'm sure those who use the rescue unit's service are not taking away from the ambulance service in any way, if not for the rescue unit, they probably won't call anyone.

Please sir, next time pick a better example to get your point across than using animals for an excuse. I certainly consider the regards for human life much higher than animals.

Employe Pays Tribute To Late Howard Thelin

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I'd like to take an opportunity to pay tribute to the late Howard S. Thelin.

I'm one of several college students that he has employed in past years and I'd like to say that he was a fine man. He's given so many students an opportunity for employment and always was sparked with a joke, a prank, or a smile for one and all to perk up a routine day.

I guess his civic record stands firm that he was a great leader in our community but, in addition, he was a round jolly chap, as well as a shrewd businessman. He showed his concern in an active, rather than passive way.

He treated us like his own kids and, "Uncle Howie" (as some of us called him) and his wife Gladys were known for taking their girls out to dinner, as a special treat, very frequently. He was in his glory when he could be a prince in that way.

His knowledge of his field was outstanding. Like he said, "all good books are read." And he knew about them. He took that extra moment with his customers at Conkey's Book Store, letting them know they're important which seemed to spark his business. He applied his knowledge wherever he could.

I'm not going to sign my name to this because I feel that there are many who could say that there will be a gap in the community in the absence of Howard Thelin. So let it be left that many could sign this letter as well.

I pray that the Lord will bless his soul, for a good one it was.

Parochial School Aid Arguments Answered

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

After reading the People's Forum in the January 18 edition of The Post-Crescent, I can remain silent no longer.

It was necessary to read the column, "Need Aid to Parochial Schools to Help in Moral Development," several times to try to decide just what the "author" was trying to say.

First, he stated his belief in God while he was being "licentious" or "promiscuous" and while "swearing all the way up the ladder." Perhaps he does believe in God, but as was so aptly stated in a recent Sydney Harris column in The Post-Crescent, "Does God believe in him?"

He further stated that religious freedom was being "blocked" because of a lack of financial support from the government for parochial schools.

True, all people should have — and under our Constitution do have — freedom of religion. Our Constitution does not, however, promise to aid or support any religion. It guarantees each the right to his own belief but does not require him to financially support the religious beliefs of others.

When we speak of state aid to parochial schools, we are in fact (mainly) speaking of financial aid to Catholic schools as it is they who are requesting this support.

In any religion that encourages large families, there are few who can afford this luxury (parochial school) today without sacrifice. However, any child can attend public school. The only course not available to him in public school is religion. Those parents desiring this for their child, should also be willing to pay for it.

If I must pay more taxes, I would prefer using this money to build and support more public schools which all children could attend rather than supporting "private" parochial schools. Once even a small amount of aid is given, what is to prevent them from using this same argument (threatening shut down of their schools in the future) if more and more aid is not forthcoming? What is to prevent other religious and private schools from demanding and receiving the same amount of aid? What will happen to our public school system (which is the only school system anyone can attend) if suddenly large sums of state and federal school aid are diverted to parochial and private schools? The result could only be a weakening of our public school structure.

The "author," in summing up his argument for seeking aid for parochial schools, seemed to imply if one does not attend a parochial school he will not develop morally. What about the kids that have attended only our public schools?

Since "moral development" begins or ends in the home, religious training, to be meaningful, must be taught and practiced here. It cannot be "legislated" or "financed" by state and federal aid as the author seemed to imply. Religion? YES. Freedom of religion? YES. Federal and state aid to religion? NO.

Nun Gets Letter From Purse Thief

DETROIT (AP) — A Dominican nun whose purse was grabbed as she walked alone on a Detroit street this week got a letter Thursday from the repentent purse-snatcher.

It read:

"I am more than sorry about what happened on the 17th of January, but to a certain extent I was forced for my reactions. I hope I didn't hurt your arm.

"I'm a drug addict. If I had a job, I could kick my habit "

A postscript promised: "When I get some money, I'll send you yours."

The note was accompanied by the contents of the nun's purse —minus the $10 in her wallet It was mailed to Nativity High School, where Sister Michaela Hunt teaches art

The 32-year-old nun said she hopes the purse-snatcher contacts her in person She would like to put him in touch with other Dominicans nuns "who I know have the contacts to get this man's rehabilitation "

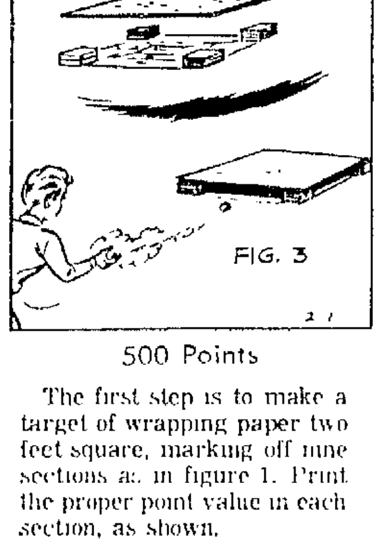
'Undercover' Contest Uses Hidden Target

BY CAPPY DICK

"Undercover" is a homemade game, using commonplace materials easily found around the house.



500 Points

The first step is to make a target of wrapping paper two feet square, marking off nine sections as in figure 1. Print the proper point value in each section, as shown.

Place the target on the floor, with a book at each corner (figure 2). On top of the books place a square of cardboard a couple of inches larger than the paper target. This will conceal the target. The books must be of equal thickness and must elevate the cardboard enough to allow a ball to roll under it.

Select a suitable ball — a rubber ball or a table tennis ball — and you are ready to play. The object is for the players, kneeling at a point eight feet from the target, to roll the ball (figure 3) so it will come to a stop beneath the cardboard.

After each roll the cardboard is lifted to see exactly where the ball landed on the hidden target and the points it consequently earned. If it rolled all the way across the target and came out at the other side it scored nothing.

The players take turns. The first to earn a total of 500 points wins the game.

ShopKo Stores Relocates Offices In Green Bay

ShopKo Stores, Inc. which has a Menasha discount department store and another under construction in Appleton, has relocated its Green Bay headquarters to 2800 S. Ashland Ave., Green Bay.

The firm has constructed a two-level office building as the first of a three-part plan that includes two building additions at a later date. The new building has 22,000 square feet.

It is located on an 11½-acre site which officials say will allow for additional office space or a warehousing distribution center, when and if needed. The office building's cost was over $600,000.

The firm, which operates a chain of 14 discount stores in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota and is opening three more this year, recently agreed to merge with Super Valu, Inc., Minneapolis, Minn.-based food store chain. ShopKo will become a nonfood division of Super Valu, when the deal is finalized probably in March or April.

The new merger is providing ShopKo with the financial base it needs to increase its expansion rate.

Former Home Economist Dies At Chilton

Joan Prochnow Keup Held Calumet County Post Before 1958

ELKHORN — The former Calumet County Home Economist, Mrs. Albert Keup, 31, Elkhorn died here early Sunday at her home of a pulmonary embolism.

Mrs. Keup, the former Joan Prochnow, served as Calumet County Home Economist for six years before taking a similar position here in April, 1968.

While in Calumet County she worked with homemaker programs, organized 4-H home economics programs and helped to raise funds for a Calumet County Day Care Center for the mentally handicapped.

She was instrumental in a speciality program entitled Quest for Knowledge, dealing with current issues facing women.

In June, 1970 she married Albert Keup, a former caseworker with the Calumet County Social Services Department. Keup now is attending graduate school at the University of Wisconsin.

Mrs. Keup was a native of Gilman. She was a graduate of Stout State University with a bachelors degree.

On Feb. 15 she was to have assumed new duties as the Walworth County extension home economist in charge of nutrition. She worked since 1968 with homemakers programs and 4-H home economics programs.

Mrs. Keup was a member of the American Association of University Women, the University of Wisconsin Home Economists Association and National Home Economists Association. During 1970 she served as a committee member at the National Home Economists Association convention in Milwaukee.

Survivors are her husband, parents, two brothers and an aunt.

Visitation will be here from to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday at the Derksen Funeral Home. Funeral services will be here at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the First Methodist Church. Burial will be after private graveside services at Gilman.

Rail Strike Again Looming As Possibility Nationwide

WASHINGTON (AP) — With no indications of a settlement in sight, President Nixon and Congress soon may be looking down the barrel again of a threatened nationwide rail strike.

Nixon has until Feb. 15 to submit a report to Congress on the dispute, along with his recommendations for settlement. And Congress has until March 1, when a legislated strike moratorium ends and the unions will be free to act.

There have been talks in the past few weeks involving both the Railway Clerks, largest of the involved unions, and United Transportation Union, but there have been few reports of progress.

Legislative Jurisdiction

Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Tex., a member of the House Commerce Committee, which has legislative jurisdiction, commented:

"I would say to the President and to the executive department this is the time for some good old, healthy jawboning negotiations. I would hope that the executive department in the next two weeks would call in the interested parties and with all of the force and power at their command try to get them to enter into meaningful negotiations."

If nothing comes of such efforts, however, the situation will be right back in the lap of Congress, which cut off the strike last December only hours after it began. The 81-day moratorium enacted gave nearly 500,000 rail workers an immediate 13.5 per cent pay raise.

Second Rail Strike

It was the second nationwide rail strike in three years Congress halted with special laws after Railway Labor Act provisions expired.

At issue are union demands for a three-year contract providing an estimated 40 per cent boost over current wages averaging about $3.50 an hour, a cost of living increase and other benefits

The industry had accepted a mediation panel's recommendation of a 32 per cent pay boost for members of the involved unions—the clerks, the UTW, Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way and the Hotel and Restaurant Employes.

Should the problem end up in Congress again, time would become a critical factor.

Though House committee reorganization should be complete within a week, there remains the question of who will head the Commerce Committee's transportation subcommittee. Then, Congress recesses for Lincoln's Birthday from Feb. 10-17.

The prospects have prompted Reps. Brock Adams, D-Wash., Pickle, Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., and Lionel Van Deerlin, DA Calif., to urge members to get their proposed solutions in gear.

Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., has been asked to schedule hearings as soon as the organizational structure is completed.

"I am not optimistic that this will be settled by the parties," Adams said, "because the history of these disputes in the last three years has been to have the matter finally settled by ad hoc legislation."

Legislation Requested

Nixon, in the last Congress, requested legislation to deal with emergency strikes not only on railroads but in other transportation industries.

Both the House and Senate committees have said hearings will be held this year.

The administration's proposal last year would have permitted partial operation of an industry involved in a strike. It also required labor and management each to submit "final offers" to the Secretary of Labor and, if there was no agreement in five days, a neutral, three-man federal board would have chosen one offer as binding.

Hijacked Passengers Go to India by Road

NEW DELHI (AP) — The 26 passengers and four crew members of an Indian airliner hijacked to Pakistan returned to India by road today.

Escorted by Pakistani police, they were driven from Lahore to the border 35 miles away.

Indian Airlines considered sending a plane to Labhore to pick them up, but officials said it couldn't land because of threatening crowds at the airport. Meanwhile, on the airport runway, the two hijackers continued a sitdown in the Fokker Friendship airliner they diverted to Lahore Saturday during a flight from Srinagar to Jammu, in the Indian portion of Kashmir.

Kashmiri Demands

The hijackers said they were Kashmiris seeking freedom from India for their disputed state. The Pakistani government gave them asylum, but they said they would not leave the plane until the Indian government granted two demands: the release of 36 leaders of the National Liberation Front under arrest in Kashmir and assurance that the hijackers' relatives would not be persecuted.

The hijackers' demands were relayed to the Indian High Commission in Pakistan. Meanwhile, the Pakistani government made no attempt to remove them from the plane.

Crowds of Pakistanis at the airport shouted "Long live the two hijackers!", "Kashmir is ours!" and "Don't return the aircraft to India!" Many brought food for the hijackers, but police kept them off the runways.

State Cited For Roadside Beautification

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin has been singled out in a national contest for improving scenery along its highways.

One first-place award and two honorable mentions went to the Wisconsin Division of Highways in competition sponsored by the Transportation Department's Federal Highway Administration.

The first place award—one of 11 granted in the country—was given for steps taken to preserve the scenic view for motorists on Highway 107 along the Wisconsin River between Merrill and Tomahawk.

Development of a swimming beach along Interstate 94 near Millstone earned one honorable mention award.

The other came for the planting of pine trees to screen an automobile junkyard along Highway 51 north of Stevens Point

Former State Justice Remmert Wingert Dies

MADISON (AP) — Remmert Wingert, 71, Wisconsin Supreme Court justice from 1956 to 1959, died today

In recent years he served as special counsel for the state university system board of regents.

He was recognized as a specialist in constitutional law and played a major role in state litigation that led to reapportionment in 1962.

International Cities Meeting Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is planning an international "Conference of Cities" next spring, but intends to keep America's racial problems in the background.

The conference, which opens May 25 in Indianapolis, is expected to attract some of the world's leading experts on urban problems. Its focus will be kept firmly fixed on the difficulties common to the 15 NATO countries, an administration spokesman said.

NATO is collaborating in planning the conference, which developed out of its Committee on the Challenges of Modern Society.

Common Problems

"We are trying to deal with problems that have a high level of commonality," said the administration aide, who asked not to be identified. "With the exception of Great Britain, there's not a European country with a severe racial problem."

President Nixon is considered a likely speaker at the four-day conference West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, former mayor of West Berlin, may also attend.

The guest list is still not complete but among those likely to receive invitations are the renowned Greek architect and planner, Constantinos Doxiadis, economist Barbara Ward and designer-builder Richard Buckminster Fuller.

500 Delegates

Five hundred delegates are expected, half of them from Europe. Among the U.S. delegates will be mayors from cities over 100,000 in population and several governors.

The agenda, which is still being shaped, now includes transportation, housing, fiscal affairs, the environment, public services and planning and development.

An administration spokesman said the meeting could prove "the most important conference to have ever considered anywhere the problems of the cities in the context of serious international cooperation."

Former presidential counsellor Daniel P. Moynihan, a certain participant, said the conference represents an attempt to "establish relations among people who have surprisingly similar experiences."

Mayor Richard Lugar of Indianapolis, president of the National League of Cities and Moynihan spawned the idea for the conference last April while attending a NATO committee conference in Brussels.

State GOP Executive Committeeman Dies

MILWAUKEE (AP)— Vincent A. Mercurio, 64, member of the state Republican executive committee and chairman of his party's 5th Congressional District organization, died Sunday in a hospital.

Mercurio had been district chairman or Milwaukee County chairman at various times since 1952, and a member of the state committee for nine years.

Snowmobile Fails, Banker Dies

COOKE CITY, Mont. (AP) — Banker Hugh D. Galusha Jr., died Sunday in a hastily dug snow cave after a snowmobile trip foundered due to mechanical trouble, hurricane-force winds and temperatures equivalent to 80 degrees below zero.

Galusha, 51, was president of the 9th Federal Reserve District Bank of Minneapolis.

Sixteen of the snowmobile group, including Jim Marshall and Paul Dickson of the pro football Minnesota Vikings, survived the storm.

Sheriff James L. Eichler of nearby Red Lodge said the weekend weather was "horrible," and said winds were up to 98 miles an hour

The storm began Saturday. Survivors said Galusha died early Sunday.

The snowmobile party set out Saturday on a privately planned trip from Red Lodge along the Beartooth Highway, a primary route which was closed to normal traffic by snow drifts of up to 20 feet.

Jim Klobuchar, a columnist for the Minneapolis Star, was a member of the tour. He said one snow machine after another developed trouble and the party broke up into groups of three and four and had to abandon some machines.

"We really had no options," Klobuchar said. He said there were experienced mountain people in the group and there were reckless decisions."

Klobuchar said Galusha died after efforts to revive him failed

A spokesman for Yellowstone National Park, a few miles from the scene, said the wind-chill factor, combining cold and wind for its effect on the human body, was 80 degrees below zero.

Laird Stops Briefly At Airport in Mosinee

MOSINEE (AP) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird paid a 20-minute visit to his native state Sunday, preferring to chat about the weather rather than politics or government.

The secretary, en route back to Washington from California, arrived at Mosinee aboard his plane, Air Force II, to let his mother, Helen Laird, disembark and return to her Marshfield home.

He declined to talk politics but couldn't avoid noticing the subzero weather in his brief comments with newsmen.

Oshkosh Man Joins Political Advising Firm

WASHINGTON — An Oshkosh man, with a background in behind-the-scenes political organization and campaign work in Wisconsin Republican circles, is among principal officers of a newly-formed communications and political consulting firm.

Kenneth Rietz, formerly administrative assistant and campaign manager for Rep. William Steiger, R-Wis., is now associated with Allison, Treleaven & Rietz, Inc., which announced opening of offices in the capital today.

Rietz directed the Oshkosh congressman's first and second successful election campaigns in 1966 and 1968, served as assistant director of communication for the Republican National Committee in 1969 and last year directed the successful campaign of Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn., who unseated former Democratic Sen Albert Gore.

President of the new firm is James Allison Jr., former Texas newspaper publisher who has been deputy chairman of the Republican National Committee the past two years. He has worked as campaign manager for former Rep. George Bush of Texas and Sen. Edward Gurney of Florida, both republicans

The third principal in the new firm is Harry Treleaven Jr., of New York, former vice president of a major advertising company, who directed advertising for the Nixon presidential campaign in 1968 and was communications director for the Republican National Committee in 1969

Pet Looks Cold, Gets Snakeneck Sweater to Wear

TUCSON, Ariz (AP) — Fred looked cold and even a coldblooded snake could use a warm sweater.

That's what 8-year-old Coleen Olson thought.

She crocheted Fred a sweater

Fred lives in a glass-fronted cage in Coleen's third-grade classroom at Walter Douglas School. Ringed in banana hues of yellow and black, Fred is 40 inches long The sweater is somewhat shorter

The two-toned pullover is hot pink on top and baby pink on the bottom.

"That's all the yarn I had," said Coleen, who has one year's knitting and crocheting experience.

The style?

"It's a snakeneck sweater," Coleen giggled "He'd NEVER wear a turtleneck one."

Rockefeller Blames Washington

New York Tax Hike Asked

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov Nelson A. Rockefeller blamed the federal government for New York's fiscal problems today as he requested a record round of tax increases totaling $1 11 billion to help finance a proposed state budget of $8 45 billion.

The Republican governor told the GOP-controlled legislature that he had no choice except to recommend higher taxes, because Washington apparently was not going to come through on time with the federal revenue-sharing program.

Required by state law to present a balanced budget, Rockefeller said the state's present revenue system could not come even close to absorbing the $1 53 billion "obligatory" spending increase he faced.

Accordingly, he recommended:

—A 10 per cent surcharge on the state's income tax, plus higher brackets for upper-income taxpayers and elimination of cash credits that all taxpayers now are allowed to deduct.

—A one percentage point increase in the state's three per cent sales tax. That would raise the maximum rate in the state to seven per cent, because many communities also levy local sales taxes of up to three per cent.

—Increases of one cent on the gasoline tax, now seven cents a gallon, three cents on cigarettes, now 12 cents a package; 10 cents a fifth on liquor, now 45 cents Fees for motor-vehicle registrations would be raised an average of 50 per cent.

—A boost of about 30 per cent in taxes on the earnings of corporations, utilities and banks.

Rockefeller said New York had run into financial trouble because it was not getting enough help from Washington, and he warned that "we could witness—this year—a disastrous deterioration of public services" unless the federal government responds

At the same time, he indicated that part of the tax package might be withdrawn if Washington did produce. He described his fiscal plan as "a stopgap, crisis budget subject to revision when Congress enacts a meaningful federal aid plan through revenue sharing "

The governor's tax-and-spending plan now will be subjected to critical scrutiny, and probable revision, by the legislature. The objective will be to reach an agreement by the April 1 start of the state's fiscal year.

Stray Bullet Injures Nepal's Queen Ratna

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Queen Ratna of Nepal was wounded in the stomach and hand by a bullet that ricocheted during a tiger hunt

The queen, 42, underwent an operation after a 300-mile flight from Kanchanpur, where she and her husband had been on an official tour.

Crosby's Efforts To Save Salmon Brings 'Reprisal'

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Thousands of Danish schoolchildren have been told their supply of Bing Crosby movies is being cut off because of his support of the campaign to end Danish commercial fishing for salmon off Greenland

Fischer aHnsen who organizes film shows for children in several Danish towns, said Tuesday he would remove Crosby films from his list and seek a nationwide boycott of the singer's movies and records

Crosby is a leading supporter of the "Save the Atlantic Salmon" campaign American sportsmen are pushing Denmark is the only fishing nation that has refused to sign a convention banning salmon fishing in the mid-Atlantic where the big fish feed before returning to North American rivers to spawn

Simmons Golden Value Deluxe
With its beautiful, long-wearing quilted cover formerly on famous Simmons $69.95 mattress. Sani-seal® treated against mildew, bacteria and odors. Underneath, over 300 extra-firm Adjusto-rest® coils, plus luxurious upholstery to give head-to-toe comfort and support. Exclusive Sim-guard edges prevent sagging, give support to the very edge. Sweet dreams at a dream of a price.
Twin or Double Mattress or Matching Box Spring $59.95
Extra-long Twin Set, $129.95 Queen Set, $169.95 King Set, $249.95

Simmons Golden Value Special
Low in price, but it has everything needed for years of sleeping comfort. Hundreds of firm resilient coils, long-wearing quilted cover, four cord handles, and eight fresh-air ventilators. Specially crafted and specially priced for this event.
Twin or Double Mattress or Matching Box Spring $49.95
Extra-long Twin Set, $109.95
Queen Set, $149.95 King Set, $219.95

Introducing the Beautyrest® Capri
Like every Beautyrest, it's made differently to be firm, but never hard or "boardy." Each coil is separate and acts independently, adjusting to the weight of each part of your body. Hips, shoulders, back and sides all get proper support and comfort. The Capri cover is handsomely quilted, Scotchgard®-protected. An unbeatable buy.
Twin or Double Mattress or Matching Foundation $89.95
Extra-long Twin Set, $199.95
Queen Set, $249.95 King Set, $359.95
Beautyrest prices are suggested, except in Fair Trade States.
